EAST COAST TRAGEDY

12 Feared Lost As Ships Go Down

Ferry, Seiner Sink in Storm

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Twelve men were feared lost in the sinking of two ships in the storm-tossed Cabot Strait off Cape Breton today.

The CNR ferry Patrick Morris, which had sailed ahead of schedule in an attempt to find survivors from a sunken fishing vessel, later went down herself.

Four of the crew of the ferry and the captain and seven crew members of the seiner Enterprise are missing.

The 10,000-ton ferry began taking on water after positioning herself to attempt to pick up either survivors or bodies from the fishing craft, the Enterprise.

No clear explanation for the ships' sinking was immediately available, but waterfront sources here said the storm was one of the worst of the season. Winds up to 70 miles an hour, high seas and blinding snow were reported in the area.

The Patrick Morris was carrying a crew of 51. She carried no passengers.

Forty-seven of the ferry's crew were missing. Names picked up by the German bulk-carrier Rhine Ore. They were to be taken to Port Cartier, Que., the Rhine Ore's destination. The trip was expected to take two days.

The CNR said four of the crew were missing. names were withheld.

Whereabouts of Capt. Rolland Penney, 54-year-old skipper of the Patrick Morris, was not immediately known.

CALL FOR HELP

The tragedy began to unfold late Sunday when the 100-foot Newfoundland-based herring seiner Enterprise got into trouble in the high seas about 10 miles off the northern tip of Cape Breton. Her calls for help sent several ships to the area.

The Patrick Morris, due to sail early today for Port aux Basques, Nfld., requested permission to sail early to join the rescue effort, which continued throughout the night.

Preliminary reports here indicated the Morris had sighted a man's body, presumably a victim of the Enterprise sinking, and was attempting to recover it when a heavy sea struck her stern. The ship's stern gates, it was said, had been opened to recover the body.

Ships in the area reported high winds hampering the search, making any adjustment in course difficult.

The CNR ferry Ambrose Shea headed in here with an injured stewardess. Birdie Cole suffered a severe head cut when she fell aboard ship.

The Ambrose Shea would return to the search as soon as the stewardess was landed, a CN spokesman said.

It was earlier reported that the Ambrose Shea had picked up some of the Morris' crew members, but a spokesman said all 47 were aboard other ships — most of them on the Rhine Ore.

The Partick Morris carried a wide range of cargo — from potato chips to refrigerators — in 18 boxcars.

In Moncton, N.B., CNR regional Vice-President W. G. Macdougall said the loss of the Patrick Morris should not have any immediate impact on the movement of freight to and from Newfoundland.

The ship had been tied up for the last six weeks because she is not equipped to operate in ice. Traffic was being handled by the other rail car ferry, the Frederick Carter, which can operate in ice.

"We are starting immediately to look into the possibilities of obtaining another vessel to be used in the Newfoundland service," Macdougall said.

"There are, I understand, some rail car ferries avail-

NIGHTCLUB DANCER KILLED IN VANCOUVER

BURNABY (CP) — A 27-year-old nightclub dancer was shot and killed in the basement of her home Sunday night while her seven-year-old daughter listened upstairs. RCMP said they are holding three men for questioning.

Police said a man entered the home and searched kitchen cupboards before forcing Mrs. Jackie Lampen, a divorcee, downstairs where she was shot in the chest and leg by a .22 calibre semi-automatic weapon.

The daughter heard the shots and telephoned for help. No motive for the slaying has been uncovered.

Cong Entrenched Near Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Four Cambodian battalions moved up today to the edge of the riverside town of Saang, 18 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, and began making preparations to try to dislodge a Viet Cong force that occupied the town Sunday.

It is the closest the Viet Cong have moved to Cambodia's capital.

The Cambodian command post was about 400 yards from where the lieutenant-colonel in charge believed the Viet Cong had set up their positions. A spotted plane circled overhead, hunting for guerrillas along the banks of the Bassac River.

The Viet Cong moved into Saang Sunday afternoon after government troops abandoned the town without a fight.

Since the ouster of Prince Norodom Sihanouk March 18, the Viet Cong had advanced no closer than 28 miles to Phnom Penh, in their clashes with government troops.

VIET CONG ACTIVE

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese now are active in much of the territory between Phnom Penh and the South Vietnamese border. Last week a Cambodian army unit fled into South Vietnam after its post at Phnom Den was overrun. Thirty of these Cambodian soldiers were seen Sunday at Tinh Bien, a South Vietnamese border town 65 miles south of Phnom Penh.

Man Jailed Month After Beer Brawl

A 19-year-old involved in a beer parlor incident Saturday night was sentenced today to a month in jail when he pleaded guilty to obstructing a police officer.

John Coward, 493 Ker, police testified, had to be pulled from the back of an officer attempting to escort a prisoner.

Coward was one of five persons — including two girls — arrested Saturday night for disturbances at the Red Lion and Royal Olympic beer parlors. (See also page 17)

A third beer parlor, the Century Inn, 603 Pandora, also called for police assistance but no arrests were made.

REMANDED

Robert N. Parker, 22, of 493 Ker, pleaded not guilty to possessing an offensive weapon and was remanded to April 29 for trial.

Police, shortly after a knife incident inside the Royal Olympic about 10 p.m., arrested the following:

Bonnie Davidson, 18, of 493 Ker, who pleaded guilty to assaulting Constable Morrison H. Curry and to causing a disturbance. She was remanded to April 28 for a presentence report.

Joanne G. Bradley, 19, of 493 Ker, who pleaded guilty to obstructing Sgt. John L. Maybin and to causing a disturbance. She was remanded also to April 28 for a presentence report.

Stephen Maloney, 20, of 1032 McGregor, pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance at the Red Lion Motor Inn on Douglas Street.

Police testified that he shouted obscenities at them when they arrived to investigate a fight outside the beer parlor.

Judge William Ostler fined him $25.

CONGRESSIONAL DISPUTE EXPECTED

Laos Involvement Bared

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The disclosure, after six years of secrecy, that former president Johnson launched an air war in Laos in 1964 which reached a peak of 500 raids a day appears certain to touch off a new dispute in Congress over U.S. military involvements overseas.

Disclosure of the air war was contained in a partially censored transcript, released Sunday, of October hearings by the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on U.S. commitments abroad.

START REVEALED

The transcripts also disclosed that 200 Americans have been killed in Laos since 1961, a much higher figure than the 27 deaths acknowledged by the White House.

The transcript revealed that the air war launched by Johnson—over and above previously disclosed air raids on the Ho Chi Minh trail through Laos—began in June, 1964, with air strikes to protect Laotian reconnaissance planes, and developed into large-scale tactical air raids to support the royal Laotian government.

The exact number of air raids launched was not given in the transcript, but defence and state department officials did not challenge a statement by Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.—Mo.) that 378 strikes were made in a single day late in 1965.

Other well-informed Senate sources said the strikes reached 500 a day earlier this year.

Under pressure from senators worried that the United States was becoming involved in an another Vietnam, President Nixon finally acknowledged the air strikes last May. He emphasized that they were conducted at the request of the Laotian government, but gave few details.

The subcommittee testimony is expected to provide new ammunition for senators opposed to military involvement without congressional consent and also will stiffen opposition Congress for any aid for Cambodia, now trying to evict North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops from its soil.

Israeli Air Raids Hit Egyptian Lines

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — Waves of Israeli jets today attacked Egyptian military targets in the central sector of the Suez Canal intermittently for nearly three hours, a military spokesman announced.

He said all planes returned safely to base from the raid which occurred on the eve of the Jewish festival of Passover, commemorating the exodus of the children of Israel from Egypt about 3,500 years ago.

The first wave of jets swept across the waterway at 9:14 a.m., and subsequent sorties continued until noon.

Today's strike was the first reported Israeli air action on the Suez Canal front since a raid Saturday by Egyptian planes, in which three Israeli soldiers were killed and eight were wounded.

OTTAWA DEMONSTRATION AFTERMATH

16 Forcibly Taken From Court

OTTAWA (CP) — Sixteen demonstrators, arrested in front of the United States Embassy during an anti-war demonstration Sunday, were remanded to various May dates for trial when they appeared in court today.

Judge Thomas Swabey had the group forcibly removed from the courtroom when the demonstrators, 15 men and one woman, refused to answer to the charges and shouted at police and court officials.

Using a rarely-invoked section of the Criminal Code, Judge Swabey entered not guilty pleas on their behalf.

"I don't recognize the charge or the court," shouted Barbara Biley, 20, of Ottawa. "I am a political prisoner."

She called the police "fascist pigs" and Judge Swabey and court officials "U.S. lackeys."

The demonstrators said they had been on a hunger strike since their arrest and that they had been beaten regularly by the police.

The first court appearance for the demonstrators is scheduled for May 4.

REMOVED FROM COURT

Miss Biley was taken out of the court by a policewoman. She is charged with assaulting a police officer.

Three of the men are free on bail: John Kelsey, 20, Toronto, and Fred Vickerson, 28, Lachine, Que., charged with causing a disturbance by fighting; and Howard Singer, 18, St. Laurent, Que., charged with causing a disturbance by using obscene language.

The others, facing various charges, were returned to custody.

Police picked up 17 people Sunday when fighting broke out in front of the embassy during a demonstration by about 70 members of a Maoist organization.

The incident preceded an orderly march to Parliament Hill and a demonstration by about 1,500 people protesting the war in Vietnam.

Also charged with assaulting a police officer are Paul Levesque, 21, St. Jerome, Que.; Martin Bracey, 24, Ottawa; Lory Rice, 29, Sherbrooke; Rod Rupert Wilczak, 24, Vancouver; and Jean Paul Cyr, 19, Montreal.

Charged with causing a disturbance by fighting are John Pierce, 21, Toronto; Barry Carlsen, 21, Winnipeg; Marcel Pleau, 21, Montreal; Robert Walker, St. Laurent, Que.; and George Rousseau, 28, Ottawa.

Dan Turner, a Canadian Press reporter, was taken into custody and released shortly afterwards. He was not charged.

Turner had been assigned to cover the demonstration and said he was arrested after fighting with a man who grabbed his notes.

The Maoists, followers of the revolutionary thoughts of Chinese leader Mao Tse Tung who call their organization the Canadian Communist Party Marxist-Leninist — also fought with anti war demonforce that crossed into Cambodia last week on Highway One closed out its operation after a four-day sweep and dismantled the two camps it had set up just inside South Vietnam. The force of more than 3,000 troops claimed to have killed nearly 400 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

While the Viet Cong moved closer to Phnom Penh, diplomats in the capital said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong may also be setting up a base in northeast Cambodia for an opposition government led by Prince Sihanouk.

Reuters correspondent James Pringle reported from Phnom Penh that the Viet Cong today cut Cambodia's main road link to the South Vietnamese border 30 miles east of Phnom Penh by felling dozens of trees across Highway One.

The action took place near a village earlier devastated by Cambodian troops for alleged pro-Viet Cong sympathies.

The road closure on the Phnom Penh side of the Mekong River, eight miles west of the strategic ferry crossing of Neak Loeung, temporarily prevented the government from resupplying Cambodian troops in Svay Rieng province.

MORE BODIES

Bodies continued to float down the Meking River today, a week after the first of several hundred bodies were spotted at this ferry crossing 38 miles southeast of Phnom Penh.

Travellers on the ferry across the Mekong Sunday night saw three bodies in the water, one of a young woman.

A government spokesman said Viet Cong had thrown the bodies into the river after a clash with government troops, and that a ferryboat had sunk at Kompong Cham, further upstream.

Local people along the river bank opposite the Chhor Island, four miles from here, said they believe government forces carried out a series of executions on the island on five consecutive nights beginning April 10.

SURVIVORS FREED

Meanwhile at Takeo survivors of the massacre here of 140 Vietnamese civilians by Cambodian army firing squads were removed Sunday from the bloodstained enclosure where they cowered for nearly two days without food, water or medical attention.

The Phnom Penh government relieved of his command the military governor under whose authority the massacre took place. The new governor, flown here Saturday in one of the Cambodian army's four operational Alouette helicopters, Sunday repeated the official government line that the killings occurred in a cross fire between Cambodian and Viet Cong troops. However, the new governor, Col. Kong Chhath, added: "Such incidents will not happen again under my command. We will follow a humanitarian policy."

Mainland Plumbers Could Join Lockout

Mainland plumbers today were expected to be added to the list of unions locked out by Construction Labor Relations Association in an effort to bring the B.C. building industry to a standstill.

A spokesman for CLRA said he expected a development involving plumbers, and since the plumbers' union had 72-hour lockout notice last week, "you can figure it out for yourself."

The seven other unions locked out are bricklayers and helpers, laborers, teamsters, cement finishers, heat and frost insulators, operating engineers and tunnel and rock workers.

TALKS RESUME

Negotiations with the teamsters were resumed in Vancouver today and efforts to get talks going with other locked-out unions were being made, CLRA said.

Meanwhile, at the weekend, negotiators for some 10,000 B.C. carpenters rejected a CLRA offer of $1 an hour wage increase, but members will vote on it and a strike ballot within 10 days.

Charles J. Connaghan, president of CLRA, said the offer was for 14 per cent wage increase over two years, the same increase offered mainland plumbers, which was rejected a week ago.

VICTORIA UNAFFECTED

Greater Victoria plumbers bargain independently of the mainland unions and are working on the fifth year of a five-year contract expiring in the spring of next year. They are unaffected by the lockout expected today in Vancouver.

A suggestion that contractors would today begin picketing lockout job sites in an effort to keep away tradesmen from unions which are not locked out was described by the CLRA spokesman as "absurd."

He said the thought was considered by the masonry contractors Victoria section of CLRA because some non-members of CLRA had hired bricklayers and helpers locked out by association members.

Amalgamated Construction Association Victoria manager Ed Phillips said these non-member companies now realize their action was not in the best interests of the industry and were no longer keeping locked-out bricklayers on their payrolls. He said two or three companies and up to eight men had been involved in the four days since Tuesday when lockouts first took effect.

400 INVOLVDE

He said he had surveyed construction from Nanaimo south and found 400 tradesmen directly affected by the lockout, all members of the seven original unions. He said it was impossible to judge how many others, such as carpenters whose work had caught up to the other trades, are indirectly affected by the lockout.

"The worst part of the loss of the vessel is that some of the crew members are still unaccounted for and my sympathy goes out to their families. The men who operate our Newfoundland ships are highly skilled sailors and it is in keeping with their traditions that this loss should have happened when they were going to the assistance of some others whose lives were endangered by the hazards of the sea."

PLANS INVESTIGATION

In Ottawa, Transport Minister Don Jamieson said he would order an immediate investigation into the sinking of the ferry.

Missing from the Enterprise are Capt. Olaf Olagaard and Bruno Cervie of Vancouver, Zannia Doiron of Caraquet, N.B., and Blanchard Collinshaw, Charles Abbott, John Hansforth, Emmanuel Lovell and Wilson Green, all of Isle aux Morts, Nfld.

The Enterprise was leased by Nelpack Fisheries of Isle aux Morts from Chaleur Fisheries Ltd., of Claraquet, N.B.C.

strators in Vancouver Saturday.

Another anti-war demonstration in Edmonton went more smoothly as a native organization joined leftists and other anti-war sympathizers to condemn the Trudeau government for "complicity" with American participation in the Vietnamese war.

In Montreal, a small group of demonstrators, some wearing gas or surgical masks, staged a peaceful march to protest the Quebec government's silence on the war.

Participants in the four demonstrations were estimated at more than 2,400-1,500 in Ottawa, 600 in Edmonton and 300 in Vancouver and 50 in Montreal.

For about 2,300 of those demonstrators the focal point was predominatly the demand for U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam and an end to Canadian military co-operation with the U.S., on the grounds that Canada is indirectly participating in the war.

The emphasis was generally on bringing peace to Southeast Asia.

THESE WANT ESCALATION

For the Maoists, who numbered between 75 and 100 well-disciplined militants in Ottawa and between 25 and 30 in Vancouver, the main themes were "escalate the war" in Vietnam and fight for an overthrow of "imperialist" and "fascists" governments everywhere.

The war they say they want escalated in Vietnam is the "war of national liberation" being fought by the pro-Communist forces in Southeast Asia.

They oppose both Western and Russian "fascism."

In Vancouver rain dampened the enthusiasm of demonstrators and scuffles with Maoists effectively ended the proceedings.

After the demonstration had marched 1½ miles through the city opposing factions tried swinging with each other as they pushed up and down the steps of the city courthose trying to gain control of the speaker's platform.

There were no apparent injuries and no arrests were reported.

Featured speaker Cy Gonick, editor of Canadian Dimension magazine an NDP member of the Manitoba legislature was forced to cut short his speech and relinquish his bullhorn.

Nixon to Outline Vietnam Policy

From AP-Reuters

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (CP) — President Nixon will outline his approach to further U.S. troop withdrawals from South Vietnam in a television-radio address tonight — and perhaps unveil a surprise or two.

Nixon will speak from the western White House here and speculation has it that he will announce a withdrawal of between 45,000 and 50,000 men within the next few months.

So far, he has withdrawn 115,000 troops since the Vietnamization program began in July, and reduced U.S. troop strength in Vietnam from 544,500 to 429,000 in three phases.

The last withdrawal was completed April 15, with the over-all rate of withdrawal since July running at an average of slightly more than 11,000 men a month.

Sources at the White House did not rule out the likelihood that Nixon would go beyond mere discussion of troop travels and break new ground in presidential discussion of the Southeast Asian situation.

Since Nixon last took to the airwaves to duscuss the Vietnam war, last Dec. 15, the conflict has broadened, particularly in Cambodia which seeks U.S. arms following a coup that overthrew the neutralist government of Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

REQUEST UNDER STUDY

The state department has said the arms request is under study.

The Nixon administration also has taken an interest in a statement last week by Jacob Malik, Soviet ambassador to the United Nations, that indicated possible Russian interest in the new Geneva conference to take up the entire Indochina situation.

However, Malik told ABC-TV News Saturday that "convening such a conference is unrealistic at the present time."

Although he has been urged by his military chiefs to delay the next withdrawal — to allow more time to train and equip the South Vietnamese army — Nixon apparently has concluded that a recent flare-up in Viet Cong activities is not serious enough to warrant a change.

The president reviewed his expected decision when he conferred Sunday with Pacific commanders in Honolulu.

Nixon flew to his California villa late Sunday frm Honolulu, where he greeted the three Apollo 13 astronauts Saturday on their return to the United States.

The president and Mrs. Nixon will return to Washington Tuesday.

Visitors Bureau 'Greeted Ship'

There was a welcome for the visit last week of the cruise ship West Star and it was organized by the Victoria Visitors' Bureau, president Pat Frumento said today.

He was commenting on a Victoria Chamber of Commerce resolution last Friday expressing disappointment that the first cruise ship of the season docked without the normal colorful reception.

Frumento said he is "very distressed" at the chamber's attitude.

He said there was a reception last Wednesday when the West Star arrived, including a dockside performance by the Esquimalt Thunderbird Drum Corps. The mayor's representative, Ald. Cecil Parrott, was there and flowers were given to each passenger.

Frumento also said that, contrary to an earlier report, it was the Victoria Visitors' Bureau which organized formal welcomes for visiting cruise ships last year, not the Chamber of Commerce, and the bureau will do the same this year.

Chamber directors approved a resolution expressing the hope that "ways and means can be found to avoid such a tragic recurrence" as the quiet arrival of the West Star.

The vessel was picketed at the CPR dock. The Seafarers' International Union was protesting the use of a foreign crew and lockout of Canadian crews from Westline ships.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

Jeff, the old Wyoming cowboy who lives down the road, sits out in the sun every day. "The sun feels good," he said, "and now that I know how it helps me stay healthy at my age, it feels even better."

He knows from talking with his doctor that the ultraviolet rays in sunshine change chemical substances within his body into vitamin D. Vitamin D may not help Jeff grow, because after a cowboy is past 70 he only grows in widsom, as he puts it. But it does help keep up the strength of his bone structure.

"The Indians felt in their bones that sunshine was good for them," said Jeff. "When they basked in the sun for warmth they felt better. And they even knew that when a warrior didn't get enough sunshine he was liable to get sick and lose his appetite."

CONTROL PANEL which operates the 72-inch telescope at the Astrophysical Observatory is adjusted by astronomer Frank Younger. (Irving Strickland Photo)

Space Shots Biggest Boost To World's Star Gazers

By SAM EGUAVOEN

Nobody would blame you if you still regard the astronomer as a mysterious, weird-looking man who gazes at the stars all night and comes out with outlandish views and predictions about the world.

But since the days of Copernicus and Galileo—two 16th-century astronomers who stunned the Christian world at the time—astronomy has undergone a big revolution and today is an essential part of science.

Outside of university, where its importance is increasing, it has a strong following of amateurs; youths who once regarded it as square, are being drawn into the field.

Space exploration which started in late 1950s has given astronomy its biggest boost—first, it has disclosed practical evidence to astronomical theories which had been accumulated over hundreds of years and secondly, it has opened up new areas for experimentation by astronomers.

Three hours spent with a typical astronomer, Frank Younger of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Saanich, turned up a 30-year-old stout and breezy young man who talks of astronomy with enthralling enthusiasm. No old, absent-minded scientist there.

He is about the youngest of 15 astronomers at the Victoria observatory, which is the largest in Canada.

Younger shows he is not just a stuffy scientist by the varied hobbies he engages in. He plays tennis and the violin, he is an amateur boat-builder, he takes a firefighting course and studies Sinology (Chinese affairs).

He was born Nov. 18, 1940, in Bellingham, Wash.

Younger went to high school in Bellingham from where he graduated in 1958. After two years in the junior college at Mt. Vernon (the home of George Washington), he entered the University of Kansas to study astronomy.

Why astronomy?

"Well, it happened this way. I had a friend while I was at the junior college who was studying astronomy at the University of Washington. Each vacation he came to our home, he fascinated everyone with his talks on stars, moon and the sun. So I decided he was not going to outdo me in this. I chose astronomy as my course and here I am."

Younger got his first degree in 1962 and proceeded later that year with graduate work. In the summer of 1963, he went to summer school at Harvard, and in 1964, got his master's degree.

He immediately joined the Kittpeak national observatory in Tucson, Arizona, where he worked until September, 1967, when he joined the Dominion Observatory because "I wanted to be close to home and because Kittpeak did not give one a personal involvement in carrying out experiments. I worked on a remote-control telescope over which I had no control."

He got married in 1964 and has one child, a year old.

Completed in May 1918, the observatory is situated on what is now known as Observation Hill in Saanich. At the time, its 72-inch telescope was the largest in the world but now, other more developed observatories have pushed the Dominion into about the 11th position.

Astronomy Today Essential Part of Science

It used to be operated by the federal department of mines and technical surveys but just recently, it came under the radio and electrical division of the National Research Council where, Younger says, the observatory actually belongs — "since we are concerned with research."

For over 40 years, the 72-inch telescope remained the observatory's only instrument. But in 1962, a 48-inch telescope, smaller but much more modern, was installed. Many features of the design of the new telescope were conceived by observatory astronomers who worked closely with its manufacturers.

In 1963, a 16-inch telescope was added to the equipment of the observatory. It was a gift of its former owner, R. S. Evans of Victoria.

With this equipment, housed in homes, Younger and the other astronomers, watch the stars to determine their physical and chemical nature and to measure their speeds and distances.

The 72-inch and 48-inch telescopes are self-reflecting and these take the pictures of starlight. These are analysed by spectrograph attached to the telescopes.

The information is then used to study the shape, size and structure of our galaxy, investigate the origin of the elements, the generation of nuclear energy and the origin and evolution of sun and stars.

Since the first Apollo flight, astronomers at the Dominion Observatory have kept track of man's flight into space.

They have kept news media in B.C. up-to-date on space, tracking comets and meteors and photographs of these. For instance, Younger's photograph of the unlucky Apollo 13's streak to the moon in the Times' Monday edition was taken at the Saanich Observatory.

The astronomers here, as in other parts of the world, are also studying what becomes of fuel water dumped into space by Apollo spacecraft and according to Younger, "the subsequent time behavior of the ice-cloud expanding in space."

Younger sees his job as a painstaking one which requires a lot of patience.

Does he ever get bored?

"Well, not quite. After several nights of star gazing, one sometimes gets tired but I won't say bored.

"I am glad I am here and I think everyone else here is too."

17-Ton Blank Ready for Trip

A 157-inch mirror blank for the Queen Elizabeth II telescope to be built on Mount Kobau near Osoyoos in the Okanagan will be delivered to the University of British Columbia this month.

The mirror blank, which weighs 17.5 tons, is about 15 feet high, 16 feet long and 10 feet wide when crated. Because of its delicate nature, it will be transported in a special railway flatcar and a special route will have to be used, says the University of B.C. in a special release.

MIRROR BLANK

Queen Elizabeth II telescope project is being undertaken by Westar, a consortium of Queen's University in Toronto, the Universities of Lethbridge, Alberta and Calgary, the University of Victoria and UBC.

Westar was formed after the federal cabinet stopped the project in an economy move in August, 1968.

The mirror blank (which UBC says is the world's largest fused silica telescope mirror blank), and a grinding machine for the blank, are the major assets of the project. The consortium will also receive engineering designs for the permission to use the site on 6,200-foot Mount Kobau. Total value of the assets is $4.5 million.

UBC's dean of science, Dr. Vladimir Okulitch, a UBC representative to the consortium, said the Kobau site is the best in Canada and one of the best in the world for an observatory. He said Westar will launch a $10 million public subscription to complete the project over the next 10 years.

This will make Mount Kobau the largest observatory in the country and about third in North America.

New Powers for New Need

IT IS SIGNIFICANT THAT IN the midst of the controversy over Canada's action in asserting a new extension of sovereignty to 12 miles of all shores and a 100-mile off-shore pollution control area in Arctic waters, Ottawa has also moved to establish our first permanent military base for Arctic operations. It will be at Yellowknife, on the northern shore of Great Slave Lake and it will constitute one step in a program to fill the relative vacuum in the Far North. That vacuum is official rather than physical, for there is an increasing traffic of prospectors, oil workers, supply facilities and other commercial activities, quite apart from the widely publicized movements of the American oil tanker Manhattan on its experimental cruises.

The Yellowknife establishment will be small, reaching a strength of only 35 over the next year and a half. But there will be a new air detachment of the Maritime Command at Frobisher, which will conduct regular surveillance of the vast area of Canadian islands in the Arctic and perform other operational exercises.

These developments are to be considered only as preliminary arrangements, since there can be no doubt that the Far North is in for a rapid development. That is all the more reason why Canada should show its sovereignty over the area by a continuing demonstration of military and police authority, along with civilian occupancy wherever possible. There is no better support for a claim to sovereignty than a physical presence in the area concerned.

The Yellowknife and Frobisher moves are timely in view of the two pieces of legislation now before Parliament, which call for bold new departures in Canada's concept of coastal responsibility. Extension of territorial rights to 12 miles from the conventional three-mile limit is not a pioneering move, for more than 50 other countries have made similar claims and international law will soon have to take formal recognition of this system. The new fisheries inclosure regions just announced are a practical advance.

But the 100-mile "purity area" in the Arctic, within which Canada will require shipping to conform to certain standards of safety as regards pollution, and call for heavy penalties where these provisions are disregarded, breaks new diplomatic ground. As Mr. Trudeau says: "It is our view that at the present time there is no customary law applicable to navigation in Arctic seas, and that we cannot wait for a disaster to prompt us to act. We need law now to protect coastal states from the excesses of shipping states ... The Canadian action is an assertion of the importance of the environment, of the sanctity of life on this planet, of the need for the recognition of a principle of clean seas ..."

Mr. Trudeau likens the need for "clean seas" under today's conditions as a parallel to the concept of "free seas" which prevailed in "the world of yesterday." United States protests against Canada's action will inevitably find themselves aligned against the principle of pollution control. And while this may eventually become a world-wide, internationally organized policing measure, at the moment the concept does not exist in international law. The only practical way at the moment in which to try to prevent the tragedy of irreversible damage in the Arctic is through unilateral action such as Canada has taken.

This is new law, new action to meet a new problem, and the Canadian public—as Mayor Courtney Haddock urges—should unite behind its federal government to give it unmistakable national support in this necessary step. It falls short of an assertion of outright sovereignty over the waters of the Arctic archipelago, which Canada should also support, but it is a vital step which should do much to cement that wider claim in the near future.

The Shrinking Canadian Dollar

LAST YEAR'S OFFICIAL ESTIMATE of a 9.3 per cent growth in the Gross National Product is little more than half true because it is measured by a Canadian dollar which is shrinking in value from year to year. The real value of the dollar in terms of what it will buy, according to the Financial Times, shrank by four per cent in 1968 and another 4.2 per cent in 1969. Measured against a stable standard, the nation's output in both 1968 and 1969 in real growth was about 4.8 per cent per annum.

Dividing the real increase among the growing population, it gives every Canadian about three per cent more wealth in 1969 than he had in 1968. Of course, every increase in production is not distributed equally to all. Which makes these figures even more meaningless. If there is a point to the whole statistical exercise it is that those who want a nine per cent raise in income out of a three per cent increase in real goods and services will end up with more dollars worth less. There are few signs that our collective greed is about to catch up with our collective production. Labor refuses to accept this logic and although business leaders promised they would co-operate with the federal government in holding prices down, the government has had to step in and prevent copper prices to domestic users from being increased.

These are isolated cases and business can always point at labor which has refused to co-operate in holding down inflation. Meanwhile the inflationary circle gets tighter and the dollar buys less.

Problems of the Green Revolution

TWO OR THREE YEARS AGO general satisfaction was expressed over new techniques and new seeds which were bringing the promise of self-sufficiency in food production to some of the distressed areas of the world. The ranks of the have-nots were thinning as more of them learned improved agricultural methods which at least brought hope of physical sustenance to their peoples.

Now the green revolution in Asia is causing its own concern. It is producing surpluses in certain areas and problems of marketing are becoming critical. Thailand, says the UN Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East, is already showing anxiety over disposal of its 1970 rice crop and by the middle of this decade other Asian countries will be in competition for export markets.

This, of course, is a marked improvement over the age-old, tragic problem of starvation. But the production of crops in greater volume than can be consumed at home or sold economically elsewhere carries a warning not only to developing lands but to those already well advanced.

Canadian grain-growers will see no indication of relief from their present plight in the news that an increasing number of rice-growing countries are harvesting more than they can eat or sell. Quite obviously their surpluses are going to have an influence on the world market for foodstuffs — and predictably there will be less demand for Canadian wheat.

Liberals Gaining Campaign Strength

Purser

QUEBEC Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand and provincial Liberal leader Robert Bourassa are running strongly different campaigns for the April 29 election, with Mr. Bertrand on the defensive and Mr. Bourassa on the offensive. That was not the way Mr. Bertrand planned it. At the official start of his campaign, he attempted to avoid the natural defensive posture of a government originally elected by a majority of only four seats, and on a minority of the popular vote. He tried to take over the offensive by basing his campaign on the wickedness of Ottawa and the role of the provincial Liberal party as the federal government's stooge.

His most noteworthy platform plank was his threat to call an independence referendum in 1974 if a new Canadian constitution suitable to Quebec was not produced by then.

'Presidential Regime'

Mr. Bertrand coupled this with a promise to institute what he called a "presidential regime" in Quebec, but without the referendum that he had promised when he mentioned a similar scheme nearly a year ago. He would have the premier, known as "prime minister" in Quebec, become a president and be elected at large, and be able to enlist top aides from outside the ranks of those elected to the Assembly.

The referendum ultimatum placed the National Union in the bizarre position of being the only Quebec party to have a "compromise" position between the irreconcilable views of federalism and separatism and was one of Mr. Bertrand's continuing efforts to hold the federalist and nationalist wings of his own sharply divided party together.

Prime Minister Trudeau promptly retorted to the referendum gambit, saying he would not be influenced by separatist threats from "petty politicians in Quebec." Mr. Bertrand took this as an insult, and indicated that more of the same from Mr. Trudeau could induce him to seek an indepencence vote even earlier than 1974. He unfortunately made this remark during his campaign tour of strongly Creditiste and therefore fiercely anti-separatist northwest Quebec, turning an already tepid response downright apathetic and probably guaranteeing an NU write-off of the region.

Limited Appeal

Finding limited sales appeal in a halfway approach between federalism and separatism, he began to de-emphasize the referendum threat and stress his willingness to "gò to the limit for confederation," although without disavowing the four-year deadline.

By last week he was presenting strong defences of confederation and launching scathing attacks on PQ leader Rene Levesque.

Also, Mr. Bertrand took to playing Santa Claus, dropping local spending promises behind him wherever he went. His ministers and even prospective NU backbenchers have been doing the same.

At this stage, the NU has clearly reverted to the defensive against the onslaught besetting it from all sides.

The Liberals have meanwhile overcome a period of initial fumbling following their choice of a new leader, and the choice, 36-year-old Robert Bourassa, has overcome his political shyness. The Liberals are on the offensive, gleefully taking off on the NU's ambiguities on confederation and its Duplessis-style spending promises.

But they are carefully keeping their campaign based on its original themes of governmental incompetence and Quebec's economic needs. One suburban Montreal NU candidate, Real Gariepy, like Mr. Bourassa an economist, in attacking the Liberal leader's claim that he will create plentiful new jobs in Quebec if elected, pointed out that jobs depend on many things beyond the government's control — capital scarcity, high interest rates and social climate. But the Liberals believe the NU has much to do with the social climate, making it harder for Quebec to get what capital there is and to take advantage of what interest rates are the lowest.

Mr. Bourassa's number two man, Pierre Laporte, this week lit on a speech theme that he finds goes over well with Liberal audiences: a devastating spoof of the NU election slogan, "Quebec more than ever." Says Mr. Laporte:

"Quebec more than ever has known since June, 1966, an absolutely incompetent regime with the NU in power, and more than ever still, Quebec will know stagnation and indecision if it accords a new mandate to this government. The NU has chosen a slogan to its measure, because it perfectly describes its incapacity to manage Quebec effectively."

The Liberal slogan is "Quebec: on to work!" Liberals believe this pressing need cannot be served if Quebeckers become hypnotized by the separatist mirage, whose influence they are trying to head off while concentrating on the main NU enemy. Liberal newspaper advertisements in the French language press show a man sitting on a tree branch, sawing it off behind him, above the caption "Separatism: No!" The ads cite devalutation of a dollar detached from Canada's, fewer jobs or chances of advancement because of lack of new industries, and loss of such federal advantages as old age pensions, family allowances and unemployment insurance.

Liberal candidates are campaigning toughly, sensing that whether they get to form a majority government or not, the NU certainly won't. Mr. Laporte, for example, called Intergovernmental Affairs Minister Marcel Masse, a former member of the radical separatist Rassemblement pour l'Independence Nationale, the "minister of chicanery" through whose mouth the NU carries on sterile battle against Ottawa.

Stagnation Label

Albert Bosse, running in a hotly contested Montreal riding, called the NU regime one of stagnation, squandering and administrative anarchy. There are really two separatist groups, he said, the fanatical idealists of the PQ, and also the NU, profiteering from the former.

Claude Simard, Mr. Bourassa's brother-in-law and member of the shipbuilding family which dominates the riding in which he is running, said: "No serious accountant would dare sign the balance sheet presented by the NU ... Unemployment rises, investments fall, teachers are unpaid, and the government is at this point so indebted that the banks refuse to guarantee it."

Between Quebec's 8.7 per cent unemployment and the NU's openness to charges of crypto-separatism — which Mr. Bourassa now makes daily — the Liberal leader and his team are making hay. Of the two major parties, the Liberals look to be building toward the stronger close despite the NU's headline-catching opening.

Letters

Thanks to the P.M.

Our thanks to Prime Minister Trudeau for taking a stand with regard to Canada's sovereignty in the Arctic.

May I hope he will also make it plain that Canada's resources are Canada's resources and must remain so. If the U.S. tries, in retaliation, to injure our trade, let us remember that we also have weapons. The U.S. depends almost entirely on Canadian nickel and is heavily dependent on our pulp and paper, iron ore, and other strategic resources.

Re the proposed shipment of deadly gas from Okinawa: Would the prime minister consider that our country could set a moral example, greatly needed if life on this planet is to survive, by stating publicly that nowhere in the world should such hideous weapons be used or manufactured.

Along with the "nerve" gas, I include napalm, anti-personnel weapons, germ warfare, poison gas, chemical defoliants that starve a people and are causing deformed births, flame-throwers, and all the other hideous devices with which the U.S. now wages war on helpless whole populations. — M. E. Thibodeau, 1315 Bay.

Foreign Dominance

There is a myth that Canadians would be reduced to breadline existence if U.S. capital were withdrawn. On the contrary.

U.S. motive for investment and "aid" abroad is shown in a report of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs: "The most important reason is that other nations are determined to develop. Only by participating in that process shall we have an opportunity to direct their development along lines that will best serve our interests."

By their fruits ye shall know them. Says Canadian Dimension (Feb.-March '70): "The U.S. will still take $6 billion more from Latin America in profits than it gives in aid and capital — as has happened these last 10 years."

Coming home: Two-thirds of Canada's economy is already owned by the U.S., and more is being taken over every year. Between 1960 and '65 there was a capital flow of investment funds from the parent organization in the U.S. to their Canadian branches of just over $2 billion. In the same period the affiliates sent $3 billion home as dividends.

Foreign ownership will soon be generating enough impetus on its own to take over completely without having to import another nickel. Even now about 85 per cent of the new capital invested by foreign-owned corporations comes from their retained earnings on their Canadian operations and on borrowings in Canada.

They are buying us out with our own money, and our usual excuse for allowing it — timidity of Canadian capital — is not true. Frequently would-be Canadian investors don't invest in Canada because they are not permitted to do so. Most U.S. subsidiaries reserve their entire voting stock for the parent company — and now they're planning to take the rest of our resources quickly — as "continental!"

Shall we let them? National independence is impossible without economic independence.—Frances Wilcox.

Hurting Their Own Court-Reform Drive

Reston

THE Republicans have a new nominee for the Supreme Court of the United States — Judge Harry A. Blackmun — and a new "villain" on the Court itself, Justice William O. Douglas. Now that a majority of the Senate has said that Judges Haynesworth and Carswell are not qualified to sit on the Supreme Court, Vice President Agnew and the Republican leader in the House, Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan, are asking: "What about Justice Douglas?

The Vice-President has said on television that the question should at least be examined. Ford is leading what he calls a "broad-based bipartisan group" in the House to study the possibilities of instigating impeachment proceedings against Douglas.

The charge against him is that his latest book, "Points of Rebellion" is said to condone or predict or advocate violent revolution against an all-powerful American establishment which is indifferent to the problems of the poor.

"Our colleges and universities reflect primarily the interests of the establishment and the status quo ..." Douglas wrote. "On the one side are powerful lobbies such as the military-industrial complex, the agro-business lobby, and the highway lobby. These have powerful spokesmen. Opposed to them are the poor, the unemployed, and disemployed, and these are not well organized."

Accordingly, Douglas observes, "the use of violence as an instrument of persuasion is therefore inviting and seems to the discontented to be the only effective protest ... we must realize that today's establishment is the new George III. Whether it will continue to adhere to his tactics, we do not know. If it does, the redress, honored in tradition, is also revolution ..."

Now, this is a damn silly analogy — even sillier than suggesting that the universities, which are the centre of protest against the establishment, are somehow subservient to it. My colleague, William F. Buckley, Jr., and the other editors of the conservative magazine, National Review, are so incensed by these views that they have concluded that "Justice Douglas is clearly not qualified to retain his post on the Court," and this is apparently the conclusion of Ford and the others seeking impeachment proceedings.

Several points should be made about this. First, while the Constitution mentions "high crimes and misdemeanors" as grounds for impeachment, the tradition has been to impeach and convict only for grave criminal offences. Only 12 officers, most of them judges, have been impeached in our national history and only four of these have been convicted.

The only member of the Supreme Court to be impeached by the House was Samuel Chase, and he was acquitted by the Senate. Besides, there is very little chance that a House and Senate controlled by the Democrats would vote "articles of impeachment" against Douglas, and nobody knows this better than Ford or Agnew.

Political Ruse

The politics of the case are another matter. It is standard operating procedure for politicians of one party to divert attention from their own short-comings to the short-comings of the opposition, and in the short run, this tactic could turn the fire from Carswell and Haynsworth to Douglas, but in the long run this is probably very bad politics for the Republicans.

For unless they can actually impeach and convict Douglas, the only result of their action will be to strengthen his determination to say on the Court as long as he lives. There is a strong case, long advocated in this space, for a mandatory retirement provision on the Supreme Court at age 70, but the more the Court is politicized, the less chance there will be of getting such a provision or persuading Justice Black at 84, or Justices Harlan and Douglas at 71 to retire voluntarily.

What the Republicans have done by nominating two undistinguished judges, escalating the political battle over their confirmation with the Senate, and now crying impeachment at Douglas, is to postpone and hurt their chances of getting the more conservative Supreme Court the President wants.

Maybe Douglas's book is a misdemeanor if not a high crime — lots of them are these days — but the main result of Ford's campaign will merely be to increase the judge's royalties, and drag the Court deeper into the political pit.

Who Is U.S. Kidding About 'International Law'?

By JAMES EAYRS
Toronto Daily Star

The Trudeau government, after much equivocation, has at last moved to save the Arctic for Canada.

Here is a diplomatic feat of the sort to which Canadians have not been treated for as long as memory serves, executed with finesse and daring—if at the 11th hour.

Finesse is evident in its choice of means. Mr. Trudeau has refrained from trumpeting a unilateral declaration of sovereignty, in the manner of a Mussolini proclaiming the Mediterranean an Italian lake.

Nor has he enunciated a Trudeau Doctrine of the North, in the manner of a Monroe (or a Johnson) designating the Caribbean a U.S. protectorate.

Either technique would have been gunboat diplomacy — with only ice-breakers to back it up.

The government has proceeded more prosaically by placing before Parliament legislation which, when enacted, should have the same effect as a declaration of sovereignty without being so provocative.

Jurisdiction Repudiated

An Arctic Water Pollution Bill names the entire Arctic archipelago, with hundreds of thousands of square miles of surrounding sea and ice, as a region into which foreign interests, especially shipping, may venture only under Canadian control.

To forestall any possibility that the International Court of Justice might find this legislation contrary to international law, the Canadian government has repudiated the court's jurisdiction in disputes about pollution.

By embarking on this bold new tack, the government is obliged to sail into the wind of its predecessor's rhetoric.

Paul Martin, when secretary of state for external affairs, reserved his choicest platitudes to extol Canadas' devotion to the rule of law in world affairs. International law, he observed on one occasion, while not his mistress, was assuredly "my constant companion."

The government's unilateral initiative is admittedly a startling change in Canadian diplomatic style. It may even be portrayed as an attempt to align Canada with the forces of international anarchy against the forces of international order.

No International Sheriff

The U.S. State Department has its own, not terribly opaque, reasons for trying to foist this interpretation upon any who might listen. That does not excuse Conservative and New Democratic Party leaders for lending their support to such a travesty.

For travesty it is. By the golden rule of international adjudication, no government need accept the jurisdiction of the World Court.

Mr. Trudeau, as a former professor of law, ought to understand this rule; his remarks about Canada's being "hauled up" before the court suggest he needs a refresher course. Canada can't be hauled up before the court, no more than the U.S. or the U.S.S.R., for there's no international sheriff to do the hauling up.

An apparent exception is the "optional clause" by which states agree to accept the jurisdiction of the court in disputes with other states which have likewise agreed to accept the jurisdiction of the court. It is more apparent than real.

Only a third of the United Nations' members have signed the optional clause, less than a third of that third have signed without some sort of reservation.

The United States took no chances, It reserved everything when signing, starting with immigration ("I do not favor and I shall not vote," Tom Connally of Texas intoned from the Senate floor, "to make it possible for the International Court of Justice to decide whether a question of immigration to our shores is a domestic question or an international question"), moving on to tariffs, trade, the Panama Canal, finally throwing in for good measure all disputes "essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of the United States" — empowering itself to decide just what these might be.

Washington is the last capital in the world with the right to criticize another for withdrawing from the court's domain — especially the domain of pollution, where international law is undeveloped and ill-prepared.

Bringing the Arctic under world law may seem a civilizing mission, but it's nothing of the kind. The rule of law is fine for national communities. Their subjects are citizens, not states.

'Crude But Tolerable'

It's fair to treat citizens as equal under law for they're more or less equal in real life — roughly the same height, roughly the same weight, with roughly the same senses and, if they set their minds to it, the ability to kill any of their fellows.

By ignoring differences among them, by being disrespectful of persons, the law renders crude but tolerable justice. The rule of law isn't everything in life; but one has only to live without it for a while — in South Africa, the Soviet Union, jail — to know it means a lot in life.

In international society the rule of law makes for miscarriages of justice. The subjects there aren't citizens but states. Heterogeneity is the order of their order.

States differ in size, in power, in circumstances and, no matter how they set their minds to it, can't destroy the victim of their choice; only a couple of superpowers exercise that prerogative, and no longer against each other. Every case is a special case, every case a hard case.

The U.S. State Department worries lest Canada's claim to her archipelagic ocean will touch off Indonesia's claim to its archipelagic ocean; and so on around the world.

Obsessed by Dominoes

This is a natural fear in a foreign office obsessed by falling dominoes. But the Beaufort Sea is not the Java Sea, Ottawa is not Jakarta. The cause of international law — as distinct from the cause of Standard Oil of New Jersey — is not well served by pretending that they are.

"Lawyers in the West," observes Richard A. Falk — one of the ablest students of the law of nations — "have a tendency to assume that the most worthwhile way to enhance the rule of law in world affairs is to strengthen the World Court and, more broadly, to expand the role of international adjudication . . . by a slavish imitation of law devices that have proved successful in domestic societies." But it hasn't worked — and won't.

Seldom do governments change a policy for one reason alone. The Trudeau government is no exception. Its new high posture Arctic policy has several ends in view.

One is to protect the Arctic eco-system — its people, fauna, flora, and the delicate balance among them — from the disaster of some unnatural calamity such as a super-tanker's oil spill.

The U.S. State Department insists it is no less concerned about "the dangers to marine environment in the absence of international guarantees to protect against pollution." Fine words, but action speaks much louder.

An administration genuinely concerned about the dangers to marine environment would not set off nuclear weapons in the Aleutian Islands, risking tidal wave and hydroquake.

America has done little enough to protect itself from the plundering of those to whom the buck comes first. Why should it all of a sudden be so solicitous about the environment in another country — unless it regards it as an extension of its own?

A second objective is to protect the Arctic from hasty and unregulated economic development disfiguring the northern snows with dark Satanic mills.

"We may well see 25 to 30 super-tankers operating across the top of the continent during the '70s," Standard Oil predicted as the Manhattan completed her maiden voyage, "and if Arctic oil can be shipped in quantity through the Northwest Passage, so can iron, zinc, lead, copper, nickel and asbestos. They have only to be unearthed and delivered. The sleeping Arctic could become a very busy place."

Old Liberal Standby

A place fit for heroes of free enterprise to live in, but maybe not for native sons.

Thirdly, a new version of the Northern Vision. The care and nurture of our Arctic inheritance against the depredations of foreign buccaneers could become a cause for all Canadians.

Mackenzie King used British neo-colonialism to foster national unity. It is an old Liberal party standby . . . Mr. Trudeau will find it none the worse for that. In our clear and present danger it is none the worse for that.

The Ear: Miracle of Evolutionary Engineering

By NIGEL CALDER
New Statesman

The snailshell of the inner ear would make a good badge for anti-noise campaigns like CHAOS (Close Heathrow Airport on Sundays).

The cochlea detects the sounds, welcome and unwelcome, that we hear. For technologists who stop to consider it, rather than assail it with yet more pressure waves, the cochlea has always been profoundly impressive.

20,000 Hair Cells

Within a coiled tube which, if it were straightened out, would be little more than an inch long, some 20,000 'hair cells' instantly sort out all the variations in loudness and pitch and send the appropriate nerve signals to the brain.

They can do so even if the membrane carrying them moves no more than a few million-millionths of an inch. And when we identify the direction of a sound, we are relying on our two ears to register times of arrival to within a ten-thousandth of a second.

Altogether, the cochlea is a little miracle of evolutionary engineering.

Yet a metal tube shaped like a large letter C, filled with water and held against the tummy, turns out to be a good model for showing how the human ear works. The tube, fitted with a membrane of decreasing stiffness, represents a portion of the cochlea.

Vibrations fed in at one end of the tube are felt only at one point of the skin of the tummy; change the frequency, analogously to altering the pitch of a heard sound, and the felt vibration moves around the tube to another part of the tummy.

This curious experiment is cited by the leading authority on ear mechanisms, Georg von Bekesy, in the course of an argument about the detection of pitch.

Forty years ago, as a young post-office telephone engineer in Budapest, Von Bekesy was moved to investigate the ear. He then had to wait a third of a century for his discoveries to be recognized with a Nobel prize, but he continued his researches in Budapest, Stockholm and Boston.

Today, in his seventies, Von Bekesy is in Honolulu, still groping for a fuller understanding of human hearing, and playing with stroboscopes and curved metal tubes like any young post-doctoral.

Step Up Pressure

And in the current issue of Nature he responds, in his forthright style, to suggestions about how the ear is tuned from another Nobel prizewinner, Andrew Huxley of London.

Altogether, the ear works as follows: Sound waves, gathered by the flappy bits on the side of the head, tap lightly on the eardrum. Lever-like bones in the middle ear step up the pressure twenty-fold as they transmit the vibrations to the cochlea, in the inner ear.

The cochlea consists of a coiled tube that is partitioned along most of its length by a double membrane progressively increasing in thickness.

The vibrations are fed in at one side of the membrane and 'escape' at the other.

Pressure on the membrane produces a slippage between its two layers. The sensitive hair cells lie sandwiched between the layers and are thereby stretched. That causes them to fire off their signals to the brain where another, more complex story of perception and interpretation begins.

Prod Membrane

What is most remarkable, to the engineering eye, is the way that incoming vibrations of different pitch seem to prod at different points along the membrane, stimulating different groups of cells.

The simplest analogy is with a harp: it's as if each tone is registered on the string with which it resonates. But experiments by Von Bekesy seemed to rule that out, as a good analogy, because the vibration travels right along the membrane itself.

Last year, Huxley ventured to revive the resonance theory, albeit rather tentatively, but Von Bekesy is not having it.

His chief objection is that simple resonance is just far too slow, in building up and dissipating energy.

There must be no hesitation, no attempt to store energy, in Von Bekesy's opinion. He sees the waves travelling steadily down the membrane of the cochlea, like ripples down a canal, and being suppressed at the far end.

But the stiffness of the membrane changes along its length, and waves of a given pitch achieve a maximum vibration at a particular point, which is different for each frequency perceptible to the ear.

The snail-like shape of the cochlea seems to be no casual whim of evolution; the curvature may well be a supplementary aid to sharp tuning, by changing the direction in which the sensitive cells are stretched.

This denial of any accumulation of energy during the detection of a sound only reinforces the grounds for amazement at the sensitivity of the ear.

The Auditor-General Fuss

By DOUGLAS FISHER

A fuss in the Commons last week broadened into an uproar and, almost certainly, a major issue which could embarrass the Trudeau government.

Several cabinet ministers in recent weeks have taken cuts outside the Commons at the activity of the auditor-general. The two ministers are important figures: Donald Macdonald, Government House Leader, and Bud Drury, president of the Treasury Board.

The issue is not a new one; it has flared up before. Once back in the 1890s. It has been building up in recent years, perhaps since 1960 when the present auditor-general, Max Henderson, succeeded Watson Sellar.

What is the issue? Whether Parliament can effectively control the methods of spending of the government by calling the offenders or the boobs on the mat and getting a complete explanation without impinging on the prerogatives of the executive.

★ ★ ★

Maxwell Henderson came to his task from the CBC where, the story goes, he was angry and hurt over the fact he was not elevated to one of the top two or three posts in the corporation. Evidence to support this story was provided by the fierce way Mr. Henderson has gone after the CBC year after year.

Mr. Henderson is an accountant, a profession he qualified for in 1929. He had much experience in private business before he became CBC comptroller in 1957.

It is almost sacrilegious to say it about someone as stiffly upright and studiously neutral as Mr. Henderson, but he has been considered a Tory by many of the senior bureaucrats and they do not forget it was John Diefenbaker who appointed him.

The first auditor-general was appointed in 1878. It is fair to say the office did not really attain the dignity and repute it now has until the appointment of Watson Sellar as the Second World War began. In the post-war years, his record of gaffes, oversights and unauthorized or improperly authorized spending became an annual highlight of the parliamentary year.

★ ★ ★

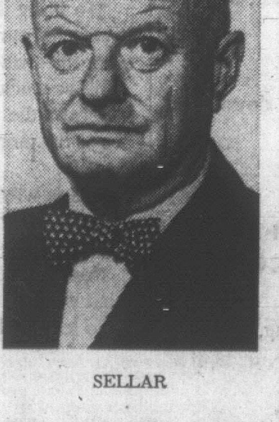
Sellar was a dignified, salty, bulldog type, favorably known as a fellow mandarin by the cadre of excellent senior officials Mackenzie King had developed before the war. He made his cases. They got a bit of an airing and faded into limbo.

There was no extensive follow-up and the Parliamentary Committee of Public Accounts, a very ancient committee by Canadian standards, give him a forum some years.

But it has been more difficult for a government not to get the committee going since 1958 when Mr. Diefenbaker began the tradition of having an Opposition member as chairman of the Public Accounts Committee and having the printed, annual public accounts and the auditor-general's report referred to it.

The idea emerged that had been implicit for years in the office; that the auditor-general was the servant of Parliament and the continuing adviser of the committee.

Now, to go back to the 1890s. Then, there was an auditor-general by the name of McDougall who successively got into trouble with Tory and Grit administrations. He was accused of "arrogating to himself powers and responsibilities that were never contemplated by Parliament."



SELLAR

Norman Ward in his book, The Public Purse, describes the McDougall situation. It sounds remarkably like today's.

"It was undoubtedly true that McDougall had interpreted his powers in a generous and even extravagant manner. He was tactless; . . . quick to suspect wrongdoing; and possessor of a gift for writing irritating letters to civil servants that many citizens would be glad to have today.

" . . . His reports were so detailed, and contained so many items, which, to Opposition members who had to seek re-election as often as government members, cried out to be exploited in their party's interests, that the committee can hardly be blamed for raking them up as it did, particularly when the auditor-general was continually drawing attention to his report and urging its use."

One reason why the office faded into the background for years until Sellar resurrected its powers and repute was because McDougall was knocked back and his activities lingered in the executive memories for a long time.

★ ★ ★

In his first year, Mr. Henderson began the practice of a documented followup of the recommendations of the Public Accounts Committee on each of the paragraphs in the auditor-general's report.

This became more and more of a box score of government refusal to consider the recommendations. He and the committee began to dig into Crown corporations.

The committee has supported him year after year in his view that he needs a freer hand in manning his establishment and in issuing detailed reports to the various departments and agencies in order to improve their internal accounting practices and to give "suggestions regarding . . . savings that might be achieved."

Election Seen In Saskatchewan

REGINA (CP) — An election possibly in the offing, Saskatchewan legislature members wound up their 1970 session Saturday after 45 days of deliberation on items including a record $405,100,000 deficit budget and range of problems besetting agriculture.

The prorogation was presided over by Dr. Stephen Worobetz, a Saskatoon physician handling his first session as lieutenant-governor.

Legislation was approved during the session lowering the age for legal drinking to 19 years from 21, effective Saturday, April 17; increasing the provincial surcharge on income tax to 6 per cent from 5 and redistributing electoral boundaries, raising the number of constituencies to 60 from 59.

The latter move eased the way for a possible general election call this year by Premier Ross Thatcher. But his Liberal government, in office since 1967, theoretically need not call an election until as late as 1972 and has given no definite indications.

Members of the New Democratic Party opposition leaving the legislature were preparing already for a July 2-4 convention in Regina where they are to choose a successor to Woodrow Lloyd, who will not be a candidate for reelection to the party leadership.

The union was commenting on a similar recommendation by the federal standing committee on agriculture which was ignored by Ottawa.

The committee had urged "in the strongest possible terms that the government consider maintaining the dairy support programs at the 1969-70 level for 1970-71, namely $125,000,000" but it was trimmed to $115,000,000.

Four Die On Prairies

At least four persons died accidentally on the Prairies during the weekend, all in traffic.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday night local times showed two deaths occurred in Alberta and one each in Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

In Alberta, Tillie Belkin, 84, of Calgary, was hit by a car as she was crossing a city street Saturday night.

Donald Robert Jones, 25, of Okotoks, died Saturday in a single-vehicle accident about 15 miles south of Calgary.

In Saskatchewan, Jacob Deptuch, 65, a farmer in the Meath Park area, was killed when his half-ton truck hit a concrete abutment of an overpass near Prince Albert.

Phillip Goresky, 19, of Stonewall, Man., was killed Saturday night when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a car near Stoney Mountain.

Enzler brought the Cessna 172 down on the highway, taxied to the pump and topped up, then took off again. Police rushing to the scene to assist his takeoff were too late.

We believed that most people knew almost as much about us as we know about ourselves.

And since our business is service, service for everybody, however big or small their financial needs might be, we feel it's time to tell everybody about ourselves.

To tell you what we are, we have to tell you what we aren't.

We're not a bank.

We're certainly not an insurance company.

We're not even a stock market investment house.

We do offer services that you might get at any of these, true.

However, none can offer the combination of services we offer.

This is what makes us different.

You might say we provide one-stop care for all your financial affairs.

Here's proof you don't have to be rich to tap the stock market.

We pool the money of hundreds of people like yourself in our Equity Investment Fund.

Then we have our own stock analysts invest it in Blue Chip stocks where the sweetest action is.

They can do it right because they're professionals who study the market day after day, week after week, year in and year out.

They even study each company's management.

Its competition. Its product.

Everything affecting the company's money-making potential.

And they buy a variety of stocks.

Oils. Mines. Banks. Pulp and paper. Electronics.

That's so your eggs won't all be in one basket.

As the stocks rise in value your share of the pool increases in equal value.

And it works beautifully.

If you had started using this plan seven years ago,* you would have more than doubled your money by now.

Because the value of your money moves with the economy, this is a good way to protect your savings against inflation.

And there are no salesmen's commissions to pay.

Sound interesting? Just call us.

The government makes the tax rules. Use them and save some money.

You can save up to $2,500 a year of your earned income, watch your money grow, and still have control of it.

The government says in effect "Plan now for your retirement, and we'll allow you to pay as much as $2,500 into a registered retirement savings plan. And we won't tax you on it".

So you merely lower your taxable income by investing up to $2,500 in one of our registered retirement savings plans.

You save on tax.

You can get your money out too.

And it's not dead. It grows.

For instance, suppose you have invested in our Equity Retirement Plan just seven years ago.*

By now your money would have more than doubled.

That's definitely not dead money.

We also offer you an alternative plan, which guarantees a rate of interest established each year.

When you withdraw your money from your plan, you have to pay taxes on it at that time. But this is exactly what's most important.

You pay tax on the money when you choose to pay it.

This had led some to call the plan a tax shelter.

One fellow we know paid into it for five years, watched it grow, then took the bundle out and used it to replace a normal income while he lazed in Majorca for six months.

If you care to, you can leave it in until you retire for good.

Either way, it's an excellent plan for you.

It's especially valuable because we don't have a lot of salesmen out making calls, therefore, you don't have to pay high sales commissions.

All you have to do is call us.

Here's an investment that pays more than savings bonds. And it's guaranteed just as solid.

It's called a guaranteed investment certificate.

It's something like a savings bond, and as easy to buy.

All you do is leave some money with us for a certain time. We guarantee to pay you a specified interest during that time.

The government guarantees it too.

So you feel good about two things.

First, there's this no-risk guaranteed interest.

Then there's the interest rate itself.

You can usually earn close to 2% more than in a regular savings account, depending on how long you want to leave your money in.

And you get interest on your interest.

When you buy a guaranteed investment certificate, you choose how much money you want to invest, and for how long.

It can be for a minimum of one year.

Or for two, three, four, or five years.

Once you've got it, the rate can't move down, left, right, forward or backward.

Like we said, it's guaranteed.

Wouldn't you like to have one?

Your will and your estate. In simple words, short sentences and plain English.

Despite the importance of proper planning, countless people continue to leave their estates in a shambles.

The usual objection is that they're "too busy" to plan.

This is ironic.

For these are so often the kind of people who work so hard to be responsible and to provide for their loved ones.

We usually find there is a deeper cause for not taking action, however.

It's superstition.

Some of the most sophisticated people feel that if they make up a will they'll automatically die.

So they put it off.

This is a shame.

Because it's nothing but black cats and broken mirrors.

We have hundreds of clients who took the step, and they're still living happily on.

Because they know they've done the right thing.

So why don't you do it too?

We have a free booklet that tells about your will and your estate, in simple words, short sentences and plain English.

Come in and pick one up.

Last, but not least, simple savings and chequing accounts.

This is a good way to get started with Canada Trust.

And there's no mystery about it. You'll find we have all the familiar things. Like tellers and deposit slips and withdrawal slips and cheques.

We have some unfamiliar things too. Like sewing kits and rain bonnets for the ladies. Balloons and road fun books for the kids.

Getting started is easy.

Just walk in and open an account at any of our eighty branches across Canada. You'll feel right at home.

Our history dates further back than Eaton's, Imperial Oil and Canadian Pacific.

We go back a bit further to 1864.

To early spring in London, Ontario.

To a time when 25 pioneer businessmen gathered in the room above MacFie's Store and founded the company that is now Canada Trust.

The original idea born at that meeting still lives on in our present company philosophy:

"To bring the maximum amount of energy and intelligence to bear on the project in order to most effectively serve the client."

We've stuck to it rigidly throughout the century.

It can't die. It just keeps getting better.

For the more we grow, the more service we are able to provide.

This is why we're now one of Canada's largest trust companies, with more branches coast to coast than anyone else.

Now you know who we are, where we've been, and what we do.

So let's do business.

THE CONCRETE jungle of downtown Montreal continues the upward and outward growth of its Manhattan neighbor 340 miles south—at a glance who can tell the difference? But to be fair, the cluster of white faced buildings at lower centre have not yet been built. Destined for St. Catherine Street opposite Place des Arts (lower right), $100 million Place des Jardins will include a hotel among its towers framing a new square. (CP Wirephoto)

Air Canada Plans To Drop Flights

EDMONTON (CP) — Air Canada will drop its Edmonton-Calgary-Lethbridge flights effective July 1, Jack Cronin, public relations officer for the airline says.

Mr. Cronin said the daily four flights to and from international airport here will be discontinued in line with the federal government's regional air policy announced last fall.

Edmonton Industrial Airport manager Les Marchant said the move will mean additional flights by Pacific Western Airlines, which already has applied to the Canadian Transport Commission to take over the Calgary-Lethbridge run.

Times-Mirror Seeks Control of Newsday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Times-Mirror Co., publisher of the Los Angeles Times, says it has reached an agreement to acquire a controlling interest in Newsday Inc., publisher of the largest suburban newspaper in the United States.

Terms of the proposed acquisition agreed on by Times-Mirror management and Harry F. Guggenheim, 79, president and majority stockholder of the Long Island, N.Y., newspaper, were not released.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Grain quotes Monday, basis Lakehead.

Trade rallied near the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today with most of the operation in oilseeds and rye.

Rapeseed posted gains in a light offering to exporters and local and commission houses while flax showed strength in a domestic market.

Oats and barley also drew a domestic trade with rye receiving some exporter interest.

Confirmation was received of the sale of 170,000 bushels of rapeseed to the continent and 45,000 to Britain.

Big Money Operators Looking to Mutual Funds

NEW YORK (AP) — Mutual funds, once the symbol of the economic power of the small investor, are becoming more and more a hunting ground for big money purchasers.

Orders of $25,000 and above accounted for 42.2 per cent of the dollar value of all mutual fund purchases in the United States last year—some $2,800,000,000 out of the approximately $6,700,000,000 market, according to a survey by the Investment Company Institute, a non-profit association representing the industry.

Institutional and other investor purchases of $199,000 or more represented 19.8 per cent, or almost half the big money purchases, ICI figures show.

A decade ago, big money purchases represented a fair lesser amount, "perhaps 25 per cent," of the market, says John Bogle, chairman of the institute's board of governors. Exact figures are not available.

The small investor's relative dollar share of the mutual fund market has declined, not because he is buying less, but rather because the big investor is buying more, ICI economist Norman Mains pointed out.

DOMINATES INDUSTRY

In terms of sheer numbers, however, the small investor still dominates the industry, he said.

One of the reasons for the big money interest is that mutual funds now are being merchandised with the large investor in mind.

'FOREIGNERS MAY BUY ROLLS-ROYCE'

LONDON (CP) — Sir Max Aitken, chairman of Beaverbrook Newspapers Ltd., says Rolls-Royce Ltd., which he calls "a great national institution," may fall into non-British hands unless it obtains cash for development.

The company, which makes aircraft engines as well as cars, "could be taken over by the Americans, even by the Italians," the Montreal-born publisher says in an article published by the Beaverbrook Sunday Express.

He argues that the British government should lend money to the company.

Aitken, son of the late Lord Beaverbrook, adds that if Rolls-Royce goes foreign "it will be a disaster for the nation."

Peterson Urged To Seize Co-op Records

VANCOUVER (CP) — Shareholders of Canadian Plywood Corporation Ltd. have asked Attorney-General Leslie Peterson to seize all records of the company, following its closure by new American owners and seizure by the department of revenue.

Harry Fan, a Vancouver lawyer acting for 200 of the 308 shareholders, Sunday asked Mr. Peterson in a telegram to appoint a receiver for the company.

The company, formed as a co-operative two years ago and sold in a share transaction last November to the Goldfield Corp. a Delaware-based firm with mining interests, Saturday was seized for unpaid income tax of $120,000 for the past year.

Operations of the firm, based on Annacis Island in nearby New Westminster, were halted by Goldfield a week ago because of a lack of operating capital.

STOCK SUSPENDED

Goldfield itself was suspended from trading on the New York Stock Exchange two weeks ago after issuing shares to Canadian Plywood shareholders, Mr. Fan said. Its stock fell from $6 a share to about $4 by the time of suspension.

Canadian Plywood was formed by 308 shareholders, each putting in $7,500 and holding a job with the firm, and exchanged for an equivalent value of Goldfield shares. Fan said those trying to sell their Goldfield shares have recovered only about $2,000 apiece and have no way of recovering the rest.

Some of the shares were withheld when Godfield stock started dropping on the New York exchange and the second issue of shares was not properly registered, resulting in the trading suspension, he said.

Part of the sale agreement was that shareholders retain jobs with the company for five years. The firm was sold because it had not made a profit in its two years of operation as a co-operative.

The unpaid tax sought by the federal government is for deductions from salaries during the past year. The sum was one of the firm's liabilities accepted by Goldfield in the sale, Fan said.

Bathurst

Consolidated-Bathurst Ltd. reports first-quarter 1970 earnings of $1.9 million or 19 cents a common share, compared with $2.8 million or 34 cents for the same period in 1969.

The company said a slowdown in the Canadian economy has resulted in lower sales and earnings for all its domestic activities.

BCFP

B.C. Forest Products Ltd. had first-quarter net earnings of $1.2 million compared with $2.7 million for the corresponding period of 1969.

President Ian A. Barclay told the annual meeting that lower prices for lumber and plywood and substantially higher sales costs contributed to the decrease in earnings.

Net sales for the three-month period were $32 million, a decrease of $300,000 from the same period last year.

Barclay said depressed levels are likely to continue until monetary policies permit the restricted demand for housing to be met.

Coast Copper

First quarter results of Coast Copper Ltd. show net earnings of $336,000 (11 cents a share) compared with a $156,000 loss (26 cents) in the same period a year ago.

Revenue to March 31 totalled $2.1 million, against $742,000 in the 1969 period.

The outlook is better and ore reserves have improved. Milling rate increased from 660 tons to 850 tons per day, 85 per cent from new workings.

But president J. H. Salter warns that white paper tax proposals pose a serious threat to profitability.

Texaco Canada

Texaco Canada Ltd. reports 1969 net income of $23 million or $2.36 a share, up from $20.76 million or $2.12 the previous year.

Net income for 1969 included $1.76 million from the sale of an office building and land in Toronto.

At year-end, Texaco's land holdings totalled 3.5 million acres, of which 2.2 million were in the Northwest Territories. In 1968, the company held 3.3 million acres.

Chemcell

Chemcell Limited's net income for the first quarter of 1970 was $1.78 million or 12 cents per common share, a decline of 28 per cent from $2.46 million or 17 cents per share in the same quarter last year.

Sales for the quarter were $28.97 million, down 5 per cent from last year's $30.55 million.

Free-for-All Developing Over Oil

By DAN MORGAN

VIENNA (WP) — A free-for-all over the pattern of oil and natural gas supplies for years to come is under way in East and West Europe, from the North Sea to the tip of the Adriatic.

Though the race for markets and new suppliers is still in progress, some general conclusions are already being drawn from the manoeuvring.

In the energy field, the Soviet Union is assured of scoring its first really major economic penetration of Western Europe. Soviet planners have announced their intention to continue oil exports to the West at present levels despite extraction and transport difficulties connected with the new finds in western Siberia.

And huge contracts for supplying natural gas to Italy, Austria and West Germany have already been signed, to the dismay of Western competitors.

Though predicting oil output of 470 million tons by 1975, the Soviet Union has given its East European allies the green light to investigate non-Soviet oil sources.

CONSUMPTION UP

Despite the rich Siberian reserves, Soviet output is not years, while East European consumption (now about 40 million tons a year) is likely to increase three or four times by 1980, and Soviet consumption is rising almost as fast. Barring unusually big capital investment in the development of the new Siberian finds, the Soviet Union may in fact become a net importer of oil by 1980, some think.

The five-year plans now in preparation or completed throughout Eastern Europe are likely to include suggestions for diminishing the almost total dependence on Soviet oil to date, though not dramatically.

The 1970s may be the decade of pipeline diplomacy in Europe. Czechoslovakia, Poland and Hungary have all expressed interest to Yugoslavia in a big joint pipeline project for transporting oil from the northern Yugoslav port in Rijeka.

The bulk of the oil being delivered there would be from Libya, Iraq and Iran—countries with which Yugoslavia has good relations.

Scoring Burst Propels Blues Past Penguins

ST. LOUIS (CP) — Coach Red Kelly blamed a brief letdown by his Pittsburgh Penguins in the second period for their 3-1 loss to St. Louis Blues in the first game of the Stanley Cup semi-final Sunday night.

"We had a five-minute letdown and that was the game right there," Kelly said after the penalty-filled game. "It started with the power play."

The power play that killed the Penguins came early in the second period. Gary Sabourin of the Blues was off for charging when the Penguins also took a minor penalty.

Sabourin stepped out of the penalty box, took a quick pass from Jean-Guy Talbot and fired a hard shot from 30 feet out to beat goalie Les Binkley.

Centre Phil Goyette made it 2-0 less than a minute later when he backhanded the puck past Binkley from a goal-mouth scramble, and centre Red Berenson completed the rout when he swatted in a bouncing puck.

Ken Schinkel scored the lone Pittsburgh goal early in the third period when he got the puck at the side of the net with goalie Glenn Hall out of position and fired into the open goal.

FIGHTS BREAK OUT

The Blues, National Hockey League West Division champions, held the Penguins in check for most of the game and climbed on the Pittsburgh squad in several fights during the scoreless first period.

"They were trying to intimidate us right off the bat," said Kelly.

"That Noel Picard tried to run over our little men, Picard never picks on anyone his own size."

Picard tangled with the Penguins' Jean Pronovost in the first minute of the game and the ensuing battle saw four players go to the penalty box, Picard among them with a five-minute major.

Another fight erupted midway through the period near the Pittsburgh nets and four players went off with majors—Jim Roberts and Ab McDonald of the Blues, and Tracy Pratt and Bryan Hextall of the Penguins.

A third scrap in the last minute of the period saw Hextall go off again with a minor, major and an automatic misconduct while Barclay Plager of the Blues got a minor and major.

The game took a quieter tone after that with no further battles until the final buzzer, when several scuffles broke out and another handful of majors and misconducts were handed out.

In all, referee Art Skov assessed 134 minutes in penalties.

"I don't know why we started fighting so early," Picard said in the dressing room. "I think the guys were a little tense."

He said Pronovost had given him a high stick which seemed to start the first fight. Pronovost wound up shirtless and Picard took a slight cut on the bridge of his nose in the scrap.

"It was a hard-hitting game," said Bob Plager of the Blues. "We were feeling each other out early. The next game is a big one for us and a bigger one for them."

The next game will be here Tuesday with the teams moving to Pittsburgh for the third game Thursday and the fourth Sunday. A fifth game, if necessary, would be back here the following Tuesday.

Hall, appearing in his 109th Stanley Cup playoff game before a crowd of 16,849, put on a strong performance for the Blues, stopping 24 shots, many of them dangerous drives from close in.

SMITH SIDELINED

Binkley took the loss despite making 30 saves. On the Pittsburgh bench as backup netminder was Joe Daley, called up from Baltimore of the American Hockey League. He replaced Al Smith, the Penguins' other regular goalie who stayed in bed with the measles.

The Penguins otherwise were at full strength as were the Blues who are favored to win the series because of their domination over second-place Pittsburgh during the regular season.

Boston Ace Scores Three; Chicago Club Disorganized

By The Canadian Press

CHICAGO (CP)—Phil Esposito was the hero and his kid brother Tony was the victim of the heroics Sunday as Boston Bruins took the home-ice advantage away from Chicago Black Hawks.

The Bruins defeated Chicago 6-3 in the first game of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup hockey semi-final.

The second game goes here Tuesday night, then the series switches to Boston for two games.

Esposito scored three of the Bruins' six shots that eluded brother Tony.

The first was a backhander and Phil said "I could have passed off, but the ice was bad."

"I don't terrorize anybody with my backhand—nor with my forehand for that matter."

Esposito scored both goals to send Boston into the second period leading 2-0. When the Bruins came out of that period, they were ahead 4-2 and Esposito had a triple, his second of the playoffs.

The other Boston goals came from Johnny Bucyk, John McKenzie and Ken Hodge.

Dennis Hull, Jim Pappin and Stan Mikita scored for Chicago.

Phil Esposito said he was "concerned about him," when he saw Tony felled by a puck fired by Hodge. The goalie was patched up and continued in the game.

"I don't like to see anybody get hurt, especially my brother," Phil said.

Tony said he was "stunned for a moment," but didn't blame the first-period injury for his poor play.

Billy Reay Blames Loose Play

"I was just lousy," Tony said.

For the rookie goalie, winner of the Vezina Trophy and holder of the modern shutout record at 15, it was his worst peppering since Minnesota North Stars got to him for eight goals during a regular-season game.

Chicago coach Billy Reay had his own theory about his team's loose, unco-ordinated play.

"We were like the referee and weren't very alert," Reay said.

"We sat around here for a week and everyone was telling them how great they were and that's just how they played—thinking they were great. Boston is a great hockey club. We must have had eight shots in the first period before they got one. But their's went in and that's what counts."

Phil Esposito said after the game it didn't matter who he was shooting against "when there's money riding on it."

LOBS PUCK

He said his first goal went in off his brother, the second was along the ice—"any time I get a pass from Bobby Orr I shoot"—and on the third goal "Tony came out, he always does, and he expected me to shoot hard, but I lobbed it over his shoulder."

Boston coach Harry Sinden was elated that his club got the opening-game jump on the Hawks.

"We hoped to get through the first period no more than a goal behind and we were hoping for a tie. Then we jump in front by two goals. When you can kill off a couple of penalties early in the game like we did, it gives you a big lift."

Two of Boston's goals came on the power play; Chicago got one while the Bruins were short-handed.

Boston was fresh from its six-game war with New York Rangers in the eastern semi-final. Chicago appeared disorganized after the week-long layoff which resulted after they defeated Detroit Red Wings in four consecutive games.

Derek Sanderson, target of the capacity crowd most of the night, said later; "I don't know how many face-offs I got."

LOST COUNT

"I counted 18 in the first period and then quit counting. If you win every face-off, you're going to win the game because you are in control of the puck."

But it was the brother-against-brother element that caught the imagination of the capacity house.

Not since Ken and Terry Reardon met in the 1946 Stanley Cup series had brothers faced each other in playoff action.

The last time a goalie was involved in a Stanley Cup brother act was in 1929 when Tiny Thompson guarded the Boston net against brother Paul, a forward with New York Rangers.

Sunday's action gave Esposito nine goals and four assists for 13 points to lead the eastern Stanley Cup scorers. Teammate Bobby Orr has 12 points on seven goals and five assists.

Bobby Hull is top man for Chicago with 11 points on three goals and eight assists.

Gerry Cheevers went the route in goal for Boston, handling 35 shots to the 30 attempts on Tony Esposito.

Phil Esposito's triple was his second of the playoffs so far. The last player to get two in one playoff was Norm Ullman with Detroit in 1964. Esposito's three career triples ties him for second in playoff action with Ullman and Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal Canadiens. Only Maurice Richard, with seven, has more.

MILLER BARBER
. . . collects $25,000

Second-Hole Bird Winner for Miller

NEW YORK (AP)—Veteran Miller Barber ran in a pressure-packed 12-foot birdie putt on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff today and won the $25,000 first prize in the Greater New Orleans Open golf tournament.

Barber defeated 44-year-old Howie Johnson and New Zealand left hander Bob Charles, each of whom parred both holes. Charles and Johnson each received $11,575.

The sudden-death playoff was forced when the three finished the regulation 72 holes at 278, 10 under par on the Lakewood Country Club course, in Sunday's weather-plagued final round.

Johnson, a non-winner since 1959, had to scramble for his par-4 on the first hole. He topped his second shot and was 30 yards short of the green. But he chipped to four feet and made it while Barber and Charles had regulation two-putt pars.

Charles, who came out of the pack with a final-round 67, put his tee shot on No. 2 into the woods on the left. Barber and Johnson both drove to the fairway and were short in two on the par side.

Charles chipped back to the fairway and was on in three, some 40 feet away. He missed it.

Johnson and Barber chipped on, with Johnson away about 17 feet. He lipped it out before Barber holed the winner.

It was the fifth tour victory for the 39-year-old bachelor and his first since the rain-abbreviated Kaiser International in January, 1969.

The playoff trio had only a one-stroke edge.

Lou Graham, who had a shot at first place until the final crucial holes, finished back at 279.

Third-round leader George Archer entered Sunday's play 11 strokes under par but skied to a 76 and fifth.

Grouped in sixth place at 282 were Masters champion Billy Casper, Jim Colbert, Dave Stockton, Gary Player and Rod Curl.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg shot a 72 Sunday after 69 Saturday and finished with 284 total. He won $1,813. Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver shot a 75 Sunday after a 74 Saturday and had a 290 total, good for $275.

WHO'S ON FIRST?

Umpires had problem at Atlanta Sunday as members of Braves and Los Angeles Dodgers dash around in scuffle near first base during National League baseball game. Fight started after Dodger Willie Davis and Atlanta pitcher Larry Jaster exchanged words over closeness of Larry's tosses to Willie's head. Taking part in battle are (left to right) Mike Lum (23), Jim Bushby (8), Willie Crawford (27, Davis (3), umpire Harry Wed Wendelstadt and Jaster (29). Fight was draw but Dodgers won ball game by 10-1 count. (Baseball story, scores on Page 12).

Import Restriction Out; New Junior Age Limit In

British Columbia Junior Hockey League teams are making sure they haven't burned the bridge behind them, even though they appear to have taken the big jump.

League officials announced Saturday, following an all-day meeting in Penticton, that a new age limit will be in effect next season and that teams will not be bound by any import restrictions.

League spokesmen made the announcement with carefully-chosen words. Both decisions conflict with Canadian Amateur Hockey Association regulations but the junior league "doesn't really want to break away" from the ruling body.

CAHA regulations define a junior as one who has not attained his 20th birthday before Dec. 31 of the playing season. The BCJHL will raise the age by one year.

HOLD 'EM

Thus all league teams will, in effect, start off the 1970-71 campaign where they left off in March, at playoff time.

The age change might have been managed by the league while still maintaining a tie with the CAHA. It could have been managed, for example, by signing players on intermediate cards instead of junior forms.

The decision to adopt unlimited substitution could produce greater conflict between the CAHA and the BCJHL. At the moment, teams are restricted to two imports (out-of-province players). No transfer of players is allowed between West and East, with Thunder Bay serving as the dividing line.

Now BCJHL teams can draw as many out-of-province players as they wish, and from any part of Canada.

NOT SAYING

Will the changes result in the BCJHL's withdrawal from the CAHA?

BCJHL executives wouldn't say.

"That bridge," said managing director Bob Reid of Victoria Cougars, "will have to be crossed when we come to it."

Reid strongly inferred, however, the league would prefer to remain with the national organization rather than "go outlaw."

"If we leave the CAHA," said Reid, "it will be their doing . . . not ours.

"We don't mean to put a gun to the CAHA's heads. We're not insulting anyone. We feel the changes are vital and in the best interests of our league. If the CAHA wants to throw us out, then we'll have to accept that."

The league operated with seven teams last season. Entries included Victoria, Vancouver Centennials, Penticton Broncos and Kelowna Buckaroos.

Expansion to eight teams is a distinct possibility next season. Reid said "feelers" have been received from Chilliwack, runnerup to Trail in the B.C. junior "B" final, and from North Vancouver.

Reid also said the league "is taking a close look" at the New Westminster operation. Royals won only two of their 48 games.

Reid said eight teams would form "an ideal setup" with four teams on the Coast and four in the Interior. He refused to guess, however, how the alignment might be obtained.

QUEBEC DRIVER EARNS WORLD HARNESS TITLE

MONTREAL (UPI) — Herve Filion, a 30-year-old native of Angers, Que., Sunday captured the first world harness racing title.

Filion won the last in a series of 25 races held in seven harness racing centres across North America during a 10-day period. By the end of the series, he had acquired 472 points, 54 more than second-placed George Sholty of the U.S. Another U.S. contender, Stanley Dancer, placed third with 392 points.

A crowd of 15,813 spectators at Montreal's Blue Bonnets Raceway urged on Filion and Darnley's Raider, an eight-year-old gelding that won the last race.

In final standings, Kevin Newman of Australia, was fourth with 298 points. Peter Wofenden of New Zealand, placed fifth with 285; Nello Bellei, of Italy, sixth with 282; Ernst Fischer of Austria seventh with 278; and Eddy Freundt of West Germany, eighth with 138 points.

Canucks Tackle Bucks for Title

By The Canadian Press

Vancouver Canucks will be out to cap their best and final season in the Western Hockey League as they square off against Portland Buckaroos in the opening game of the best-of-seven Lester Patrick Cup final Wednesday in Vancouver.

Second game of the series will be played in Portland Friday with the third there Sunday. The two teams return to Vancouver for the fourth game April 29. Remaining games are scheduled for May 2 in Vancouver, May 5 in Portland and May 8 in Vancouver, if needd.

SCORING BURSTS

Both the Canucks and the Bucks used scoring bursts to propel them into the final Saturday night as they won their best-of-seven semi-final series 4-2.

In San Diego, the Canucks tallied three goals in a two-minute span in the second period to dump the Gulls 5-3 before 13,276 fans.

The Buckaroos fired three goals within eight minutes in the third period to beat the pesky Totems 3-1 before 11,267 Seattle fans.

Second-period goals by Marc Reaume, Gerry Goyer and Murray Hall quickly erased the 2-1 lead the Gulls held after the first period.

Duke Harris made it 5-2 five minutes after Hall's marker and Johnny MacMillan cut the Gulls' deficit to 5-3 before the session ended.

George Gardner made 12 saves to blank the losers in the scoreless third period.

Len Ronson and Willie O'Ree were the Gull goal-getters in the first period while Hall got his first goal of the game.

Soccer Makes Plans to Pick National Club

TORONTO (CP) — A national soccer team will be chosen from provincial all-star teams playing in a tournament at Winnipeg this August.

The Canadian Soccer Football Association decided at its annual conference Sunday to send the national team to the Colombia Pan-Am Games next year and the 1972 Olympics at Munich. The federation will sponsor the Winnipeg tournament.

Aubrey Sanford of Vancouver, elected to his second term as president, told the conference Sunday that the CFSA would move its headquarters to Ottawa and appoint Eric King, 32, of Saskatoon, full-time director if soccer qualifies as a Canadian government category A sport.

Under that classification, 75 per cent of travel costs for international competition and 100 per cent of travel costs for national competitions would be subsidized by the government.

Aussies Clinch Davis Cup Series

TOKYO (AP) — Australia clinched the Eastern Zone section "A" Davis Cup tennis final Sunday when it snatched a decisive doubles match from Japan for an unbeatable 3-0 lead in the best-of-five series.

Australia's Ray Raffels and Allan Stone beat Japan's doubles champions, Junzo Kawamori and Takeshi Koura, 7 5, 5-7, 6-2, 6-4 in a 3½-hour match.

The Australians captured two opening singles matches Friday. Two remaining singles matches will be played today but will have no affect on the outcome of the series.

Australia will met India in Bangalore, India, May 3, in the Eastern Zone finals.

India gained 3-0 lead over Ceylon Sunday in the Section B final in Bombay when Sashi Menon and Vijay Amrithraj defeated Pernard Pinto and P.S. Kumara 6-3, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4. India won both singles matches Saturday.

HOME OPENERS SET FAN MARK

NEW YORK (AP) — The 24 major league baseball opening home games drew a record 723,566 persons this season, topped by the 47,568 at Busch Stadium, the largest crowd ever to attend a St. Louis Cardinals opener.

Last year's 24 openers attracted 669,092.

Detroit topped the American League with a crowd of 46,891 while the National League outdrew the American League 371,118 to 352,448.

START IN LONDON TRAFFIC MIGHT BE . . . . . . WORST PART OF 16,000-MILE RALLY

Prince Leaves Pants, Police Hand Out Ticket

LONDON (CP) — The prince left his pants behind, one exhuberant driver got a ticket from police and a 16,000-mile auto rally got away in a cloud of publicity Sunday for the World Cup soccer games in Mexico.

Some 240 drivers in 96 cars from 20 countries, including Canada, roared off on a punishing five-week course through two continents, chasing a $24,000 first prize.

"Once we get through the London traffic, I think the worst of our journey will be over," said Paddy Hopkirk, the British ace who has won the Monte Carlo Rally. He set off in a British Triumph sedan.

The cars left Wembley Stadium, where England won the World Cup in 1966, for a week-long, 4,500-mile European loop ending in Lisbon, Portugal. They will be shipped to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and set out May 8 on a 19-day marathon to Mexico City's Aztec Stadium, where this year's World Cup series will be held.

Representing Canada are two policemen from Brampford, Ont. — Malcolm Wilson, 38, and Jim Walker, 34—driving a Mercedes Benz 220 diesel.

A 2.5-litre Triumph driven by Bobby Buchanan-Michaelson, 47-year-old British millionaire, was first off and first to stop. Police flagged him down on a speeding charge nearly within sight of the starting line.

Prince Michael of Kent, Queen Elizabeth's 17-year-old cousin, drove off minutes after an emergency call from his valet that he had forgotten his pants.

The prince, clothed in what was presumably a spare pair, left in a British Austin Maxi representing the Royal Hussars, in which he is a captain.

A huge traffic jam developed outside Wembley as the brightly-colored rally cars were flagged away at one-minute intervals by Sir Alf Ramsey, manager of England's soccer squad.

One of the biggest cheers was for Jimmy Greaves, the British international soccer ace who is competing in the rally in a Ford Escort.

Another rousing sendoff was given to the lone Rolls-Royce which bore the "unlucky" number 13.

Wilson and Walker, dressed in the red jackets and caps of the Canadian Automobile Sports Club, made last-minute checks on their pale blue and black Mercedes Benz 220 diesel.

"We're nervous, but confident about finishing," said 38-year-old Wilson, the senior driver, in an interview.

"We can't afford not to," he added with a grin. "This is costing about $11,000 out of our own pockets.

"We'll get some of it back from various sponsors, but that prize money will come in very useful."

Figures Trip Teacher Bob As Several Tee Stars Fall

NORM BODEN
. . . defending champ

HAL JACOBSEN
. . .h elped by draw

By ERNIE FEDORUK

The qualifying-round casualty list was one of the longest in recent times, but schoolteacher Bob Hunt didn't expect to be tripped up by a case of mathematics in his bid for the Times Vancouver Island Open golf championship.

Hunt was one of the several notable casualties as the annual scramble for The Daily Times Trophy got under way Sunday at Uplands Golf Club.

Whereas the course and the climate accounted for most of the pitfalls, Hunt was tripped by arithmetic. The Uplands club champion who plays to plus-one handicap was disqualified for signing a wrongly-marked scorecards.

The accidental scoring sin took the spotlight away from three amateurs who came in to share medal honors, and away from the casualty list.

Karl Zwick of Gorge Vale, Cedar Hill's Bob Herbertson and Gene Williams of Colwood were the amateurs who best mastered course and conditions. Each scored a three-over-par 73 to tie for medal honors.

Last year's finalists—defending champion Norm Boden and runner-up Hal Jacobsen—narrowly averted the stumbling fate that tripped other highly-regarded golfers.

Both Boden and Jacobsen had to count on the luck of the draw to squeeze into the championship chase, which gets under way next Sunday at Victoria Golf Club. Boden and Jacobsen were among 10 golfers who posted 77s.

Only seven of the 10 were required to fill out the last of the 32 qualifying berths. Both made it. Less fortunate were Doug Munro of Victoria Club, Ron Hunt and Doug Peden of Uplands, who were drawn out and dropped into the handicap division fight for the Hugh Francis Trophy.

A pair of former provincial and Island Open champions topped the casualty list. Colwood's Lawrie Kerr missed qualification by scoring a 79 while veteran Bill McColl of Victoria Club had an 80.

But they have good company on the sidelines. Three former finalists—Rick Kent, Lex Sutcliffe and Bill Court—also missed the cutoff along with a flock of respected challengers such as Vic Painter, Gordie Whan, Frank Scroggs, Gordie Pellow, Cec Ferguson and Mike Gray.

Strong Winds Sent Scores Zooming

Painter and Sutcliffe were able to qualify for the handicap division, while the others will have to wait for next year for continued participation.

Thirty-one golfers who scored net 74s qualified safely for the handicap section. The 32nd spot went to Colwood's Tom Maftechuk, who drew a smile from lady luck and was drawn in from 10 players who scored 75s.

Lush fairways softened by rainfall Saturday and early Sunday turned Uplands into a long-playing monster. In addition, strong winds that prevailed most of the day sent scores zooming.

Hunt had to be the most disappointed golfer. He seemingly qualified safely with a 74 but neglected to examine his card. Then a routine check disclosed scoring mistakes, and the talented Uplands champion had to be disqualified.

Hunt's card, kept by Colwood's Ron Howard, Jr., actually showed three mistakes although the final total was correct. Both nine-hole totals were wrong, as was his 12th hole tally. Hunt took a six on the 12th, but was marked down for a five.

Herbertson, a weekend-only golfer who plays to a seven handicap at Cedar Hill, has won the Francis Trophy the past two years. He checked in with his 73 early and seemed assured of the medal until Williams and Zwick checked in late in the day.

By a quirk of fate, Herbertson defeated Williams in the 1968 handicap final.

Herbertson might have matched par but for three three-putt greens. Two under after seven holes, he bogied the eighth and then three-putted the ninth to make the turn at even par.

He three-putted the 10th for another bogey, then made amends by one-putting the 11th, 12th, 13th and 15th holes. Herbertson had a great chance to go under par on the 17th.

He drove the green on the par-four hole, and was putting for an eagle. Instead, he three-putted for a par to remain two over par.

He missed another chance for sole possession of the medal when he took a bogey five on the par-four 18th.

But, as the casualties will readily admit, that was the kind of day it was!

SPORTS FEDERATION

RED DEER (CP) — Representatives of 32 recreation and sports associations have formed a provincial federation to develop amateur sports in Alberta.

Long Season Also Tough On Officials

TORONTO (CP) — To Scotty Morrison the National Hockey League's regular season just ended has been as hard on the game's officials as on the players.

Morrison, the NHL's referee-in-chief, recalls that the season opened with a walkout by officials seeking recognition for their association.

Eight months later it ended with a stretch drive as tense as any in league history.

In between, officials endured periodic violence which led NHL president Clarence Campbell to impose fines and suspensions for assaults on linesmen.

Morrison, who appoints officials for the Western, American and Central Leagues as well as for the NHL, said in an interview:

"From March 17 until the last night of the schedule (April 5) every game was like a playoff."

As the season ended referee Art Skov was out of action with cracked ribs and Vern Buffey was in hospital with chest pains. But, Morrison notes, only three men were forced to miss assignments in 1284 games across the continent.

This was despite a slowdown by United States air traffic controllers that forced officials to drive, take private planes or ride buses at times.

"The emergency situation, created by Skov's broken ribs and Buffey's illness, forced a heavy burden on John Ashley and Bill Friday. But they had time off during the regular season."

Morrison says the league is trying to find another way for officials to respond to fights—he opposes the way linesmen must charge into brawls as peacemakers.

"We're trying to come up with another solution. Maybe the linesmen should just stand back and let them punch themselves out."

Stan Amor Tops Motorbike Races

Vancouver riders captured most of the silverware Sunday in the Victoria Motorcycle Club's Amor T.T. scramble at Blink Bonnie Farm.

Stan Amor of Vancouver won bothe the trophy dash and main event.

His father, Vern Amor, captured second place overall in the main event and third in the trophy dash.

Al Barclay of the VMC placed second in the trophy dash and third in the main.

O'Keefes, Columbus In Scoreless Draw

Victoria O'Keefes held out against Columbus surges at the start of each half at Vancouver Saturday, but when they got their turn on attack they couldn't crack the rugged Columbus defence.

As a result the teams battled to a scoreless draw in the opening battle of a two-game, total-goal final for the Pacific Coast Soccer League playoff championship.

O'Keefes and league-champion Columbus will resume the series here next Sunday at 2 p.m., again at Vancouver's Callister Park.

Unbeaten Columbus had advanced to the final by ousting New Westminster Blues in a sudden-death semi-final while Victoria moved on with a triumph over Vancouver Croatia.

Neither team seemed able to launch a consistent attack in the strictly defensive battle and the closest thing to a goal came with six minutes remaining when Columbus winger Vic Kodelja hit a goalpost on a free kick.

HAMILTON SPARKLES

Barry Sadler was agile and alert in the Victoria nets and made several saves, but it was mainly the play-smashing ability of centre-half Bill Hamilton that sparked the O'Keefe defence.

Hamilton, assisted by the tight-checking of Howie Anderson, broke up about a dozen attempts by Columbus to mount a successful scoring thrust.

Linkmen Brian Robinson, Peter Brett and Ron Thompson shared the duty of keeping the powerful Columbus team in check in mid-field play — and succeeded admirably.

STRONG EFFORT

Bob Bolitho, in the Victoria right-wing slot, also played a strong game.

On the other hand, a tight Columbus defence led by centre-half Bob Hazeldine, kept Victoria attackers stymied.

An extra bus will be available to carry Victoria fans to the next match and further information is available from either Jack Metcalfe (384-9854) or Jack Evans (477-1721).

In Provincial Cup quarter-final matches played in Vancouver, Croatia eked out a 1-0 victory over Shamrocks and Kolping downed Avalon, 3-2.

One-Hitters Take Play Away From Punchers

LARRY JASTER
. . . swinging pitcher

By The Associated Press

Two blossoming no-hitters were broken up both ways Sunday in the National Baseball League—early and late.

Wayne Simpson lost his chance in the first inning, but Tom Griffin let the suspense build a bit before losing his in the seventh.

Simpson, Cincinnati Reds' sensational rookie, shut out San Francisco Giants 6-0 Sunday while Houston's Griffin handcuffed San Diego Padres on one hit, 5-1.

Elsewhere, Los Angeles Dodgers battered Atlanta Braves 10-1 with the game enlivened by a short fist fight between Larry Jaster of the Braves and Willie Davis of the Dodgers. Philadelphia Phillies split a doubleheader with New York Mets winning 3-2 in 10 innings before losing 10-2. Montreal at Chicago and St. Louis at Pittsburgh were both postponed by rain.

Saturday, the Mets clobbered Philadelphia 7-0, St. Louis thumped Pittsburgh 6-1, Chicago downed Montreal Expos 8-1, Houston nipped San Diego 4-3 and Los Angeles edged Atlanta 5-4.

STRIKES OUT NINE

Simpson, who has created quite a stir with two shutouts and three straight victories, surrendered a two-out first-inning double to Ken Henderson and nothing else. He struck out nine but experienced some control problems, walking seven.

Houston's Griffin gave up a first-inning run to San Diego on a walk, a stolen base and two ground outs, and then held the Padres hitless until Clarence Gaston doubled with one out in the seventh.

Simpson and Griffin increased to four the number of one-hitters pitched in the NL in the last five days. Mike Torrez of St. Louis did it last Wednesday against Montreal and Nolan Ryan of the Mets turned one in Saturday against Philadelphia.

The battle between Jaster and Davis broke out in the eighth inning.

Davis was backed away from the plate with a close two-strike pitch and then bunted down the first base line. As the ball rolled foul for the third strike out, Davis exchanged words with Jaster and then punches.

BENCHES EMPTY

After taking one punch, Davis sprinted away from Jaster and into the Dodger dugout as both benches emptied.

"I accused him of throwing at me deliberately," said Davis. "He hit me on the right cheek and since I had it broke before, I didn't want it hit again, so I ran." Jaster denied throwing at Davis.

"When he ran," said the pitcher, "I just gave up."

In the American League, Kansas City Royals scored three runs in the 13th inning to drop California Angels 4-1; New York Yankees divided a doubleheader with Baltimore Orioles, winning the nightcap 8-5 after a 4-2 setback, and Minnesota Twins downed Oakland Athletics 6-3. Bad weather in the midwest forced postponement of the Chicago-Milwaukee and Washington-Cleveland twin bills and the Boston-Detroit game.

Saturday, Cleveland downed Washington 9-4, Baltimore nipped New York 5-4, Detroit thumped Boston 5-1, Chicago defeated Milwaukee 8-5, Minnesota whipped Oakland 11-5, and California walloped Kansas City 7-1.

ALCINDOR SCORES 38 BUT KNICKS PAD LEAD

Times News Services

New York Knicks bolted into a 20-point lead in the first half at Milwaukee Sunday and then held off a strong rally by the home club to beat the Bucks 117-105 and take a 3-1 lead in the Eastern Division final of National Basketball Association playoffs.

The best-of-seven series returns to New York tonight for what could be the last game.

Milwaukee's Lew Alcindor collected 38 points to lead all scorers while Willis Reed paced the Knicks with 26 as New York's deadly outside shooting continued to be a decisive factor.

In best-of-seven Eastern semi-finals of the American Basketball Association, Indiana clipped Carolina 103-98 to take a 2-0 lead and Kentucky nipped New York 113-111 to deadlock that series at 1-1.

Denver holds a 2-1 lead in one of the ABA's western semi-finals after losing 122-120 to Washington Sunday and Dallas downed Los Angeles 129-121 Saturday to leave the other series ties at 1-1.

James Bay, Brentwood Collect Rugby Crowns

James Bay Athletic Association and Brentwood College scored decisive victories Sunday to capture third and fourth division titles in Victoria Rugby Union finals.

JBAA blanked Cowichan 19-0 in the third division battle to win the Nuttall Shield at Macdonald Park while Brentwood clouted Cowichan 22-6 in the fourth division's Ellis Shield final at Duncan.

Chuck Shergold paced JBAA with two trys while single trys were added by Roy McGinnis, Bruce Walkey and Ian McLean. Jim Kirby booted two converts.

John Bradford scored five trys to spark Brentwood, which led by a narrow 9-6 margin at half-time.

FIRST TRIAL MATCH

Steve Brammal kicked two converts for Brentwood and Brian Hawkesworth added a try. Rick Metz provided Cowichan's points with a pair of penalty goals.

In the first of two trial matches used to select a representative side to face the touring Middlesex County Club of England, Greens defeated Reds 22-8 Sunday at Ducan.

Martin Davies paced the win with two penalty goals and two converts while trys were added by Pete Simmons, Ivor Ford and Gudmund Gudmundseth. Tom Browne kicked a drop goal for Greens.

CHAMP KEEPS BANTAM TITLE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Unbeaten Ruben Olivares retained his world bantamweight championship Saturday night, winning a unanimous decision in a savage 15-round fight with his fellow countryman, Jesus 'Chucho' Castillo.

The fighting little gamecocks, both from Mexico City and each weighing 117½, kept a capacity crowd of 18,762 in an uproar at The Forum from start until finish.

Stewart Tops Spanish Race

MADRID (AP) — Jackie Steward, reigning world champion from Scotland, won the Spanish Grand Prix Sunday, driving to victory through flaming gasoline after a two-car collision and a gripping duel with Jack Brabham for 25 laps.

Bruce McLaren of New Zealand was second, while Mario Andretti of the United States was third.

The racers had only reached the second bend when the Ferrari of Belgium's Jack Ickx and Jackie Oliver's BRM were involved in a collison. Both cars burst into flames, spewing burning gasoline over the track.

Oliver escaped unhurt and ran to the waiting arms of his wife at the trackside. Ickx suffered multiple burns but doctors said his condition is not too serious.

The drivers had to negotiate their way through flames for five laps before firemen brought the fire under control.

FOYT CONNECTS

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A. J. Foyt won the Copper State 200-mile late model stock car race Saturday over Roger McCluskey of Tucson.

France and Wales Share Rugby Lead

PARIS (CP) — France beat England 35-13 Saturday to share the five-nation Rugby Union championship with Wales, each gaining six points from four games. Ireland had four points. England and Scotland each finished with two points.

$65,632.75 PAYOFF FOR $2 TICKET

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Irwin Tress, general manager and vice-president of El Comandante race track said a pool record was set Sunday after a $2.00 ticket paid off $65,632.75.

Tress said the winner had not been identified, but the winning ticket was purchased at a track betting agency office in the municipality of Las Piedras, located east of San Juan.

The record was set on June 23, 1968, when the winning combination paid out $51,576.50.

The winner was the only person at the track to select the six winners in as many races, Tress said.

Victoria Students Beat Valley Squad

Victoria representatives downed Fraser Valley students 506-407 Sunday in a dual high school track and field meet at Centennial Stadium.

In a special 100-metre women's open hurdles event, Wendy Taylor of Vancouver Olympic Striders edged Victoria Track Club's Penny May as both clocked in at 14.8 seconds.

Two other VTC performers, Jill Pelland and Lindsay Jack, were third fourth.

Lower Island Teams Stage Strong Finish

Victoria teams finished with a flourish at Royal Athletic Park Sunday and enabled divisional champions from the Lower Island Juvenile Soccer Association to grab the major share of honors in the third annual, two-day Shrine Vancouver Island championship tournament.

Competing in the older divisions, booting boys from the city snatched all three titles at stake Sunday after sides from south of the Malahat had won two of five Saturday struggles for Island crowns against Upper Island champions.

Britannia Legion had the longest battle of the tournament before winning the second-division title through a 3-2 overtime defeat of Nanaimo's Southend Rangers.

In other Sunday contests Boys' Club defeated Nanaimo's Southend Mt. Bensen Legion 1-0 for the first-division title and third-division Boys' Club defeated Nanaimo's Southend United, 2-1.

Daryl Goddard scored the winning goal for Britannia Legion two minutes into the second overtime session. Other Legion tallies were scored by Gary McLaren and Steve Bowers while Frank Frajman and Wayne Biachin connected for Rangers.

Joe Lochmond collected the winning goal for first-division Boys' Club 24 minutes into the second half.

Goals by Steve Forslund and Helge Fylling gained the third-division crown for Boys' Club after George Adams had given United a 1-0 lead at half-time.

Lower Island squads won the first two games of the tournament on Saturday.

Lake Hill Builders captured the seventh-division title with a 3-1 win over Port Alberni Sky Chiefs while Lake Hill Kiwanis bounced Duncan's Stenmark Jewellers 4-1 for the sixth-division crown.

Jon Bridge, Lawrence Garraway and Mark McNally-Dawes scored for Builders while Robbie Hill averted a shutout for Port Alberni.

John Girard, Gordie Eisenhuth, Doug Zapf and Vaughan Reeves counted single goals for Kiwanis and Jim Kaiser scored for Stenmark.

LOMAS MOST VALUABLE

In other Saturday tussles, Hudson's Roadrunners of Duncan won the Division V championship with a 2-0 victory over Lake Hill Kiwanis Ss. Beavers, Harewood (Nanaimo) Eager Beavers captured the Division VIII title by downing Cordova Bay 2-1 and Harewood Lindley Plumbing nailed down the fourth-division title with a 2-0 shutout over Langford Building Supplies.

Michael King and Bob Smith scored for the Nanaimo-based Eager Beavers while Stephen Insley replied for Cordova Bay.

Hudson's Roadrunners were singled out as the team having the best combination of playing ability and sportsmanship while Don Lomas of Boys' Club (Division I) was selected as the tournament's most-valuable player.

KINGSTON DEFEATS TERRIERS IN FINAL

Canadian Forces Base Kingston downed defending-champion Esquimalt Terriers 16-14, 15-10 Saturday in the final of the annual Canadian Forces volleyball championship tournament at CFB Esquimalt gymnasium for its third title in four years.

Kingston gained the final by ousting CFB Calgary in straight games during a best-of-three semi-final earlier Saturday while Terriers sidelined CFHQ Ottawa in the other semi, 15-3, 3-15, 15-6.

Esquimalt, Kingston and Calgary finished in a point tie for first place following the seven preliminary rounds with 15-6 records.

On the strength of a 2-1 victory over Esquimalt in the fifth round, Kingston was awarded first place and Terriers were placed second because of a 2-1 win over Calgary in the final round Saturday morning.

★ ★ ★

CFHQ Ottawa, CFB Soest, Germany, (second battalion Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry Brigade) and CFB Greenwood, N.S., ended in a tie for fourth place with 10-11 records.

Ottawa gained the final championship playoff berth because of 2-1 victories over Soest and Greenwood. CFB Bagotville, Que., was seventh at 6-15 and CFB Gimli, Man., brought up the rear at 3-18.

Lt. (A) Ken Benóit of Greenwood, an officer-cadet at Royal Roads before transfer to Royal Military College, Kingston, was selected the tournament's most-valuable player.

Kingston swept a three-game set from Bagotville in Saturday's last preliminary round while Terriers downed Calgary 2-1; Ottawa beat Soest 2-1; and Greenwood blanked Gimli, 3-0.

Regals Trailing National Playoff

POWELL RIVER, B.C. (CP) It took Val D'Or, Que. Olympics one game to get acclimatized and now Powell River Regals know why they're the intermediate hockey champions of Eastern Canada.

Backed by the superb goaltending of Rene Lafrenier, the Olympics defeated the Regals 6-2 and 3-2 on the weekend to take a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five Canadian final.

Val D'Or could wrap up the series tonight. If a fifth game is needed, it will be played here Tuesday night.

The Quebec team dropped the first game 6-4 Friday night after arriving in this British Columbia coastal community 70 miles north of Vancouver only three hours before the opening faceoff.

But Saturday and Sunday, they were more than ready.

Three of Val D'Or's goals Saturday came during a five-minute penalty to playing coach Bob Crawford of Powell River in the second period. Al McLean and Al Small scored for the Regals.

Sunday, Jeannot Marenjer's goal at 5:20 of the final period gave Val D'Or its 3-2 win.

Favored Silent Screen Edged in Stretch Duel

TIMES NEWS SERVICES

Personality outgamed Silent Screen in a torrid stretch drive and won the $117,800 Wood Memorial Stakes over the even-money favorite at New York's Aqueduct Track Saturday.

Delaware Chief finished third, a head back of Silent Screen, in this final major eastern prep for the Kentucky Derby two weeks hence. Two lengths farther back was Buzkashi in fourth place.

The result was not made official until a stewards' inquiry was completed into a jam-up on the first turn of the 1⅛-mile test. It appeared that Silent Screen had been bumped, but the stewards let the result stand.

Personality, Eddie Belmonte's fifth winner on the card, paid $8.20, $3.40 and $2.60. Silent Screen, ridden by Willie Shoemaker returned $3 and $2.40.

At Albany, Calif., George Lewis survived two foul claims after winning by two lengths in the 55th running of the $112,000 California Derby at Golden Gate Fields.

Faithful Leader finished second in the field of seven three-year-olds, with Hanalei Bay third and Top of the Market fourth.

George Lewis covered the 1⅛ miles in 1:48 1-5 under Bill Hartack.

Wayne Harris, aboard Faithful Leader, the only colt in the race not eligible for the Kentucky Derby, lodged a claim of foul against Hartack, while Merlin Volzke, pilot of Hanalei Bay, claimed foul against both Hartack and Harris.

After viewing films of the race, the stewards made no change in the order of finish.

At Inglewood, Calif., Tipping Time came out of the pack in the rush through the stretch to beat the highly-regarded Pattee Canyon in the $46,950 Long Beach Handicap at Hollywood Park.

At Chicago, Coup Landing, owned by C. H. Sturrock of Toronto, won the $21,775 Balmoral Inaugural Handicap at Washington Park.

YORK SCORES AGAIN

At Vancouver's Exhibition Park, jockey Ray York scored his second straight stakes victory as he guided Alandian to a narrow win in the $5,000-added Prelude Handicap.

Alandian, a British Columbia-bred three-year-old, ran the 6½ furlongs on a rain-soaked track in 1:19 to nip Buckskin Billy. King Import was third before 5,453 fans, who wagered $276,797 during the nine-race card.

Rookie Scores in First Race

Rookie driver Larry Pollard tasted victory in his first race Saturday during the jalopy section of a program shored with the new late-model stocks as the auto racing season opened at Western Speedway before 2,486 chilled fans.

Pollard, a 16-year-old who built his first car when he was 13, won the first heat and finished second to veteran Bob Collins in the 30-lap main event.

Some frosting was applied to the runner-up spot when Larry beat out his father, Earl, who finished third.

Ross Surgenor captured the 30-lap main event in the late-model stock program after a strenuous battle with Larry Walker for the final few circuits of the four-tenths-of-a-mile oval.

Rick O'Dell was the only double-winner of the evening with victories in the late-model stock trophy dash and second heat.

Roy Haslam gunned his machine around the oval in 20.49 seconds during time trials to set a mark for the new division.

Another rookie Ron Hancock, almost found victory in the first heat of the late-model stock section. With only a few feet between him and victory, Hancok lost control and slammed into the grandstand wall. He was uninjured but Jim Caudwell took the chequered flag.

Len Cruikshank received the dubious honor of being the first driver to flip in 1970 when his car landed its roof during the second jalopy heat.

SITUATION URGENT

Intermediate Care Required

By ELIZABETH FORBES

During the months in which this column has continually urged some sort of subsidized intermediate care for those people in private hospitals, who are seeing their life, savings rapidly depleted to welfare level, I've acquired a file of letters and scribbled notes that in most instances, are shocking in their contents.

Forbes

A few, of course, take me to task for being so naive as to believe private business can run without profit.

As it happens I don't believe private hospitals run without making a profit. That's why I think there is need for the intermediate care program.

In thte Greater Victoria area we have hundreds of senior citizens which makes it a fertile field for private hospitals. It also opens the door to high fees and a minimum of care.

Let me substantiate this statement with parts of a letter I received recently from a well-known woman in this city who attends to the business affairs of a long-time friend.

The friend in question was admitted to a private hospital in 1968-69. She required a private room because she is asthmatic, has fits of coughing and when she suffers an attack, an adrenlin injection is required.

In September, 1969, the hospital charge went up to $18.50 a day although no extra nursing care was required.

At that time another private hospital was contacted and the person who wrote this letter was able to obtain a private room for her friend at $420 a month. She asked, at the time, if that fee was likely to be increased in the near future and was told not as far as was known, as it had recently been increased.

★ ★ ★

In January, 1970, notice was received announcing that in February the charge would be $17.50 a day. Then on April 2, a further notice came which read in part "commencing May 4, 1970, the daily accommodation charge for the above patient will be $18.50." Reason given was "as per new legislation on for staff wage increases.

This is an increase of $153 a month, the letter informs me, making a total of $6,752.50 a year. On top of this there is between $20 and $30 a month for drugs for this patient.

How many who are now in private hospitals or may have to go into one in the foreseeable future, can accept such increases and continue to pay their own way for long?

This particular letter also says the food in the private hospital concerned "is much to be desired." A typical dinner is noodles with meat balls, mixed canned vegetables and for dessert, one-half a canned pear (the cheapest canned fruit on the market) and a small piece of cake or a biscuit.

The letter ends with "this is, no doubt, but one of many such cases in Victoria and I sincerely hope that something is done (and quickly) to alleviate this wicked situation of fleecing the aged of their life savings."

In another letter in my file a Victoria man writes "my mother was unfortunate enough to be forced to stay for a month in one of our private hospitals, at the exorbitant rates charged.

"She told me that the food was never served hot, but tepid; the food was badly cooked and of poor quality; and if any patient needed attention, they were lucky to be given the attention for which they rung their bell, in less than about 45 minutes after ringing.

"This I find inexcusable and very frightening; the obvious reason is that the poor old people in these private hospitals are deliberately being exploited ruthlessly in the interests of big business — and the government is doing nothing about it."

Then this man ends with a thought-provoking statement: "If human dignity means anything at all, I submit that an elderly person deserves a room to himself, herself, adequate and well-cooked food, and adequate attention at all times when this is needed.

"Surely there are not excessive demands, when one considers that the old people have contributed their share to life and the world during their (active) lifetimes.

In the two cases I have presented, the patients have someone outside the private hospital to fight for them. But think of the many who are without family or interested friends. The handicapped with some form of retardation or mental illness and incapable of attending to even simple needs.

Then try to tell me there is no need of care for the elderly that does not depend on the whims of private ownership. I won't believe you!

TNT in Trash

NEW YORK — Trash collectors found nine sticks of dynamite in a waste basket diagonally across Park Avenue from the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Sunday. They notified the bomb squad who blocked off the area until the explosives could be removed.

Lauren Bacall Picked Top Musical Actress

NEW YORK (AP) — Lauren Bacall said "wow!" and tried to kiss everybody within reach. Alfred Lunt spoke of "sheer enchantment." And little Melba Moore wept just a bit.

So with jubilation, sentiment and a few surprises Broadway Sunday night awarded its 24th annual Tony awards for "distinguished work in the theatre."

Miss Bacall won her silver medallion as the star of Applause, picked as the season's best musical.

When her name was plucked from the secret ballot envelope she leaped from her seat, ran to the stage, and said with a gasped, "Oh my goodness!" before she kissed Walter Matthau who presented the prize.

Applause also earned two prizes for Ron Field, the director and choreographer. The show was Field's first over-all staging assignment.

Picked as the best drama was Borstal Boy, based on Brendan Behan's story of his years in a youth reformatory. The play, originally done in Dublin, was written by Frank McMahon.

Cleavon Little of Purlie was voted the best male musical star, with Miss Moore of the same show winning the trophy for supporting actress in a musical.

The drama awards for best actress went to Tammy Grimes in Private Lives and for best actor to Fritz Weaver of Child's Play.

For Miss Bacall it was the first run ever for any prize.

In addition to her, Little, Miss Moore, Miss Grimes and Weaver, performers who won Tonys for the first time were Blythe Danner, best supporting dramatic actress in Butterflies Are Free, and Ken Howard, best supporting dramatic actor in Child's Play.

The biggest name competition was between Miss Bacall and Katharine Hepburn, star of the musical Coco, whose participation in the program was taped for the NBC network telecast in advance. Miss Hepburn did not attend the star-studded ritual.

VERBAL WARFARE

Quebec Campaign Fast, Furious

QUEBEC (CP) — Party leaders for Quebec's general election swing into their final full week of campaigning today after gruelling weekend tours which featured accusations of dirty politics and disruption of meetings by separatist hecklers.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand poo-pooed two polls which placed him third in popularity behind the Liberals and the separatist Parti Quebecois.

Liberal Leader Robert Bourassa said he would make "no deal at any price" to form an alliance with the separatist party, no matter what the outcome of the election April 29.

Rene Levesque, leader of the Parti Quebecois, told voters to help him get rid of the Liberals, "that other old gang" he says he considers the main threat to his election hopes.

And Creditiste Leader Camil Samson was busy Sunday night waging verbal battle with separatist hecklers while accusing his political opponents of "hitting below the belt."

CROWDS ENTHUSIASTIC

All four leaders met with enthusiastic crowds in their weekend campaigning, with Mr. Levesque getting the largest turnout in Arvida where 5,500 persons jammed into an arena.

Mr. Samson ran second-best on turnouts as close to 2,000 Creditiste supporters listened to campaign speeches in an east-end Montreal sports centre. Both Mr. Bourassa and Premier Bertrand averaged about 400 supporters at meetings near Quebec City and the Eastern Townships.

Mr. Bertrand accused the Liberals of being "lackeys of Ottawa," the separatists as "deceivers of youth," and the Creditistes as false prophets.

The 53-year-old Union Nationale chief, campaigning in his first election as party leader, scorned the popularity polls published in two French-language dailies Saturday and said:

"I would rather that the other parties won the consensus polls . . . while I win the election."

Mr. Bourassa, also heading his party as a new leader, said the polls, which placed him first, "are a strong indication that Quebecers are dissatisfied with the present government.".

REFERS TO POLLS

Mr. Levesque, also in the role of new leader and campaigning in the separatist party's first election, said the polls indicate one thing:

"The Union Nationale is finished . . . and now we must get rid of that other old gang, the Liberals."

Mr. Bertrand said the Creditistes, a wing of the federal party also campaigning for the first time in a provincial election, "are conducting a hoax in this election.

"Certain party members are trying to use scapular medals around their necks and religious parades to sell their wares. It is not by hanging a crucifix on every wall in our schools that we will have 100-per-cent Catholics."

He also blasted Prime Minister Trudeau's statement in the Commons last Friday that blamed the present unemployment crisis in Quebec on the Union Nationale.

"It's the anti-inflation policies of the federal government which are responsible for unemployment here," Mr. Bertrand said.

Phoney Ticket Hard to Take

TORONTO (CP) — A motorist waving a yellow ticket stormed into a Toronto police station during the weekend, claiming he put money into the parking meter.

Then he calmed down enough to read the wording of the official-looking, but phoney, ticket:

"This is not a ticket, but if it were within my power, you would receive two. Because of your bull-headed, inconsiderate, feeble attempt at parking, you have taken enough room for a 20-mule team, two elephants, one goat and a safari of pygmies from the African interior."

A traffic officer, between chuckles, denied the phoney ticket was the work of the police.

THE WARDS AND THEIR 'LOST' CHILDREN
. . . talking their way to a new life

These Kids Have a Port To Weather Emotional Storms

By ED GOULD

COBBLE HILL—Jim and Arlene Ward have no children but that hasn't stopped them from keeping their five-bedroom house full of kids.

The "kids" are living with the Wards in a "group experience" in co-operation with the social welfare department and the provincial probation service.

Leward Training Program (the Leeward part comes from a combination of both their names plus connotations of "port in a storm" and "out of the wind") began in August, 1969.

It deals with alientated youngsters, "lost" teen-agers seeking answers to their problem of self-identity.

The young residents at the 12-acre Ward property are here because they've dropped out, run away, been caught with drugs or have been involved with various forms of misdemeanors which result in brushes with the law.

"Tot this group, fantasy is preferable to reality, possibly because it appears to be safer and more pleasant," Ward said in an interview. "Peace, love and happiness is all."

How did these dropped-out, turned-off, troubled youngsters get that way?

"A guess would be that their natural feelings to be real and honest and to work with their feelings in their relationships, especially with parents, teachers and other adults, have met rejection.

"They learn to deal with their feelings on an intellectual level only. They see rejection of their attitudes and ideas and aspirations as essentially rejection of self."

Each "family member" at Leeward is encouraged to look at his own attitudes, values and performances and to test new ways of viewing himself and relating to others, and then to decide what changes he wishes to make.

Impressed upon each member is the fact that what he gets out of the experience is exactly what he is prepared to invest in it.

Before starting the program the Wards discussed it with represenatatives of local, educational, social work, medical and probation services, all of who suggested there was an urgent need. They learned there was no such program for the 15 to 19 age group and "we were appalled at the extent of the problem."

For Jim, Leeward was a continuation of work in which he has been involved for most of his life. Except for five years, during which he edited a weekly newspaper on Salt Spring Island, he has almost always worked with persons with emotional problems.

After 10 years with the department of public health in Saskatchewan, about half of it with the psychiatric department, he moved to British Columbia in 1953 at the invitation of the newly-formed branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association. At the end of eight years there he was provincial executive director.

He sold the newspaper about three years ago and joined UNICA, another live-in group experience working mainly with professional adults. For wife Arlene, Leeward was something new. Feeling the need for people to interact with she talked of opening a nursery school. The program here was a compromise.

"I must admit it took a month for Jim to talk me into it," she said. "It's not a burden though. I enjoy it immensely. The 'frightening' things were all in my head." Very rarely do I wonder if it is worth it."

At the time of writing the "family" consisted of six teen-agers, all of whom had been in trouble at home or with the law. But nobody sent them to Leeward.

"Kids come to us on their own initiative," Ward said. "In some cases they come from Eric Martin Institute in Victoria. Others are recommended by a probation officer.."

Once they arrive they get the straight goods from Ward which they usually agree to but often have second thoughts about later. Each day becomes a personal triumph for every member as together they work through individual crises.

The day of this interview one girl had decided to leave the group. Each member was as upset as the girl herself but the decision was left to her.

"We don't put harnesses on them," Ward said. "If they don't want this scene we have no alternative but to let them go."

The sessions at Leeward — recently approved as a child care resource by the provincial government — last for four months with the next complete session to start May 15. After four months the kids may return home, depending on the individual's own state of development and his particular situation as regards the law, or they may accept some other type of home arrangement.

Some of the alternatives are not as appealing: Brannan Lake or Willingdon.

"He or she makes the decision — where do I go from here?" Ward said. "He or she is very much involved in that decision. It hasn't been that way in most of these youngsters lives and they resent that like hell."

An example of the ties that bind came recenely when Jim drove out one night to look for a girl who failed to return home at a pre-arranged time. He found her talking on a sideroad to two youths in a truck who appeared to have been "high" on some sort of drug. The girl was not involved.

Back at Leeward Arlene told the girl: "I really care what happens to you. I love you."

The girl was thunderstruck. "You love me? You care what happens to me?"

Her attitude suddenly improved when she realized that someone actually cared about her, Ward said. "No one had ever told her that before — and meant it."

Handicapped Girl Wins Art Prize

DUNCAN — Diana Poulette, 17, a pupil at Arcadian School for retarded children, has been awarded a cash prize for a painting entered in the International Exhibition of Art in London.

A photograph of Miss Poulette's painting, flowers in a vase, appeared in the London Sunday Times color supplement, Arcadian School principal Mrs. A. E. Boyle was informed.

Organized by the National Society for Mentally Handicapped Children, the London exhibition also led to the sale of paintings by other Cowichan district students from Arcadian School.

Paintings by Ann Oyen, Judy Hall, Russell Ludvingston and Douglas Ramwell were among the record-breaking 150 sold.

The Duncan school submitted the only British Columbia entries. Nova Scotia was the only other Canadian province to send paintings to the London show.

Vote Defeat Miffs Board

DUNCAN—School board officials today expressed disappointment at the failure of Cowichan district voters Saturday to approve a $213,000 school building referendum.

"I don't know where we go from here," chairman David Haywood said.

The referendum, which would have paid for eight classrooms and additions of science facilities to two junior secondary schools, failed by a 4.4 per cent margin to reach the 60 per cent majority required.

"It is unfortunate that such a small percentage of the electorate can defeat what 55.6 per cent of them feel they require," Haywood said.

Only 1,736 of 9,500 eligible voters turned out.

HALF THE COST

If the bylaw had been approved, the provincial government would have shared half the cost. Haywood said the $107,000 balance would have added only about 87 cents to the tax rolls on a per capita basis.

Poll by poll results with negative votes in brackets:

Duncan 330 (180), North Cowichan municipal hall 83 (59), Crofton elementary school 33 (41), Westholme School, 8 (30), Maple Bay School 58 (50), South End firehall 260 (224), George Bonner school 24 (19), Shawnigan Lake elementary 31 (25), Cobble Hill school 12 (28), Bench School 42 (35), Koksilah school 31 (19), Cowichan Station school 28 (44), Glenora school 14 (5), Sahtlam school 12 (11).

'GASSED' DRIVER CAUGHT

CHEMAINUS — When forklift operator Bob Joughin left here to take his vehicle from MacMillan Bloedel sawmill division to Harmac, he thought he had everything he needed: special permit, driver's licence and plenty of gas.

Travelling slowly along the Trans-Canada Highway, Joughin's first stop was an RCMP roadblock at Ladysmith.

Where was his "slow traffic" sign? He didn't have one. Where was his "C" licence? He didn't have one. One thing he had "plenty of" was purple gas, and that's not allowed on public highways.

MacMillan Bloedel was charged $50 in court in Ladysmith for using purple gas on the highway. The other infractions were waived.

The police let Joughin complete his trip to Harmac.

VICTORIA, B.C., MONDAY, APRIL 20, 1970 —PAGE 17

THE RISK of writer's cramp was sharply reduced at Victoria city hall this morning when Ald. Clyde Savage and Judy Andersen, 17, started an envelope signing bee. With 17,500 individual pieces of mail concerning the 6.3 million capital budget to be hand-addressed during the next two days, assistant to the city manager William Hooson came up with the idea of enlisting all city staff for the hand-writing marathon. It works out to about 150 envelopes for each city employee — including elected officials and department heads. The veteran politician and the pert Grade 12 student from Esquimalt High, in city hall for a brief exposure to civic administration, were first in the pen-pushing parade, to brief voters on the April 30 vote.

Public Could Make Chaos In City Planning—Savage

Too much public participation could create chaos with city planning, Ald. Clyde Savage said today.

He was commenting on a weekend call by Ald. Peter Pollen for greater public participation in planning proposals. Pollen indicated this morning he was voicing an idea rather than suggesting a policy.

Savage and Ald. Percy Frampton both felt the public had a good chance to voice its views on planning proposals via the Advisory Planning Commission and public hearings.

PUBLIC VOICE

Pollen thinks the public voice could be heard a little more clearly if people were invited to attend open meetings of council to discuss projects in the planning stage.

Savage and Frampton both agreed that the more participation by the public the better. But not, they stated, to the point where "it's all discussion and no decision."

Frampton noted the Advisory Planning Commission was carefully selected from the public to provide just the voice Pollen is now seeking.

"They are there to advise council and with no political axe to grind," Frampton said. "We usually, but not always, accept their advice. In addition to the commission public hearings are always held prior to council making a final decision."

SPARKED CALL

It was such a public hearing scheduled for Thursday that sparked Pollen's call for participatory planning.

"It sounds fine," said Savage. "I'm all for people participating and tossing their ideas into the pot. But if we're talking about just bringing in people off the street to help us with our planning ideas, we are inviting chaos."

Savage said he had every confidence in the city planning staff "although I shall continue to urge careful design and planning to protect the beautiful environment of this city."

Pollen agreed that the city planning staff was "most capable—but I think that as a city (council) we are not providing the leadership we should."

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh said he had not yet discussed with Pollen the suggestions of public participation in planning.

"It is difficult to comment until I know just what he has in mind," Greenhalgh said. "His ideas may well be excellent and I'm looking forward to hearing them.

"One of our big problems, of course, is finding out just why people are protesting various schemes.

"If they are protesting the design of something and have ideas as to how the design can be improved, then they can contribute a great deal.

"If there is a positive feedback that can be channelled back into a submitted design, then a meting of the minds can be most productive.

"But if the objection is just a fundamental objection to apartments whatever the design; if the people just say we don't like this sort of thing however you design it, well, there isn't really much to be gained from a confrontation, is there?"

Pollen agreed that the reasons for protest were not easy to define.

"If they are just against the use of the property near Spencer Castle whatever is planned, then I think we have to show them that the land must be utilized for some purpose," Pollen said. "What we have to do is find the best purpose.

CAN'T JUST WAIT

"Maybe it's a sophisticated town-house, maybe it's something else. But I don't think we can just let things go until Spencer Castle becomes derelict."

Pollen was referring to a proposal to build 122 luxury apartment suites at a cost of close to $3 million on six acres of land surrounding Spencer Castle.

"I can't blame these people for being up in arms," he said. "I wouldn't want to think that I had to face a solid brick wall every day."

Designers of the concept say they have utilized natural contours of the land plus available landscaping to cut to a minimum anything aesthetically offensive.

Water Supply Ensured By April Showers

Southern Vancouver Island, where snow isn't a factor in water supply, is doing all right this spring.

That's the encouraging word from Ron Upward, commissioner of the Greater Victoria Water District.

Elsewhere in the province, spring runoff is predicted to be well below average because of lack of snow through the winter.

Upward said rainfall on southern Vancouver Island has been "not too bad." While early months were below normal, April was up.

He said reservoirs are full and "I don't anticipate any particular problems."

The April snow survey bulletin of the provincial water resources service said major drainages such as the Columbia, Kootenay and Fraser are expected to have "a much lighter than usual" flow this spring and summer.

The forecast shows average runoffs generally in the 70 to 80 per cent of average range, from a low of 60 per cent at one part of the Kootenay River to a high of 92 per cent for the Kettle River and Okanagan Lake.

Next forecast will be published early in May.

Man Wants Jail But Gets Fine

A 34-year-old Victoria man was said in county court today to have preferred jail to facing the world outside.

"That is what his record and the evidence we have heard suggests," said Judge Montague Drake.

He fined Richard Rodriguez, 34, of 1702 Belmont Avenue, $200 after he had pleaded guilty to stealing men's wear valued at $105 from the Hudson's Bay store on Jan. 29.

Rodriguez said he was unemployed and "broke" at the time.

Judge Drake said recent changes in the Criminal Code of Canada suggested Parliament was taking extenuating circumstances into account in laying down penalties for crime.

Defence counsel C. A. Becker called Victoria psychiatrist Wendell Coady, who said Rodriguez had difficulty mixing with society.

He said Rodriguez was a skilled drywaller who dreaded what his workmates would think of him. After therapy, his whole attitude to society changed and he was "amazed" to find them helpful and friendly.

Judge Drake said he was satisfied Rodriguez had all the potentiality of a "useful member of society."

Becker said all the articles stolen from The Bay had been returned.

Square Merchant Demands War-Protest Compensation

Police Nudge Group Out Into Rain

By JIM HUME

They had enough sense to get out of the rain—and that's what caused the trouble Saturday in Centennial Square.

A handful of damp Viet Nam protesters gathered in the square to sing anti-war songs, stage a clumsy gun-versus-stick scrap and distribute easy-to-throw-away leaflets.

City manager Dennis Young, who gave the go-ahead for Saturday's performance, estimates that at the peak less than 100 protesters were on hand.

Members of the press put the crowd as a slim "slightly more than 50."

And the 50 didn't like the steady rain.

•

They wanted to protest, but preferably in the dry of Centennial Square's store-front arcade.

That proved too much for G. S. Voorsluys of the Cheese Cellar.

He didn't want the protesters in the square at all. And three city policemen called to the scene certainly didn't want them under the dry arcade.

The verbal confrontation between police and protesters was brief, but loud.

The protesters were insulting, the police stubborn.

Eventually the protest moved out into the rain with damp actors staging their guerrilla theatre, a show which raised more smiles from the soggy audience than pangs of conscience.

This morning Voorsluys carried his personal protest to city hall demanding a minimum of $100 in compensation for business lost during the moratorium effort.

City manager Young had little comment on the confrontation.

•

"I gave permission for the gathering," he said. "I have the authority of city council to do that. So does Jack Morgan (director of community services) for that matter.

"Morgan knew this could be a controversial group so sought my endorsation. I gave it.

"I really can't understand what the fuss is all about. We have had far bigger crowds in the square without causing a ripple of protest.

"Like most sensible people these folks wanted to do their thing in the dry. And that's when the trouble started."

Ald. Harold Olafson has indicated that he will take the protest story one stage further later this week. He wants Centennial used by what he terms responsible groups.

CHIEF SILENT

Protesters Protesting

Victoria Police Chief Jack Gregory today declined to comment on a complaint about police handling of a Centennial Square demonstration Saturday.

Letters protesting police intervention in the anti-Vietnam war demonstration have been sent to Gregory and Mayor Courtney Haddock.

The letters were written by Mavis de Girolamo, spokesman for about 25 people who staged guerrilla theatre in Centennial Square to demonstrate Canadian complicity in the Vietnam war.

She said she was mainly concerned over behavior of one officer who ordered demonstrators to move city-owned sound equipment out from under the protection of the arcade into the rain-drenched square.

"We were there not to cause trouble, but we were treated as if we were about to start a riot," said Mrs. de Girolamo.

"A policeman with four stars and an enormous paunch came and yelled at the kids and a young policeman who had been treating us very well."

QUIETENED

She said police also turned down the sound level on the loudspeakers so that folksingers and a speaker were barely audible to the small crowd that gathered to watch the activities.

Mrs. de Girolamo is president of the Voice of Women and a teacher at Quadra elementary.

In the guerrilla theatre pantomime, a large top-hatted man (Uncle Sam) gave money to an American soldier to go to Vietnam where he was to kill a peasant armed only with a stick.

A fourth member of the cast, identified as a Canadian, knelt and polished the soldier's boots.

The mime was repeated several times in the square and on Dogulas.

In a separate encounter with police near the Bank of B.C. on Douglas Mrs. de Girolamo said two officers told demonstrators they could not shout, then quoted parts of the Criminal Code.

While this was going on, she said, shouts of an evangelist could be heard from the Yates and Douglas corner.

When she asked about the distinction between demontsators and evangelists, she was told there is a special provision in the Code for the Christian ministry.

SITE CHANGED FOR HYDRO MEET

B.C. Hydro and Power Authority officials will meet five Munn Road householders Tuesday to discuss possible expropriation of their homes to make way for a new $138,000-volt transmission line.

Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum has deputized E. S. Collins, manager of land development, and C. W. Nash, load depelopment manager, to meet the five residents and discuss any alternative proposals the householders may have for rerouting of the proposed line.

But spokesman for the residents, Pat Codyre, 69, of 1890 Munn, says he has no intention of meeting the Hydro officials at the designated meeting spot.

"They wanted us to meet at a home of one of the five to be ousted. He's since pulled out because he works for Hydro and only has a year to go before he gets his pension."

Instead, Codyre has made arrangements to use the hall of St. Joseph's Church at 757 Burnside.

"We're calling the meeting for 8 p.m. and we expect to get about 400 people out to hear what the Hydro people have to say."

The proposed line, over which the dispute has risen, would lead from Jordan River, along Munn, then Interurban, along Burnside, to a substation in the 2900 block of Douglas.

Pub Incidents Will Die Down Says Hotelman

Incidents involving young drinkers will probably die down as soon as the novelty of getting into bars legally wears off, the president of the Victoria Hotelmen's Association said today.

John Mowr, manager of the Gorge Hotel, was commenting on incidents Saturday night in downtown pubs which resulted in five arrests and caused Churchill Hotel management to close the hotel bar at 10 p.m.

"We've been really pleased here with the way the young people behaved themselves," Mowr said.

WILL SETTLE

"I believe myself that it will settle down."

Late Saturday it was almost impossible to find an empty table at any of the downtown pubs. Large numbers of people walked from one hotel to another looking for a place where they could continue drinking.

A spokesman for the Churchill, scene of a Friday night fight in which a policeman was injured and two men arrested, said the early closing was necessary to prevent further trouble.

At the Red Lion parking lot about 15 persons were involved in a fight, the largest disturbance of the night.

LOT OF ATHLETES

Len Ingraham of the Ingraham Hotel said he is not concerned about incidents because the clientele includes a lot of athletes.

"I think if the kids got out of hand the waiters wouldn't have a chance—the fellas that usually drink here would throw them out."

RCMP END SEARCH

Sidney RCMP have abandoned the search for a 72-year-old Victoria man who disappeared Wendesday from the Brentwood-Mill Bay ferry.

Henry Sing, of 821 Queens, had been the object of a search by police after he was reported missing from the vessel when it docked at Brentwood Wednesday morning.

Details of a note found on the steering wheel of his car have not been released.

It's a Protest Against the White Paper

Geronimo's Spirit Paces Streets

About 20 young Indians wearing red headbands and carrying placards demonstrated on the steps of the legislature and marched through downtown streets Saturday.

The headbands symbolized the "spirit of Geronimo," said Saul Basil, 24, of the Shuswap band at Cache Creek, and the demonstration was aimed at public apathy over proposed changes in the Indian Act.

"We're just concerned people from all over B.C.," Basil said.

"We decided everything's so quiet the government probably thinks we're just sitting back waiting for them to implement the white paper policy."

He referred to an Indian Affairs Department white paper made public last June which proposed sweeping changes in the Indian Act.

Since then Indian leaders have argued the white paper is a blueprint for assimilation and that they were not consulted by the experts who drew it up.

Basil said 50 per cent of the Indian people across Canada are concerned about the implications of the proposed changes, but hardly any white people know what the white paper says.

Herb-Seeds Add Spring Sparkle to Recipes

Spring is a feeling as much as a season. You get it at the sight of a few daffodils poking their heads above ground.

Or maybe you get it when standing in the middle of the kitchen idly waving a mixing spoon and thinking "Let's make something different today".

Let herb seeds lend their difference and put spring sparkle into the foods you prepare.

For instance, if French Fried Shrimps are of your favorite party tidbits, you'll find that sesame seeds added to the batter make them really irresistible. Dill seeds added to a sauce seem to add a very special touch to poached or baked fish.

Here are some other ideas for bringing that spring feeling into the kitchen.

ANISE SEED

They are small green-grey —unmistakably licorice flavored — and may be used whole or crushed in applesauce, beef stew, stewed fruits, appetizers and seafood cookery.

Amount to use:

¼ tsp. crushed in coffee cake mix.
1 tbsp. sprinkled over tops of 1 doz. cupcakes.
1½ tsp. in recipe for 5 doz. cookies.
¼ tsp. in 6 eggs, scrambled or omelet.
⅛ tsp. in 2 tbsp. butter for basting chicken or fish
⅛ tsp. in 2½ cups tomato soup

CARAWAY SEED

Small, brown and crescent shape, these seeds have a pleasant flavor with a sweet undertone, but should be used sparingly. This is the seed that gives rye bread its characteristic flavor. It may be used in biscuits, waffles, potatoes, cookies, rolls, seasoned butters, marinades for meat, coleslaw and chowders.

Amount to use:

¼ tsp. added to 8 ozs. noodles, cooked
1 tsp. in 3 cups potato salad
1 tsp. in vinegar for 2 cups sliced cucumbers
1 tsp. to 2 cups batter for cornbread, waffles or biscuits
½ tsp. sprinkled over top of pound or spice cake before it is baked

CELERY SEED

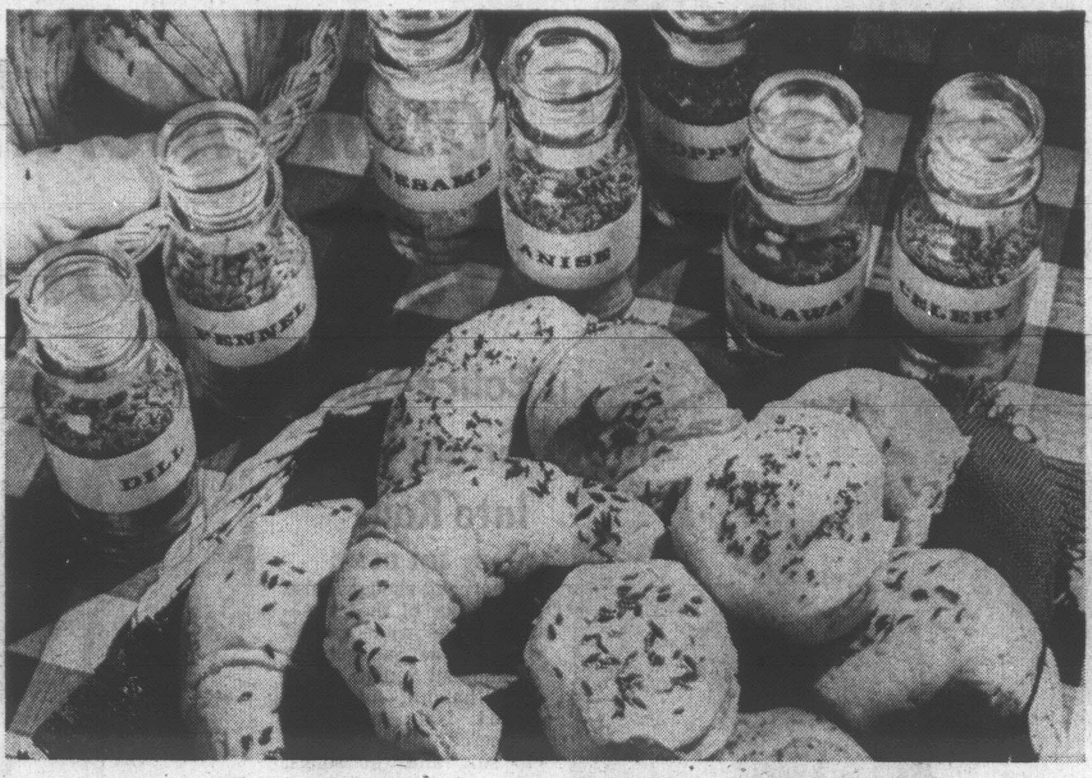
This is the dried seed of a wild variety of the celery plant — very tiny and grey-brown in colour. It's aromatic with a slightly bitter taste. It may be used in canapes, salad dressing, tuna and salmon salads, stewed tomatoes, stuffings and butters. Celery Salt is a combination of ground celery seed and salt.

Amount to use:

⅛ tsp. to 4 cups potato salad
1 tsp. to 1½ cups French or other style dressing for salads
1 tsp. in 2 tbsp. butter brushed on hot rolls, bread or corn muffins
Dash in chilled tomato juice, tomato sauce or scrambled egs

DILL SEED

This seed's flat, oval and light brown and has a pungent, aromatic characteristic flavor. It may be used in salads, sauerkraut, stews, egg dishes, rolls, cottage cheese, dill pickles and pickled beets.



HERB-SEEDS SPICE UP BISCUITS, ROLLS AND MUFFINS

Amount to use:

½ tsp. crushed to 1 lb. ground beef
¼ tsp. crushed in 2 tbsp. butter for seasoning fish fillets or hot vegetables

FENNEL SEED

It was once called "meetin' seed" because the Puritans nibbled it in church. Oval and yellowish brown, it has a slight licorice flavor and may be used in egg and fish cookery, stews, baked apples, spaghetti sauce, sauteed mushrooms, cookies and soups.

Amount to use:

A few added to boiling water for vegetables such as cauliflower, Brussels sprouts and beans
¼ tsp. sprinkled on a 4-lb. roast of pork
⅛ tsp. crushed in 3 cups potato salad
⅛ tsp. in water for cooking 1 lb. shrimp.

POPPY SEED

Slate-blue in colour, the seed appears round but is actually kidney-shaped and has a pleasant, crunchy nut-like flavor. It may be used in cottage and cream cheese mixtures, cheese sticks, cookies, breads, waffles and noodles.

Amount to use:

1 tsp. in mix for 1 doz. corn muffins
2 tbsp. in cookie batter using 3 cups flour
1 tsp. in ¼ cup melted butter stirred into 8 ozs. noodles, cooked
2 tsp. in pastry for 2 crust pie

SESAME SEED

This is one of the most versatile seeds because of its rich nut-like flavor. It is oval-shaped and creamy white. When lightly browned for 15 minutes in a moderate oven, these seeds taste like toasted almonds and may be used in rolls, cookies, pie crusts, candies, dips, casseroles, salads and cheese spreads.

Amount to use:

1 tbsp., browned, in 1-lb. ground beef
¼ cup browned, in 3 cups stuffing for poultry or roast meat
1 tsp. browned, in 2 tbsp. butter melted for hot vegetables
Sprinkle over waffles, tea biscuits, muffins and rolls before baking

SEED ROLLS AND BISCUITS

Serve these piping hot from the oven with casseroles, salads, and fondues:

8 oz. can refrigerated biscuits, crescent rolls, brown-n-serve rolls, butter flake rolls, or a package of muffin mix
2 tbsp. butter, melted herb-seeds such as poppy, sesame, anise, fennel, caraway, dill or celery.

Make biscuits or rolls as package directs. Brush with or dip tops into melted butter then into seeds.

When using a muffin mix, omit melted butter and simply sprinkle seeds on top of batter before baking.

Bake as package directs. Serve hot from oven.

Fingers Uncover Pre-Soaked Pads

By PENNY SAVER

"Close your eyes, Penny," said Mathilda, "and don't peek."

I obediently covered them with my hands.

"No, no, just close them," she said. "You'll need your hands for this."

At this point, I felt her give me something circular and hard.

"Bet you can't guess what it is," my aunt said.

Determined to prove her wrong I concentrated like mad, and even managed to determine that that what-ever-it-was was a little screw-top container.

Gingerly I unscrewed it, felt inside then popped my eyes open with surprise.

"Yetch," I said, poking at the moist white pad it held. "It has to be nail polish remover. Look at my poor nail!"

And that is exactly what Mathilda's mystery box contained: many, many very thin pads soaked in nail polish remover.

"Cute, isn't it," Mathilda said. "And it costs only 49 cents.

"I have no idea how many of those little pads there are in there — they are so thin that there could be dozens in that scant half inch of depth.

"Meanwhile the whole thing is terribly compact and seems to be nice and leak-proof. Wonderful for a trip."

The nail-polish remover is only one in a line of plastic boxed, pre-soaked travel tissues. It comes in one size only.

The face tissues come in both two sizes and two kinds.

Creamless Base

The plain face cleanser is 39 cents for a small box (the same size, to my eyes at least, as the nail polish box) and 39 cents for a large box, which is quite a bit larger in diameter but not much deeper.

This cleaner has no cream base and is mainly for washing off grit, grime and that un-fresh feeling.

Makeup remover, on the other hand, has the creamy base needed to cut through powder and base without harming the skin. The small size costs 49 cents while the large size is 69 cents.

I understand there is also an eye-makeup remover with a special soaking agent that will remove mascara, liner and shadow without irritating the tender eye-lid, The store did not have this in stock when I visited, however, so I couldn't get prices.

Each different cleaner comes in a different color case, making it easy to grab the right one when you are in a hurry.

Mathilda's nail polish remover told me that the pads are stronger than they look, but gave me no indication as to how long one would last. That would, in any case, vary with the size of the job.

If you would like to know where to find these portable touch-up pads, please call 382-3131 between 9 a.m. and 12 noon.

DEAR ABBY . . .

More to Manhood

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A few weeks ago, my husband and I received the final word that we can never have a child of our own becasue my husband is sterile. (We've been married for nine years and have wanted a family right from the start.)

I heard about artificial insemination, and it interested me. That way I will be the baby's natural mother, which I think is pererable to adopting achild.

My husband is against the idea in principle. He says there is something immoral about it. (He can't explain it logically. He just says that he doesn't want me to carry another man's child.)

I think he's wrong. I will never see the man, and I can't see anthing immoral about it. I would appreciate your views. — Thinking it Over

DEAR THINKING: I agree with you. Perhaps your husband feels inadequate because he cannot produce a child, and he resents any other man who can. Tell him that it's easy to be a father. It's far more difficult to be a man.

DEAR ABBY: What would you say if your boyfriend called you and said, "Hey, if I asked you to marry me last night, I must have been drunk." — Sue

DEAR SUE: I'd have said, "And if I said 'yes', I must have been crazy."

DEAR ABBY: Recently I received an invitation to a baby shower given for my daughter-in-law. At the bottom of every invitation the hostess wrote, "No children, please."

Some of the invited guests later said they thought her "no children please" request was the rudest thing they had ever seen. I would like your opinion. — Embarrassed

DEAR EMBARRASSED: I have more admiration for the hostess who prefers that children be left at home, and plainly says so, than the one who doesn't want them, lacks the courage to say so, and later complains to everyone who will listen about the "nerve" of those who drag their children along to adult parties. (This goes double for people who don't care for their friends' pets.)

DEAR ABBY: You recently printed a letter from a mother whose college son was living with a gril, and insisted that he didn't need a "piece of paper" to live with his girl friend. He sad, "What's a piece of paper?"

Very likely he is old enough to have bought a car. He certainly didn't take it out of the car lot without a "piece of paper" called a title. And he will never buy a house without a "piece of paper."

And if he ever graduates from college, he will no doubt want that "piece of paper" called a diploma.

He will live his life with "pieces of paper," beginning with his birth certificate, and ending with another piece of paper — his death certificate. And one of the most important "pieces of paper" he will ever have will be his marriage license. — Mrs. R. S.

SLEEPING BAGS AND VIOLINS

When 35 Victoria musicians went to Seattle for a talent education festival, their main luggage consisted of sleeping bags, for the convenience of the families where they were billetted, and their instruments. The children, students of Frona Colquhoun, had been invited to attend the festival along with groups from Bellingham and Spokane. Since all are studying the Suzuki method of violin, the 200 youngsters were able to play together, the more advanced starting off and the younger ones coming in later until the entire group played together. Miss Colquhoun's group added a special Canadian flavor, departing from the usual repertoire to play the Huron Carol, the earliest known Canadian folk work which has been proven authentic. Among the young players attending from Victoria were (from the top) John Ebell, Terry Prior, Allison Howard, Jeannette Kirk, Katherine Barbin, and Michelle McConachie. St. Teresa Had the Last Laugh

By COLMAN McCARTHY

WASHINGTON — Saint-Watchers, Spaniards and the occasional odd person who still believes that modern man has much to learn from the past, received happy news recently. St. Teresa of Avila, mystic, reformer, writer but above all a common-sense Christian, was proclaimed a Doctor of the Church.

The event probably would have passed unnoticed in the secular press were not women's liberation now a growth industry. In the case of St. Teresa, the liberation means that she is the first woman to get on the church's list of doctors, now in the club with 29 male giants of theology that includes Augustine, Aquinas and Francis de Sales.

Of all those who have come a long way, Teresa has perhaps come the longest; at the height of her career, which then seemed like the depth, she was written off by an angry papal nuncio as a restless gadabout — or in the Latin, femina inquieta.

POPE SNEERED

The Vatican's man sneered that she was proud and disobedient and "teaches theology as though she were a Doctor of the Church."

In making Teresa exactly that, the Vatican admits the laugh is on them.

The importance of this Spanish nun in the 16th century is much the same reason for her importance in the 20th: as then, the church is now in disarray and in need of direction; as then, holiness is still mistakenly seen as a goal meant only for a few gymnasts of piety, not the many mortals of ordinary muscle; as then, the times now need nothing so much as a reformer with a sense of delight and a gift for humor.

On the last point, Teresa said it best in her famous one-liner, "God deliver us from sullen saints." Today, she would beg relief also from sullen politicians, sullen pundits, sullen everybodies.

STORMY TIMES

Teresa was born to middle-class parents in 1515 in the walled city of Avila, 50 miles west of Madrid. The times were stormy.

During her life of 67 years, Henry VIII ran England on the whim of his lust, Pizarro killed and plundered in Peru, Luther nailed his gripes on a church door, El Greco brooded over Toledo and Calvin concocted his theory of total depravity. As if this weren't enough, Spain hosted the inquisition, a period of death and torture that catholicism has never lived down.

At 20, Teresa entered the Carmelites, a contemplative order named after Mt. Carmel in Palestine, where the prophet Elijah disappeared into heaven. That Teresa enjoyed a youth of gaiety and romance is shown in her remark to a young man at a banquet who couldn't take his eyes off her pretty feet in dancing slippers: "Have a good look, caballero," said Teresa, leaving shortly for the convent, "you won't be getting another chance."

Once in the cloister, the young woman saw the need for reform: the Carmelite convents, like all of Spain, were no more centres of Christian living then, the country estates of the Castillian rich. Nuns wore jewelry, threw parties, nibbled on sweetmeats and settled for the good life, not the spiritual life.

Since Teresa had a natural and searching honesty, it was all too much for her. "Serving God in justice, fortitude of soul and humility" should be the only adventure for the contemplative sister, she said.

SPIRITUAL PAIN

Before beginning her reform of the Carmelites and shakeup of the Spanish church, Teresa lived as a simple convent nun. She suffered what her friend St. John of the Cross called "the dark night of the soul," a state of spiritual pain in which all feeling of God is lost, but which, once passes through, teases the soul into a new and higher level of consciousness. Yet, Teresa was anything but long-faced about the trial. "No wonder you have so few friends," she said familiarly to God, "when you treat the ones you have so badly."

After 30 years as a nun in the ranks — "even in the kitchen, our Lord moves among the pots and pans" — Teresa was ready to take on the Spanish hierachy and empurpled errand boys from the Vatican.

With a wily knowledge of church intrigue, she not only reformed her order by founding 17 new convents in Spain in which obedience, poverty and charity were restored; Teresa also, says British biographer Victoria Saskville-West, "was attacking by implication the whole rot and demoralization of the Spanish church, and the clergy knew it."

But always the light touch was present.

To a young nun, who like so many then and today, exaggeratingly pictured herself as the worst of sinners, Teresa quipped: "Now, sister, remember none of us are perfect. Just make sure those sins of yours don't turn into bad habits."

Last summer, a historic meeting of contemplative sisters — as opposed to ones in the active ministry — was held in Woodstock, MD. Resolutely, they decided to go ahead with renewing their orders, including the Carmelites, whether Rome smiled or not.

Reports from the week-long meeting say that never was there a group of women so full of enthusiasm, hope, common sense and laughter. If a Terasa was there, the church is lucky again.

Therapist to Join Local VON Staff

At the recent monthly meeting of the Board of directors of the Victorian Order of Nurses, it was announced that Miss June Nickson, a physio-occupational therapist, will join the Victoria branch as a visiting therapist in early May.

Mrs. T. F. Rose reported on a meeting of the Community Council and its efforts to coordinate work of various agencies to avoid duplication.

In the nursing report, Miss Lillian Randall noted 2,106 visits made. She said that additional relief staff was needed on only four days during March as nurses were relinquishing non-nursing activities and spending less time in the office. A second full time clerical worker was added to the staff during the month to make this possible.

Victoria branch representatives to the annual VON meeting in Winnipeg May 7 will be Mrs. G. A. Jones and Miss Randall.

The annual meeting of the provincial branch of VON will be held in Victoria May 22. B.C. Health Minister Ralph Loffmark will speak.

Men's Coats Going Maxi

Men's coats are gioing back to the length they were in the '30s and '40s. What's called "midi" in women's wear will appear in male fashions next fall as outerwear, according to British firms now showing in this country. Some avant-garde American makers have already done the Humphrey Bogart look here, such as Russel Taylor in fur fabrics.

British stylists like detailing for their longer coats, reviving wide belts, epaulets, big patch pockets and sleeve belts. A rich brown is a new color that Bogy never knew, while the swagger trench coat appears in a wide variety of leathers and suedes. There will be lots of simulated furs, too, which promise to be widely popular next fall, as this year the makers ran out before demand was satisfied.

Garden Variety Tiaras Fail as Status Symbols

By ENID NEMY

NEW YORK — Miss America is always given one. The first time she wears it she usually cries.

Mrs. Richard Nixon doesn't own one and wouldn't. "I don't want any of that," she said when the idea was broached.

The First Lady and the pageant queen are exceptions. Most women who are given tiaras accept them and manage to restrain their tears. An astonishing number have done so.

As in most facets of fashion, there are status tiaras and the garden variety that do little more than fit the dictionary definition of "a decorative band or semi-circular ornament for the head, often made of flowers, fabric or metal for wear by women on formal occasions."

The status of the old tiaras is usually conferred by the eminence of the former owner (almost any kind of royalty will do) and in new tiaras, price is the name of the game.

"You' can't do much for less than $10,000 — not with the price of diamonds today," said Harry Winston, President of the jewelry firm that bears his name. "We have a few in stock but most of them are made to order in platinum and diamonds and sometimes with emeralds."

At Van Cleef and Arpels, where "tiaras are always in demand," according to Claude Arpels, prices go from $20,000 to $300,000. The store's boutique does, however, carry a gold tiara with semi-precious stones, for $1,000.

A practice followed by many women including, so they say, Princess Grace of Monaco, is wearing a tiara on what is called a "platinum band system." The band forms a basic semi-circle on the head and the adnormnent consists of one's own boubles. This system allows for greater variety and is, of course, less expensive, but the owners of honest-to-goodness tiaras regard the idea as just a few steps removed from the $500 Miss America Crown.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney is "terribly happy" with hers, once owned by the Empress Elizabeth of Austria, wife of Emperor Franz Josef.

"It wasn't one of the Empress's major tiaras," Mrs. Whitney said candidly. "It was just an everyday tiara but when you wear it, inside you feel absolutely great. A tiara moves up a lady greatly."

The everyday tiara has 1,900 diamonds (weighing 180 carats) and 75 rubies and is shaped into wild roses and sparkling dew drops. It is set on little springs "to wiggle a little with a lovely movement when I walk."

Mrs. Whitney pins her tiara on with four bobby pins and then forgets she has it on.

"I enjoy wearing it because it's light and so well distributed," she said. "A heavy tiara can ruin a woman's evening."

Square Dance Callers Admit Equality of Sexes

TORONTO (CP) — It's a small step for equality of the sexes, and a giant-jig step for female square-dance callers.

LaVerne Major has become the first woman to be admitted to the Canadian Old Tyme Square Dance Callers' Association.

Mrs. Major, who calls for a group in suburban Toronto, was admitted to the organization after passing entrance requirements and being approved by the general membership.

There are about 70 members in Ontario.

She says she knows about 40 of 500 possible "calls" — dancing instructions called out to jig or reel music.

Mrs. Major says one of the drawbacks to calling is the shortage of good square-dancing halls. Some she says, are acoustically poor. Others are simply too expensive.

The lady caller says she became interested in dancing as a small child, when she danced for soldiers and their wives in her home town of Erindale, Ont.

ARMY SEARCH CONTINUES

Guerrilla Troops Invade Cuba

HAVANA (Reuters) — Cuban forces today hunted a heavily armed band of anti-Castro invaders who landed in Oriente province Friday—the ninth anniversary of the defeat of the U.S. backed Bay of Pigs invasion.

A communique issued by Premier Fidel Castro said the invaders came from U.S. territory and landed before dawn Friday, at almost preciesly the same time that the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion by more than 1,000 Cuban exiles took place in 1961.

Cuban soldiers have clashed twice with the invading force, whose total number was not announced, killing two of them, capturing three and suffering casualties of four killed and two wounded, the communique said.

Cuban authorities have issued no further news of the invasion since Castro's communique, dated April 18, appeared Sunday in the newspaper Juventud Rebelde. But observers here were surprised that word of the invasion was released before it had been defeated.

Units of the army, mountain militia and frontier guards were continuing their hunt in a mountanious region near the mouth of the Yumuri River, about 125 miles from the Sierra Maestra Mountains where Castro himself fought a two-year guerrilla war before toppling dictator Fulgencio Batista in 1959.

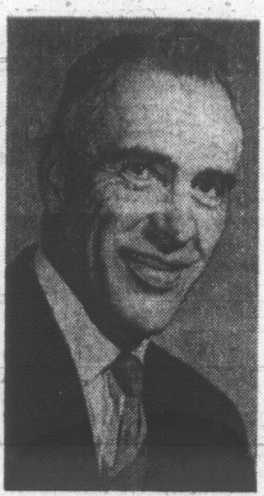
Castro's communique said his forces engaged the invaders almost immediately after they landed near the town of Baracoa, on the eastern tip of Oriente province, capturing two men armed with automatic rifles, 2,000 cartridges and packets of plastic explosives.

The next clash with the invaders occurred Saturday afternoon. Four government troops were killed and two wounded, and the invaders lost two dead and one captured, the communique said.

The Cuban premier, who also is commander-in-chief of the armed forces, said the invasion was carried out by "a group of mercenaries coming from the United States, equipped with modern automatic weapons of the Yankee army."

Denouncing the invasion attempt, he said: "Bandit activities are part of the imperialists' plans to obstruct and hinder the sugar harvest."

The harvest, which planned to reach a record 10,000,000-ton target by July, this week achieved 6,000,000 tons, lagging seriously behind schedule.



GANT

. . . 'it's a knack'

'Trained Pipeline Welders Can Earn $30,000 a Year'

Trained pipeline welders, who can earn up to $30,000 a year, are in great demand, says Robert Gant of Calgary, newly-elected president of the Pipeline Constractors' Association of Canada.

"Grade 12?" he was asked.

"Grade 2," he shot back, "if a boy is keen and willing to apply himself. But, of course, it's a knack, like newspaper reporting and many other jobs you can't learn at university."

He added, however, that some preliminary schooling is required and would-be pipeline welders can take a six-week course in the basics of welding at schools in Vancouver, Edmonton, Saskatoon and other major centres.

"After that it's up to the man himself. He must learn by hard work and experience, and I would say it takes up to five years to make a first-class pipeline welder.

"In the process he has to do a lot of welding outdoors in all kinds of weather. It takes guts, determination and, as I've said, a knack for the job. Pipe welding is much more difficult than workshop welding."

WORK IN FRANCE

Gant said skilled pipeline welders can earn up to $30,000 a year, but the average is closer to $10,000. There are plenty of opportunities for travel and a number of Canadian welders are working in France.

This was affirmed by Robert Butler, who represents the Pipe Line Construction Association in Paris, France.

"Too many young people today are afraid of leaving the cities," he said. "There are all kinds of opportunity outside, but you have to seek them."

Both men were interviewed at the close of a four-day convention of the Pipe Line Contractors Association of Canada in the Empress Hotel. Nearly 300 delegates and their wives from all provinces attended.

ELECTED

Gant was elected president Saturday afternoon in succession to O. J. Johanson of Vancouver.

"Labor-management relations today are suffering from lack of communication and sometimes lack of mutual respect," he said. "We need more commonsense and more equilibrium in our negotiations.

"It is becoming too common for labor organizations to make their demands to management through the press. This is a two-edged sword that makes negotiations difficult on both sides.

"When labor's demands have been announced in the press, it is very difficult for labor leaders to compromise with management—and some compromise is necessary in all walks of life.

Dr. R. R. Jeffels, director of admissions at the University of Victoria, called for a new morality in modern living in an address to the wives of delegates Saturday morning.

"There is a growing heathenism in the world today," he said. "People live for the pleasures of the moment and neglect the things of the spirit, with little regard for the future.

"All through the ages man has had a moral sense of one kind or another. Today there is a very good chance that man's moral sense may be cast aside to the detriment of civilization."

Dr. Jeffels said he was not speaking as a religionist.

"But the moral principles of Christianity and other faiths are predicated on the rich experience of countless generations of human life. They are just as valid as scientific principles."

Democratic Vote Elects Dictator

BOGOTA (AP) — Former dictator Gustavo Rojas Pinilla appeared today to have been elected president of Colombia, thanks to divisions in the conservative-liberal coalition formed 13 years ago to end his dictatorship.

The unofficial tabulation with 95 per cent of the vote counted showed the 70-year-old retired general ahead of Misrael Pastrano Borrero, official candidate of the governing National Front, by 24,000 votes. Rojas had 1,464,000 votes, Pastrana 1,440,000, moderate leftist Belisario Betancur 455,000 and rightist Evaristo Sourdis 174,000 votes.

Official results so far put Rojas in the lead by nearly 22,000 votes, with 1,117,902. Pastrana had 1,096,140, Betancur 353,697 and Sourdis 157,458.

SETBACK FOR COALITION

Rojas's apparent victory was a major setback for the divided National Front and President Carlos Lleras Restrepo. Both Betancur and Sourdis ran as breakaway candidate from the National Front, taking the margin of victory from the official candidate.

Rojas proclaimed himself president-elect for the four-year term starting Aug. 7 and said he was elected because of resentment against "exploitation by the oligarchy."

Government Minister Carlos Augusto Noriega said the government would not accept the outcome "until the last vote is counted."

Rojas's daughter, Maria Elena, 37, managed her father's political comeback campaign on a populist platform promising to lower taxes, revalue the peso, reduce inflation, and nationalize the import trade.

Gloomy Future Feared For World Grain Sales

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — A gloomy future for world grain marketing is forecast by the International Wheat Council in its latest study of consumption trends.

It figures that for the next five years, at least, the marketing trend will be downward with consumers in the wealthier countries switching more to meat instead of cereals.

In the developing countries the consumption trend is upward for wheat and other grains but new seed and new production techniques suggest that most of this expansion will be met from domestic production.

The most dynamic growth will be in use of grains, including wheat, for animal feed but for the most part of this growth is unlikely to offset the over-all marketing decline for cereals, says the study prepared by the council's secretariat and published today.

Certain specific types of wheat, such as Canadian hard varieties, may escape from the over-all decline. But the most that can be predicted for these escapees is that the breadmaking needs for hard wheat in northwest Europe "is likely to remain relatively constant."

INCOMPLETE FORECAST

This forecast is based mainly on trends in the non-Communist world. The council, which administers international grain agreements, says that little is known about consumption trends in these "central-planned countries "but any increase in their imports of grains is unlikely to outweigh the falling requirements of the other economic groupings."

"Hence, the decline in world grains trade from the high levels of the mid-60s, which had become apparent by the end of the decade, would not be expected, on the basis of current consumption trends, to be wholly reversed in the near future."

The great world demand for meat indicates a sharply higher market for feed grains and wheat so far has played a limited part in this world market because of its high price especially in relation to corn.

"Lower prices might encourage the use of wheat but it will generally be a matter of policy in developed countries whether to import the extra grain required or grow it domestically," the council says.

"Feed use, even of course though given an acceleration in the medium-term future alin most developing countries in grains, is likely to remain small high rate of income growth, this domestic grain production and a factor could become significant in the longer perspective."

HIGHER YIELDS EXPECTED

At another point the report says: "It now seems very likely that grain production in many developing countries will be enabled to rise above even the more optimistic forecasts of a few years ago because of the impact of the new high-yielding and disease-resistant varieties of grains currently being introduced."

Most developed countries now have reached the stage where the average person consumes less wheat. In the developing areas, the switch to wheat from coarse grains is increasing.

"The global effect of economic growth at present is therefore to increase grain consumption but as it also affects the potential for grain production, particularly in developing countries, there may not be a proportionate or indeed any increase in world trade arising from this factor."

Tonight's Top Television Shows

HERE'S LUCY. 7 p.m., Channel 8; 8:30, Channel 7. (Repeat). It's old-home night with Vivian Vance on the show. Viv, with all her vocal power intact, presses her best friend for a promised date with Lawrence Welk. Lucy, of course, has no pipeline to the bandleader, and she's desperate enough to settle for a wax version. Welk does put in an appearance, however, just to make everybody happy.

* * *

GOVERNOR AND J.J. 7:30 p.m., Channel 2. Cat on a Hot Tin Mansion has the governor in a state of apoplexy. A leopard from his daughter's zoo escapes and runs wild through the place . . . as do a quartet of visiting VIPs. Dan Daily is the governor, Julie Sommars is J.J.

* * *

GREEN ACES. 8 p.m., Cahnnels 2 and 6. The Douglases plan an old-fashioned picnic, but word travels fast. Much to Oliver's dismay, it appears as if the whole of Hooterville will be tagging along. Larry Mann appears in the guest cast tonight, as Wheeler.

* * *

SPECIAL. 8 p.m., Channel 5. (Taking Care of Business). (Repeat) If you missed this pop-rock special and you're a fan of Diana Ross and the Supremes, be sure to tune in and hear them sing their way through the hour, aided and abetted by The Temptations, a rhythmic male quintet. Both groups perform alone or together, singing such tunes as "Stop in the Name of Love," "My Girl," "Taste of Honey," "Mrs. Robinson," "Respect," "Ain't Too Proud to Beg," and "Impossible Dream."

* * *

CAROL BURNETT. 8:30 p.m., Channel 8. Bing Crosby, Ella Fitzerald, Dan Rowan and Dick Martin join Carol for tonight's antics. Bing recalls his Road movies; Carol spoofs Marlene Dietrich; and Dan and Carol do the sleeping bag scene from For Whom the Bell Toils.

* * *

MAYBERRY R.F.D. 9 p.m., Channel 7. (Repeat) Andy Griffith showed he couldn't stay away from the medium in this episode. As Sheriff Andy, he turns up in Mayberry with wife Helen and new baby for his son's christening, and immediately arouses resentment over the choice of Sam Jones as godfather. The premise gets Goober, Howard Sprague and fixit-man Emmett into the act and all the men become riled, adding a little fire to the normally placid atmosphere of the series.

* * *

NET JOURNAL. 9 p.m., Channel 9. "The Long Walk." Provocative both as a contemporary study of the Navajo Indian and a historical review of United States' Government-Indian relations. The fact that many Navajos are the spokesmen on this documentary makes it more compelling than usual. "The long walk" of the title refers to a journey made under duress by thousands of Navajos back in 1864, from their homes to Fort Sumner, where they remained for four years until an agreement was finally reached between their Chiefs and the government in Washington. Tune in and discover subsequent mistakes of judgment made on both sides — on Washington's in depriving the Navajos of their decision-making power as leaders of their people and their culture — and on the Chiefs in not taking the education of the young into their own hands — a project which is only now being given a successful tryout.

CBS REPORTS. 10 p.m., Channel 7, 12. "Health in America, Part I: The Promise and the Practice." Don't miss this three-part series on the health of the nation and the difficulties people in all sectors are having in finding adequate medical care. Part I tonight focuses on a few widely divergent areas and discovers that a shortage of doctors is common to them all. In Wolcott, Indiana, for example, a wealthy farming community well able to pay for medical care, has simply had no doctor at all for two long years. In Lee County, Arkansas, not so wealthy a community as Wolcott, there's one hospital with 27 beds for 24,000 people, good equipment, but no surgeon, and where, it seems, the poor and sick "stay sick." In Chicago, rich in hospitals and medical schools, there's only one public charity hospital for 300,000 West Side poverty ghetto inhabitants. The program examines an out-patient clinic in Boston's Massachusetts General Hospital and finds its doctors overworked and patients waiting in line, and discovers also that a general practitioner in Poughkeepsie, New York, can't find a replacement for his thriving practice. This documentary closes by asking the medical profession how long the people will wait for an answer to the problem.

SIX BLASTS ROCK SEATTLE

SEATTLE (AP) — Police confirmed at least six explosions hit the predominantly black central area of the city Sunday night, including the home of Washington State Representative David Sprague.

There were no reports of injuries. Police said the blasts occurred within minutes of one another.

Two explosions in a real estate office and drive-in restaurant in the same block knocked out glass in many businesses in the area.

Another blast was reported at a Japanese Presbyterian church.

In February, an explosion damaged the home of State Senator Fred Dore in the same area. Dore's wife and four of their children were in the home at the time, but escaped injury.

Seattle has had about 60 bombings in recent months.

Mayors Urging House Program

By GORDON POLLARD

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities today urged the federal cabinet to adopt "a positive housing program" to serve the dual purpose of creating jobs and relieving the current housing shortage.

In presenting the federation's annual brief to the cabinet, federation president Mayor Allan O'Brien of Halifax said it is necessary to pursue policies designed "to cope with high inflation and high unemployment simultaneously."

He said the municipalities recognize that it is in their interest to support "a broadscale attack on inflation," but at the same time deplore unemployment caused by the anti-inflation drive.

There has long been an unfortunate tendency for both the federal government and the provincial governments to regard municipalities as "convenient spending agencies in times of recession and convenient non-spending agencies in times of inflation," he said.

He noted that rising unemployment and expanded welfare rolls have placed an added burden on municipal finances, critically reducing money required to deal effectively with such problems as housing, urban transportation and pollution control.

URGES CHANGE

Mayor O'Brien called for a change from a policy of "regional discrimination" to one of "program discrimination" which would recognize housing and unemployment as "equal, although not necessarily related" policies.

He said any solution to urban problems must involve close co-operation among federal, provincial and municipal authorities.

The federal government, he said, can assist in two ways: by "getting its own urban policy in focus" and by co-ordinating urban policies among the three levels of government.

He stressed that such co-operation can be effective only if each level of government is allowed to participate in determining long-term spending priorities. Federal - provincial conferences are therefore an inadequate means of dealing with urban problems.

In receiving the brief, Prime Minister Trudeau said he fully subscribes to the federation's belief that effective long-term planning is needed to combat urban problems.

"If we don't act now the future of Canada will be determined by economic and social forces outside our control," he said.

WILL STUDY PROPOSALS

He promised the government would give careful consideration to any specific recommendations the federation could offer concerning ways in which the federal government can improve its co-ordinating role among the three levels of government.

Treasury Board Chairman C. M. Drury said the government's campaign against inflation requires "painful restraint," limiting money available to municipalities in the immediate future.

Robert Andras, minister without portfolio responsible for housing, defended the government's housing policy but agreed that it could be improved by better planning.

Space Trio Begin Debriefing Session

By HOWARD BENEDICT

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo 13 astronauts began telling specialists today what happened on their near-tragic space flight, a journey they feared they might not survive.

After a joyous homecoming Sunday night, James A. Lovell, Fred W. Haise and John L. Swigert met with space centre officials.

The first debriefing session started at 8 a.m. and concentrated on events leading up to the oxygen tank explosion that placed the astronauts' lives in jeopardy.

What the astronauts report may help pinpoint the cause of the accident which aborted man's third moon-landing attempt. A 150-man team of experts here continued to search for clues in radio data and photographs taken by the spacemen.

On Tuesday, the astronauts will meet with representatives of a high-level review board named to investigate the mishap.

Lovell, Haise and Swigert returned to their homes near the Manned Spacecraft Centre Sunday night after a flight from Honolulu. They were greeted by more than 5,000 persons who gathered at nearby Ellington Air Force Base.

Lovell told the crowd:

"Needless to say, Jack and Fred and I are very proud and glad to be back here in Texas tonight because there were many times when we really didn't think we'd make it back here."

"And I can say with all sincerity," the Apollo commander added, "we would not be here if it was not for the people on the ground, in Mission Control Centre, helping us all the way."

FOURTH WELCOME

It was the fourth welcome since the spacemen returned safely to earth Friday with a bull's-eye splashdown in the Pacific.

The others were aboard the recovery carrier Iwo Jima, on their first landfall in Samoa, and in Honolulu where President Nixon Saturday gave them the country's highest civilian award, the Medal of Freedom. The president praised their poise and skill in bringing their spaceship in after it was damaged last Monday night 202,000 miles from home.

Nixon took the wives of Lovell and Haise and the parents of bachelor Swigert to Honolulu to greet the astronauts.

Churches around the world Sunday offered prayers of thanksgiving for the safe return of the spacemen.

Edgar Cortright, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Langley Research Centre in Hampton, Va., was named Friday to head the Apollo 13 review board that will investigate the accident.

Cortright said he plans to meet in Washington with NASA Administrator Thomas Paine and his assistant, George Low, "to begin selecting the board members and determining what other support personnel will be necessary to conduct this investigation."

Cortright said he would be at the space centre Tuesday to talk with the astronauts.

50 ADDED TO TEAM

The space agency added 50 members Sunday to an original 100-man mission evaluation team which is analysing evidence to determine what caused the No. 1 oxygen tank in the spaceship's service module to blow up.

The explosion wiped out the command ship's main oxygen and power supplies and forced the spacemen to rely on the systems of the lunar module for survival during the four days it took them to get back to earth.

The investigation will centre on the oxygen tank and its electrical and plumbing systems—a tank which burst at a pressure of 1,008 pounds a square inch, damaging an adjacent oxygen tank and blowing out a 10-foot-long panel on the side of the service module.

NASA released black and white pictures that the astronauts snapped of the service module when they separated from it before re-entering the atmosphere.

The photos, printed from color negatives, are poorly lighted. But one of them hints of the severity of the explosion. It shows the gaping hole left by the panel blowout. Also visible are the power-producing fuel cells that were made inoperative by the rupture.

Wires, pipes and dangling insulation material are visible, too, but the area where the oxygen tank exploded is in darkness.

BEST OF 25 TAKEN

Astronaut James McDivitt, head of the space centre's Apollo program office, said the two photos are the best of 25 stills made by the Apollo 13 crew.

But officials hope for better luck from motion picture footage to be developed later this week.

McDivitt said the photos would be subjected to several enrichment techniques but that the real key is going to be the telemetry—that is, the radio data—not the photographs.

What the mission evaluation team and review board find will determine the future of the Appollo program. The Appollo 14 mission is set for an Oct. 1 launching to the moon, but undoubtedly will be delayed by corrections that will have to be made to the spaceship.

Even if the cause of the explosion turns out to be something simple to fix, safety probably will dictate a delay. There will have to be redesign, and additional backup systems may have to be built.

The review board probably will require weeks to investigate the failure, just as a similar board did after the Apollo 1 fire that killed three astronauts on a Cape Kennedy launching pad in January, 1967.

Congress, which has been increasingly reluctant to spend large sums of money for space exploration, will hold hearings to investigate shortcomings.

HOME GARDEN

Rock, Alpine Plants to Feature

By HILDA BEASTALL.

The annual show of the Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society comes just at the right time of the year. Spring is well established, but nowhere near the end of its multitudes of delights, so that the show covers the best of the long season.

Hilda

Not limited strictly to rock and alpine plants, the show is for all gardeners; indeed for all residents and visitors who see and admire Victoria's gardens in spring.

It is here that flowering and foliage shrubs will be seen correctly named. Many daffodils and tulips will be shown with their names; rhododendrons and their relatives the azaleas will be seen with names; and the treasures of alpine gardens will be displayed as complete growing plants.

The Memorial Hall of Christ Church Cathedral, Rockland Avenue entrance, is the place where all this beauty will be on view Friday and Saturday.

Newcomers to this area whose property has massive rock outcroppings will find at this show answers to their problems. How to make a garden of some kind of rock? And why are the expensive shrubs planted a year ago no longer looking happy?

Rock in a garden area usually will indicate a warm soil, perhaps only two or three inches in depth. At the low point of rocks, water may lie all winter. Answers to these and similar problems can be found in talking to growers and exhibitors who will be met at the show.

If your gardening is the indoor type, perhaps in a sunny apartment with a balcony, you may pick up ideas of constructing a tray garden of hardy outdoor plants — slow growing enough to last several years without replacement.

Or you may become fascinated with bonsai, either to produce your own creation or to purchase one already established.

These gardens in miniature of hardy plants offer the least problem to apartment dwellers, especially if a balcony is part of the home. The tray will thrive outdoors during either summer or winter absences, and be ready at any time to bring inside again for further enjoyment.

On Friday the show will beopenfrom 2 to 10 and on Saturday from 10 until 9:30.

For young parents who will want to enjoy this lovely show together, a babysitting service will be provided on Saturday afternoon.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

Possibly the loveliest play to behold is the "double squeez." This is a play in which each of the opponents is squeezed. Here it is in action. The hand occurred in a recent tournament.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ♠	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♡	Pass	7 ♠	Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♡.

South's opening two spade bid was perhaps on the shaded side. He had four-plus losers in his hand. North assumed that South had game in his own hand (10 tricks), and he figured that he could provide three winners, which would bring the total to 13. So he bid the grand slam after checking for aces.

Had declarer guessed to play low from dummy on the opening heart lead, his queen would have won the trick, and the grand slam would have been there for the taking. But, not unnaturally, declarer was not going to stake his existence on a trick-one finesse if an alternative line of play was available.

So he won the first trick with dummy's ace of hearts, after which he ruffed a heart with the spade eight. A trump was then led to the board's queen, and another heart was ruffed, with south's nine-spot. On this trick, East discarded the diamond king.

The diamond three was then played to dummy's ace, and a fourth heart was ruffed in the closed hand. Declarer now played the rest of his trumps. This was the position prior to the lead of South's last trump:

When South next led his trump jack, West had to discard a club in order to hold the heart king. The heart jack was discarded from dummy. If East discarded the diamond queen, he would make a winner out of South's diamond nine. If he discarded a club instead, South would make three club tricks.

Actually, East discarded the diamond queen, hoping his partner possessed the nine-spot, but it was to no avail.

YOUR HEALTH

Cirrhosis of Liver Shows Big Increase

Dy DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Some people write much alarmed because their doctor has told them that they have cirrhosis of the liver. Perhaps some veins on their abdominal wall or in their gullet have enlarged, and perhaps fluid has accumulated in their abdominal cavity.

I read in a article in "Today's Health," by Jean Carper, that in 1966, cirrhosis of the liver was the 11th leading cause of death among adults in the United States. By 1968, it was the 10th leading cause, accounting for 14.5 deaths out of every 100,000 persons. In big cities, the increase is even more striking. For instance, in New York City in 1949, the mortality rate from cirrhosis was 18 deaths per 100,000 and by 1967 it had increased to 34.7 deaths per 100,000. It is increasing also in other countries.

Interestingly, the Egyptians and the Chinese recognized liver cirrhosis perhaps 3,000 B.C. or so. Usually, when we speak of cirrhosis, we think of alcohol and of course, alcohol IS a common cause of cirrhosis of the liver. Such cirrhosis in its later stages leaves a small, shrunken liver with most of the all-important cells gone. About all that is then left are arteries and veins and the ducts that carry bile out of the liver.

★ ★ ★

The physician will think of cirrhosis when an alcoholic complans of nausea, vomiting, abdominal pain, feelings of weakness, swelling of the legs, jaundice, chills, fever, enlargement of the breasts (in men), sometimes a palpable liver (one so big that it can easily be felt), enlargement of veins along the abdominal and chest walls and particularly in the gullet. Sometimes these big gullet veins break, and then there is severe bleeding.

Because the liver is so contracted, the blood from the bowel cannot get through it well, so it goes around to the heart through several veins. Some surgeons have tried to save these people by building a by-pass for blood around the liver, but then the brain can be injured by poisonous chemicals that normally the liver removes from the blood.

When I was an intern in a huge city and county hospital, I used to see quite a few tavern owners and bartenders coming in—men who apparently had partaken too abundantly of their own liquors. But the time they reached the hospital, they had a big abdomen full of quarts of fluid, which I had to remove through a trocar, which is a big hollow needle; we called the process "tapping."

For years there has been a great argument among physicians as to whether the alcohol destroys the liver cells, or whether the cells die because the chronic alcoholic tends to go without food while he tries to live on liquor Today there is evidence to indicate that, in animals, alcohol can destroy the liver cells.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Agreement Scribbled On Back of Envelope

By BOB BOWMAN

Two Roosevelts have been presidents of the U.S. and, as far as Canada is concerned, one was a good guy and the other was a bad guy.

Theodore Roosevelt, who was president from 1904-1908, was the bad guy. His daughter said that he expected to be the bridegroom at every wedding and the corpse at every funeral. It was Theodore who said that the Alaska boundary must be drawn the way the U.S. wanted or he would send in troops. Britain would have been obliged to send troops, and sided with the U.S. Britain was negotiating foreign affairs for Canada in those days.

Strangely enough Theodore Roosevelt took part in a war loan drive in Hamilton, Ontario, in 1917, and was given the type of reception usually reserved for royalty. He was colorful and raised $100,000.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was president of the U.S. from 1932-1945, was the good guy. He took a great interest in Canada, having been governor of the state of New York, and he also had a summer home on Campobello Island, New Brunswick, which is now an international park.

In 1940, shortly after the outbreak of the Second World War when the U.S. was neutral, Franklin Roosevelt invited Prime Minister Mackenzie King to meet him in his private railway car at Ogdensburg, N.Y. There he suggested a joint defence agreement that was of great value at a most critical time. The agreement itself was scribbled on the back of an envelope.

On April 20, 1941, Franklin Roosevelt again helped Canada through a very rough period. With Britain under heavy bombardment and threatened by a possible German invasion, it was necessary for Canada to supply huge quantities of equipment, and expand war production. Roosevelt invited Mackenzie King to meet him at his home in Hyde Park, N.Y., and they worked out an agreement in a few hours that saved Canada from bankruptcy. It was known as the Hyde Park agreement and Roosevelt signed it "Done by Mackenzie and F.D.R. on a grand Sunday in April."

Other events on April 20:

1534—Cartier sailed from St. Malo on first voyage to Canada.

1742—Royal edict sold executive positions in Canada to highest bidders.

1768—Indians Chief Pontiac was murdered.

1808—David Thompson explored part of Columbia River.

1864 — Frederick Seymour arrived to be Governor of British Columbia mainland.

1893—Legislative Council of Prince Edward Island merged with Assembly.

1907—Fort William and Port Arthur were incorporated as cities. They merged recently as the city of Thunder Bay.

By J A H HUNTER

Uncle Alan shook his head. "Sorry, Mike," he said. "I just don't have that much cash on me."

But the boy persisted. "How much do you have? It could help."

"Okay, you get it if you figure out how much," replied his uncle. "It's only some nickels and four more than that number of pennies. If the pennies were tickets and the nickels pennies I'd have twice as much."

What do you say?

(Answer Tuesday.)

Friday's answer: Charlie's number, 41.

EAST COAST TRAGEDY

12 Feared Lost As Ships Go Down

Ferry, Seiner Sink in Storm

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Twelve men were feared lost in the sinking of two ships in the storm-tossed Cabot Strait off Cape Breton today.

The CNR ferry Patrick Morris, which had sailed ahead of schedule in an attempt to find survivors from a sunken fishing vessel, later went down herself.

Four of the crew of the ferry and the captain and seven crew members of the seniner Enterprise are missing.

The 10,000-ton ferry began taking on water after positioning herself to attempt to pick up either survivors or bodies from the fishing craft, the Enterprise.

No clear explanation for the ships' sinking was immediately available, but waterfront sources here said the storm was one of the worst of the season. Winds up to 70 miles an hour, high seas and blinding snow were reported in the area.

The Patrick Morris was carrying a crew of 51. She carried no passengers.

Forty-seven of the ferry's crew were missing. Names picked up by the German bulk-carrier Rhine Ore. They were to be taken to Port Cartier, Que., the Rhine Ore's destination. The trip was expected to take two days.

The CNR said four of the crew were missing. names were withheld.

Whereabouts of Capt. Rolland Penney, 54-year-old skipper of the Patrick Morris, was not immediately known.

CALL FOR HELP

The tragedy began to unfold late Sunday when the 100-foot Newfoundland-based herring seiner Enterprise got into trouble in the high seas about 10 miles off the northern tip of Cape Breton. Her calls for help sent several ships to the area.

The Patrick Morris, due to sail early today for Port aux Basques, Nfld., requested permission to sail early to join the rescue effort, which continued throughout the night.

Preliminary reports here indicated the Morris had sighted a man's body, presumably a victim of the Enterprise sinking, and was attempting to recover it when a heavy sea struck her stern. The ship's stern gates, it was said, had been opened to recover the body.

Ships in the area reported high winds hampering the search, making any adjustment in course difficult.

The CNR ferry Ambrose Shea headed in here with an injured stewardess. Birdie Cole suffered a severe head cut when she fell aboard ship.

The Ambrose Shea would return to the search as soon as the stewardess was landed, a CN spokesman said.

It was earlier reported that the Ambrose Shea had picked up some of the Morris' crew members, but a spokesman said all 47 were aboard other ships — most of them on the Rhine Ore.

The Partick Morris carried a wide range of cargo — from potato chips to refrigerators — in 18 boxcars.

In Moncton, N.B., CNR regional Vice-President W. G. Macdougall said the loss of the Patrick Morris should not have any immediate impact on the movement of freight to and from Newfoundland.

The ship had been tied up for the last six weeks because she is not equipped to operate in ice. Traffic was being handled by the other rail car ferry, the Frederick Carter, which can operate in ice.

"We are starting immediately to look into the possibilities of obtaining another vessel to be used in the Newfoundland service," Macdougall said.

"There are, I understand, some rail car ferries avail-

NIGHTCLUB DANCER KILLED IN VANCOUVER

BURNABY (CP) — A 27-year-old nightclub dancer was shot and killed in the basement of her home Sunday night while her seven-year-old daughter listened upstairs. RCMP said they are holding three men for questioning.

Police said a man entered the home and searched kitchen cupboards before forcing Mrs. Jackie Lampen, a divorcee, downstairs where she was shot in the chest and leg by a .22 calibre semi-automatic weapon.

The daughter heard the shots and telephoned for help. No motive for the slaying has been uncovered.

Cong Entrenched Near Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Four Cambodian battalions moved up today to the edge of the riverside town of Saang, 18 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, and began making preparations to try to dislodge a Viet Cong force that occupied the town Sunday.

It is the closest the Viet Cong have moved to Cambodia's capital.

The Cambodian command post was about 400 yards from where the lieutenant-colonel in charge believed the Viet Cong had set up their positions. A spotted plane circled overhead, hunting for guerrillas along the banks of the Bassac River.

The Viet Cong moved into Saang Sunday afternoon after government troops abandoned the town without a fight.

Since the ouster of Prince Norodom Sihanouk March 18, the Viet Cong had advanced no closer than 28 miles to Phnom Penh, in their clashes with government troops.

VIET CONG ACTIVE

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese now are active in much of the territory between Phnom Penh and the South Vietnamese border. Last week a Cambodian army unit fled into South Vietnam after its post at Phnom Den was overrun. Thirty of these Cambodian soldiers were seen Sunday at Tinh Bien, a South Vietnamese border town 65 miles south of Phnom Penh.

A 19-year-old involved in a beer parlor incident Saturday night was sentenced today to a month in jail when he pleaded guilty to obstructing a police officer.

John Coward, 493 Ker, police testified, had to be pulled from the back of an officer attempting to escort a prisoner.

persons — including two girls — arrested Saturday night for disturbances at the Red Lion and Royal Olympic beer parlors. (See also page 17)

A third beer parlor, the Century Inn, 603 Pandora, also called for police assistance but no arrests were made.

Police, shortly after the knife incident inside the Royal Olympic about 10 p.m., arrested the following:

SECRET AIR WAR

Blow-Up Threatens

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The disclosure, after six years of secrecy, that former president Johnson launched an air war in Laos in 1964 which reached a peak of 500 raids a day appears certain to touch off a new dispute in Congress over U.S. military involvements overseas.

Disclosure of the air war was contained in a partially censored transcript, released Sunday, of October hearings by the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on U.S. commitments abroad.

START REVEALED

The transcripts also disclosed that 200 Americans have been killed in Laos since 1961, a much higher figure than the 27 deaths acknowledged by the White House.

The transcript revealed that the air war launched by Johnson—over and above previously disclosed air raids on the Ho Chi Minh trail through Laos—began in June, 1964, with air strikes to protect Laotian reconnaissance planes, and developed into large-scale tactical air raids to support the royal Laotian government.

The exact number of air raids launched was not given in the transcript, but defence and state department officials did not challenge a statement by Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.—Mo.) that 378 strikes were made in a single day late in 1965.

Other well-informed Senate sources said the strikes reached 500 a day earlier this year.

Under pressure from senators worried that the United States was becoming involved in an another Vietnam, President Nixon finally acknowledged the air strikes last May. He emphasized that they were conducted at the request of the Laotian government, but gave few details.

The subcommittee testimony is expected to provide new ammunition for senators opposed to military involvement without congressional consent and also will stiffen oppositim in Congress for any aid for Cambodia, now trying to evict North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops from its soil.

Israeli Air Raids Hit Egyptian Lines

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — Waves of Israeli jets today attacked Egyptian military targets in the central sector of the Suez Canal intermittently for nearly three hours, a military spokesman announced.

He said all planes returned safely to base from the raid which occurred on the eve of the Jewish festival of Passover, commemorating the exodus of the children of Israel from Egypt about 3,500 years ago.

The first wave of jets swept across the waterway at 9:14 a.m., and subsequent sorties continued until noon.

Today's strike was the first reported Israeli air action on the Suez Canal front since a raid Saturday by Egyptian planes, in which three Israeli soldiers were killed and eight were wounded.

OTTAWA DEMONSTRATION AFTERMATH

16 Forcibly Taken From Court

OTTAWA (CP) — Sixteen demonstrators, arrested in front of the United States Embassy during an anti-war demonstration Sunday, were remanded to various May dates for trial when they appeared in court today.

Judge Thomas Swabey had the group forcibly removed from the courtroom when the demonstrators, 15 men and one woman, refused to answer to the charges and shouted at police and court officials.

Using a rarely-invoked section of the Criminal Code, Judge Swabey entered not guilty pleas on their behalf.

"I don't recognize the charge or the court," shouted Barbara Biley, 20, of Ottawa. "I am a political prisoner."

She called the police "fascist pigs" and Judge Swabey and court officials "U.S. lackeys."

The demonstrators said they had been on a hunger strike since their arrest and that they had been beaten regularly by the police.

The first court appearance for the demonstrators is scheduled for May 4.

REMOVED FROM COURT

Miss Biley was taken out of the court by a policewoman. She is charged with assaulting a police officer.

Three of the men are free on bail: John Kelsey, 20, Toronto, and Fred Vickerson, 28, Lachine, Que., charged with causing a disturbance by fighting; and Howard Singer, 18, St. Laurent, Que., charged with causing a disturbance by using obscene language.

The others, facing various charges, were returned to custody.

Police picked up 17 people Sunday when fighting broke out in front of the embassy during a demonstration by about 70 members of a Maoist organization.

The incident preceded an orderly march to Parliament Hill and a demonstration by about 1,500 people protesting the war in Vietnam.

Also charged with assaulting a police officer are Paul Levesque, 21, St. Jerome, Que.; Martin Bracey, 24, Ottawa; Lory Rice, 29, Sherbrooke; Rod Rupert Wilczak, 24, Vancouver; and Jean Paul Cyr, 19, Montreal.

Charged with causing a disturbance by fighting are John Pierce, 21, Toronto; Barry Carlsen, 21, Winnipeg; Marcel Pleau, 21, Montreal; Robert Walker, St. Laurent, Que.; and George Rousseau, 28, Ottawa.

Dan Turner, a Canadian Press reporter, was taken into custody and released shortly afterwards. He was not charged.

Turner had been assigned to cover the demonstration and said he was arrested after fighting with a man who grabbed his notes.

The Maoists, followers of the revolutionary thoughts of Chinese leader Mao Tse Tung who call their organization the Canadian Communist Party Marxist-Leninist — also fought with anti war demon-

THE CONCRETE jungle of downtown Montreal continues the upward and outward growth of its Manhattan neighbor 340 miles south—at a glance who can tell the difference? But to be fair, the cluster of white faced buildings at lower centre have not yet been built. Destined for St. Catherine Street opposite Place des Arts (lower right), $100 million Place des Jardins will include a hotel among its towers framing a new square. (CP Wirephoto)

Times-Mirror Seeks Control of Newsday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Times-Mirror Co., publisher of the Los Angeles Times, says it has reached an agreement to acquire a controlling interest in Newsday Inc., publisher of the largest suburban newspaper in the United States.

Terms of the proposed acquisition agreed on by Times-Mirror management and Harry F. Guggenheim, 79, president and majority stockholder of the Long Island, N.Y., newspaper, were not released.

Ottawa Must Maintain Hold On Pay, Costs

TORONTO (CP) — Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, said today federal authorities must maintain restraints on credit and spending until Canadians learn that demanding higher incomes ultimately will damage their living standards.

He told a luncheon meeting of the Canadian Club of Toronto:

"Those who recommend that we should accept inflation as a means of maintaining a high level of activity and should adjust various types of income to it are recommending a policy that cannot produce the results they seek."

The best chance of a prosperous economic future lies in a steady reduction in the rate of pay and price increases, he said.

Although federal authorities have been squeezing credit and spending for 18 months, "rates-of-pay increases—are obviously far in excess of average productivity growth in our economy and are not compatible with a movement towards price stability."

Mr. Rasminsky, reiterating an assessment of the anti-inflationary campaign presented in his annual report last month, called for patience, because "the orderly transition from strongly entrenched inflation to reasonable price stability is necessarily a long one."

PRESSURES ARE RISKS

He said rising unemployment should be regarded as a cost of inflation, not the result of measures to contain inflation.

While authorities must guard against forcing the country into an outright recession, "I believe there is no doubt that the most serious risks lie in allowing inflationary pressures to regain their strength."

Mr. Rasminsky renewed his rejection of any argument that those who advocate continued restraint do not care about persons thrown out of work.

Both those whose primary worry is unemployment and those who are anxious about inflation are concerned about people, he said, but the latter are prepared to take longer-run considerations into account.

Persistence in the effort to preserve the purchasing power of money is the best hope of maintaining a satisfactory growth in employment, Mr. Rasminsky said.

Text of his speech was released in advance.

Air Canada Plans To Drop Flights

EDMONTON (CP) — Air Canada will drop its Edmonton-Calgary-Lethbridge flights effective July 1, Jack Cronin, public relations officer for the airline says.

Mr. Cronin said the daily four flights to and from international airport here will be discontinued in line with the federal government's regional air policy announced last fall.

Edmonton Industrial Airport manager Les Marchant said the move will mean additional flights by Pacific Western Airlines, which already has applied to the Canadian Transport Commission to take over the Calgary-Lethbridge run.

VICTORIA, B.C., MONDAY, APRIL 20, 1970 —PAGE 17

THE RISK of writer's cramp was sharply reduced at Victoria city hall this morning when Ald. Clyde Savage and Judy Andersen, 17, started an envelope signing bee. With 17,500 individual pieces of mail concerning the 6.3 million capital budget to be hand-addressed during the next two days, assistant to the city manager William Hooson came up with the idea of enlisting all city staff for the hand-writing marathon. It works out to about 150 envelopes for each city employee — including elected officials and department heads. The veteran politician and the pert Grade 12 student from Esquimalt High, in city hall for a brief exposure to civic administration, were first in the pen-pushing parade. To brief voters on the April 30 vote.

Public Could Make Chaos In City Planning—Savage

Too much public participation could create chaos with city planning, Ald. Clyde Savage said today.

He was commenting on a weekend call by Ald. Peter Pollen for greater public participation in planning proposals. Pollen indicated this morning he was voicing an idea rather than suggesting a policy.

Savage and Ald. Percy Frampton both felt the public had a good chance to voice its views on planning proposals via the Advisory Planning Commission and public hearings.

PUBLIC VOICE

Pollen thinks the public voice could be heard a little more clearly if people were invited to attend open meetings of council to discuss projects in the planning stage.

Savage and Frampton both agreed that the more participation by the public the better. But not, they stated, to the point where "it's all discussion and no decision."

Frampton noted the Advisory Planning Commission was carefully selected from the public to provide just the voice Pollen is now seeking.

"They are there to advise council and with no political axe to grind," Frampton said. "We usually, but not always, accept their advice. In addition to the commission public hearings are always held prior to council making a final decision."

SPARKED CALL

It was such a public hearing scheduled for Thursday that sparked Pollen's call for participatory planning.

"It sounds fine," said Savage. "I'm all for people participating and tossing their ideas into the pot. But if we're talking about just bringing in people off the street to help us with our planning ideas, we are inviting chaos."

Savage said he had every confidence in the city planning staff "although I shall continue to urge careful design and planning to protect the beautiful environment of this city."

Pollen agreed that the city planning staff was "most capable—but I think that as a city (council) we are not providing the leadership we should."

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh said he had not yet discussed with Pollen the suggestions of public participation in planning.

"It is difficult to comment until I know just what he has in mind," Greenhalgh said. "His ideas may well be excellent and I'm looking forward to hearing them.

"One of our big problems, of course, is finding out just why people are protesting various schemes.

"If they are protesting the design of something and have ideas as to how the design can be improved, then they can contribute a great deal.

"If there is a positive feedback that can be channelled back into a submitted design, then a meting of the minds can be most productive.

"But if the objection is just a fundamental objection to apartments whatever the design; if the people just say we don't like this sort of thing however you design it, well, there isn't really much to be gained from a confrontation, is there?"

Pollen agreed that the reasons for protest were not easy to define.

"If they are just against the use of the property near Spencer Castle whatever is planned, then I think we have to show them that the land must be utilized for some purpose," Pollen said. "What we have to do is find the best purpose.

CAN'T JUST WAIT

"Maybe it's a sophisticated town-house, maybe it's something else. But I don't think we can just let things go until Spencer Castle becomes derelict."

Pollen was referring to a proposal to build 122 luxury apartment suites at a cost of close to $3 million on six acres of land surrounding Spencer Castle.

"I can't blame these people for being up in arms," he said. "I wouldn't want to think that I had to face a solid brick wall every day."

Designers of the concept say they have utilized natural contours of the land plus available landscaping to cut to a minimum anything aesthetically offensive.

Water Supply Ensured By April Showers

Southern Vancouver Island, where snow isn't a factor in water supply, is doing all right this spring.

That's the encouraging word from Ron Upward, commissioner of the Greater Victoria Water District.

Elsewhere in the province, spring runoff is predicted to be well below average because of lack of snow through the winter.

Upward said rainfall on southern Vancouver Island has been "not too bad." While early months were below normal, April was up.

He said reservoirs are full and "I don't anticipate any particular problems."

The April snow survey bulletin of the provincial water resources service said major drainages such as the Columbia, Kootenay and Fraser are expected to have "a much lighter than usual" flow this spring and summer.

The forecast shows average runoffs generally in the 70 to 80 per cent of average range, from a low of 60 per cent at one part of the Kootenay River to a high of 92 per cent for the Kettle River and Okanagan Lake.

Next forecast will be published early in May.

Man Wants Jail But Gets Fine

A 34-year-old Victoria man was said in county court today to have preferred jail to facing the world outside.

"That is what his record and the evidence we have heard suggests," said Judge Montague Drake.

He fined Richard Rodriguez, 34, of 1702 Belmont Avenue, $200 after he had pleaded guilty to stealing men's wear valued at $105 from the Hudson's Bay store on Jan. 29.

Rodriguez said he was unemployed and "broke" at the time.

Judge Drake said recent changes in the Criminal Code of Canada suggested Parliament was taking extenuating circumstances into account in laying down penalties for crime.

Defence counsel C. A. Becker called Victoria psychiatrist Wendell Coady, who said Rodriguez had difficulty mixing with society.

He said Rodriguez was a skilled drywaller who dreaded what his workmates would think of him. After therapy, his whole attitude to society changed and he was "amazed" to find them helpful and friendly.

Judge Drake said he was satisfied Rodriguez had all the potentiality of a "useful member of society."

Becker said all the articles stolen from The Bay had been returned.

Square Merchant Demands War-Protest Compensation

Police Nudge Group Out Into Rain

By JIM HUME

They had enough sense to get out of the rain—and that's what caused the trouble Saturday in Centennial Square.

A handful of damp Viet Nam protestors gathered in the square to sing anti-war songs, stage a clumsy gun-versus-stick scrap and distribute easy-to-throw-away leaflets.

City manager Dennis Young, who gave the go-ahead for Saturday's performance, estimates that at the peak less than 100 protesters were on hand.

Members of the press put the crowd as a slim "Slightly more than 50."

And the 50 didn't like the steady rain.

•

They wanted to protest, but preferably in the dry of Centennial Square's store-front arcade.

That proved too much for G. S. Voorsluys of the Cheese Cellar.

He didn't want the protesters in the square at all. And three city policemen called to the scene certainly didn't want them under the dry arcade.

The verbal confrontation between police and protesters was brief, but loud.

The protesters were insulting, the police stubborn.

Eventually the protest moved out into the rain with damp actors staging their guerrilla theatre, a show which raised more smiles from the soggy audience than pangs of conscience.

This morning Voorsluys car-city hall demanding a minimum of $100 in compensation for business lost during the moratorium effort.

City manager Young had little comment on the confrontation.

•

"I gave permission for the gathering," he said. "I have the authority of city council to do that. So does Jack Morgan (director of community services) for that matter.

"Morgan knew this could be a controversial group so sought my endorsation. I gave it.

"I really can't understand what the fuss is all about. We have had far bigger crowds in the square without causing a ripple of protest.

"Like most sensible people these folks wanted to do their thing in the dry. And that's when the trouble started."

Ald. Harold Olafson has indicated that he will take the protest story one stage further later this week. He wants Centennial used by what he terms responsible groups.

CHIEF SILENT

Protesters Protesting

Victoria Police Chief Jack Gregory today declined to comment on a complaint about police handling of a Centennial Square demonstration Saturday.

Letters protesting police intervention in the anti-Vietnam war demonstration have been sent to Gregory and Mayor Courtney Haddock.

The letters were written by Mavis de Girolamo, spokesman for about 25 people who staged guerrilla theatre in Centennial Square to demonstrate Canadian complicity in the Vietnam war.

She said she was mainly concerned over behavior of one officer who ordered demonstrators to move city-owned sound equipment out from under the protection of the arcade into the rain-drenched square.

"We were there not to cause trouble, but we were treated as if we were about to start a riot," said Mrs. de Girolamo.

"A policeman with four stars and an enormous paunch came and yelled at the kids and a young policeman who had been treating us very well."

QUIETENED

She said police also turned down the sound level on the loudspeakers so that folksingers and a speaker were barely audible to the small crowd that gathered to watch the activities.

Mrs. de Girolamo is president of the Voice of Women and a teacher at Quadra elementary.

In the guerrilla theatre pantomime, a large top-hatted man (Uncle Sam) gave money to an American soldier to go to Vietnam where he was to kill a peasant armed only with a stick.

A fourth member of the cast, identified as a Canadian, knelt and polished the soldier's boots.

The mime was repeated several times in the square and on Dogulas.

In a separate encounter with police near the Bank of B.C. on Douglas Mrs. de Girolamo said two officers told demonstrators they could not shout, then quoted parts of the Criminal Code.

While this was going on, she said, shouts of an evangelist could be heard from the Yates and Douglas corner.

When she asked about the distincition between demonstrators and evangelist, she was told there is a special provision in the Code for the Christian ministry.

SITE CHANGED FOR HYDRO MEET

B.C. Hydro and Power Authority officials will meet five Munn Road householders Tuesday to discuss possible expropriation of their homes to make way for a new $138,000-volt transmission line.

Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum has deputized E. S. Collins, manager of land development, and C. W. Nash, load depelopment manager, to meet the five residents and discuss any alternative proposals the householders may have for rerouting of the proposed line.

But spokesman for the residents, Pat Codyre, 69, of 1890 Munn, says he has no intention of meeting the Hydro officials at the designated meeting spot.

"They wanted us to meet at a home of one of the five to be ousted. He's since pulled out because he works for Hydro and only has a year to go before he gets his pension."

Instead, Codyre has made arrangements to use the hall of St. Joseph's Church at 757 Burnside.

"We're calling the meeting for 8 p.m. and we expect to get about 400 people out to hear what the Hydro people have to say."

The proposed line, over which the dispute has risen, would lead from Jordan River, along Munn, then Interurban, along Burnside, to a substation in the 2900 block of Douglas.

Pub Incidents Will Die Down Says Hotelman

Incidents involving young drinkers will probably die down as soon as the novelty of getting into bars legally wears off, the president of the Victoria Hotelmen's Association said today.

John Mohr, manager of the Gorge Hotel, was commenting on incidents Saturday night in downtown pubs which resulted in five arrests and caused Churchill Hotel management to close the hotel bar at 10 p.m.

"We've been really pleased here with the way the young people behaved themselves," Mowr said.

WILL SETTLE

"I believe myself that it will settle down."

Late Saturday it was almost impossible to find an empty table at any of the downtown pubs. Large numbers of people walked from one hotel to another looking for a place where they could continue drinking.

A spokesman for the Churchill, scene of a Friday night fight in which a policeman was injured and two men arrested, said the early closing was necessary to prevent further trouble.

At the Red Lion parking lot about 15 persons were involved in a fight, the largest disturbance of the night.

LOT OF ATHLETES

Len Ingraham of the Ingraham Hotel said he is not concerned about incidents because the clientele includes a lot of athletes.

"I think if the kids got out of hand the waiters wouldn't have a chance—the fellas that usually drink here would throw them out."

RCMP END SEARCH

Sidney RCMP have abandoned the search for a 72-year-old Victoria man who disappeared Wendesday from the Brentwood-Mill Bay ferry.

Henry Sing, of 821 Queens, had been the object of a search by police after he was reported missing from the vessel when it docked at Brentwood Wednesday morning.

Details of a note found on the steering wheel of his car have not been released.

It's a Protest Against the White Paper

Geronimo's Spirit Paces Streets

About 20 young Indians wearing red headbands and carrying placards demonstrated on the steps of the legislature and marched through downtown streets Saturday.

The headbands symbolized the "spirit of Geronimo," said Saul Basil, 24, of the Shuswap band at Cache Creek, and the demonstration was aimed at public apathy over proposed changes in the Indian Act.

"We're just concerned people from all over B.C.," Basil said.

"We decided everything's so quiet the government probably thinks we're just sitting back waiting for them to implement the white paper policy."

He referred to an Indian Affairs Department white paper made public last June which proposed sweeping changes in the Indian Act.

Since then Indian leaders have argued the white paper is a blueprint for assimilation and that they were not consulted by the experts who drew it up.

Basil said 50 per cent of the Indian people across Canada are concerned about the implications of the proposed changes, but hardly any white people know what the white paper says.

EAST COAST TRAGEDY

12 Feared Lost As Ships Go Down

Ferry, Seiner Sink in Storm

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Twelve men were feared lost in the sinking of two ships in the storm-tossed Cabot Strait off Cape Breton today.

The CNR ferry Patrick Morris, which had sailed ahead of schedule in an attempt to find survivors from a sunken fishing vessel, later went down herself.

Four of the crew of the ferry and the captain and seven crew members of the seiner Enterprise are missing.

The 10,000-ton ferry began taking on water after positioning herself to attempt to pick up either survivors or bodies from the fishing craft, the Enterprise.

No clear explanation for the ships' sinking was immediately available, but waterfront sources here said the storm was one of the worst of the season. Winds up to 70 miles an hour, high seas and blinding snow were reported in the area.

The Patrick Morris was carrying a crew of 51. She carried no passengers.

Forty-seven of the ferry's crew, all in good health, were picked up by the German bulk-carrier Rhine Ore. They were to be taken to Port Cartier, Que., the Rhine Ore's destination. The trip was expected to take two days.

The CNR said four of the crew were missing. Names were withheld.

Whereabouts of Capt. Rolland Penney, 54-year-old skipper of the Patrick Morris, was not immediately known.

CALL FOR HELP

The tragedy began to unfold late Sunday when the 100-foot Newfoundland-based herring seiner Enterprise got into trouble in the high seas about 10 miles off the northern tip of Cape Breton. Her calls for help sent several ships to the area.

The Patrick Morris, due to sail early today for Port aux Basques, Nfld., requested permission to sail early to join the rescue effort, which continued throughout the night.

Preliminary reports here indicated the Morris had sighted a man's body, presumably a victim of the Enterprise sinking, and was attempting to recover it when a heavy sea struck her stern. The ship's stern gates, it was said, had been opened to recover the body.

Ships in the area reported high winds hampering the search, making any adjustment in course difficult.

The CNR ferry Ambrose Shea headed in here with an injured stewardess. Birdie Cole suffered a severe head cut when she fell aboard ship.

The Ambrose Shea would return to the search as soon as the stewardess was landed, a CN spokesman said.

It was earlier reported that the Ambrose Shea had picked up some of the Morris' crew members, but a spokesman said all 47 were aboard other ships — most of them on the Rhine Ore.

The Partick Morris carried a wide range of cargo — from potato chips to refrigerators — in 18 boxcars.

In Moncton, N.B., CNR regional Vice-President W. G. Macdougall said the loss of the Patrick Morris should not have any immediate impact on the movement of freight to and from Newfoundland.

The ship had been tied up for the last six weeks because she is not equipped to operate in ice. Traffic was being handled by the other rail car ferry, the Frederick Carter, which can operate in ice.

"We are starting immediately to look into the possibilities of obtaining another vessel to be used in the Newfoundland service," Macdougall said.

"There are, I understand, some rail car ferries avail-

NIGHTCLUB DANCER KILLED IN VANCOUVER

BURNABY (CP) — A 27-year-old nightclub dancer was shot and killed in the basement of her home Sunday night while her seven-year-old daughter listened upstairs. RCMP said they are holding three men for questioning.

Police said a man entered the home and searched kitchen cupboards before forcing Mrs. Jackie Lampen, a divorcee, downstairs where she was shot in the chest and leg by a .22 calibre semi-automatic weapon.

The daughter heard the shots and telephoned for help. No motive for the slaying has been uncovered.

Cong Entrenched Near Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Four Cambodian battalions moved up today to the edge of the riverside town of Saang, 18 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, and began making preparations to try to dislodge a Viet Cong force that occupied the town Sunday.

It is the closest the Viet Cong have moved to Cambodia's capital.

The Cambodian command post was about 400 yards from where the lieutenant-colonel in charge believed the Viet Cong had set up their positions. A spotted plane circled overhead, hunting for guerrillas along the banks of the Bassac River.

The Viet Cong moved into Saang Sunday afternoon after government troops abandoned the town without a fight.

Since the ouster of Prince Norodom Sihanouk March 18, the Viet Cong had advanced no closer than 28 miles to Phnom Penh, in their clashes with government troops.

VIET CONG ACTIVE

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese now are active in much of the territory between Phnom Penh and the South Vietnamese border. Last week a Cambodian army unit fled into South Vietnam after its post at Phnom Den was overrun. Thirty of these Cambodian soldiers were seen Sunday at Tinh Bien, a South Vietnamese border town 65 miles south of Phnom Penh.

Man Jailed Month After Beer Brawl

A 19-year-old involved in a beer parlor incident Saturday night was sentenced today to a month in jail when he pleaded guilty to obstructing a police officer.

John Coward, 493 Ker, police testified, had to be pulled from the back of an officer attempting to escort a prisoner.

Coward was one of five persons — including two girls — arrested Saturday night for disturbances at the Red Lion and Royal Olympic beer parlors. (See also page 17)

A third beer parlor, the Century Inn, 603 Pandora, also called for police assistance but no arrests were made.

REMANDED

Robert N. Parker, 22, of 493 Ker, pleaded not guilty to possessing an offensive weapon and was remanded to April 29 for trial.

Police, shortly after a knife incident inside the Royal Olympic about 10 p.m., arrested the following:

Bonnie Davidson, 18, of 493 Ker, who pleaded guilty to assaulting Constable Morrison H. Curry and to causing a disturbance. She was remanded to April 28 for a presentence report.

Joanne G. Bradley, 19, of 493 Ker, who pleaded guilty to obstructing Sgt. John L. Maybin and to causing a disturbance. She was remanded also to April 28 for a presentence report.

Stephen Maloney, 20, of 1032 McGregor, pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance at the Red Lion Motor Inn on Douglas Street.

Police testified that he shouted obscenities at them when they arrived to investigate a fight outside the beer parlor.

Judge William Ostler fined him $25.

CONGRESSIONAL DISPUTE EXPECTED

Laos Involvement Bared

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The disclosure, after six years of secrecy, that former president Johnson launched an air war in Laos in 1964 which reached a peak of 500 raids a day appears certain to touch off a new dispute in Congress over U.S. military involvements overseas.

Disclosure of the air war was contained in a partially censored transcript, released Sunday, of October hearings by the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on U.S. commitments abroad.

START REVEALED

The transcripts also disclosed that 200 Americans have been killed in Laos since 1961, a much higher figure than the 27 deaths acknowledged by the White House.

The transcript revealed that the air war launched by Johnson—over and above previously disclosed air raids on the Ho Chi Minh trail through Laos—began in June, 1964, with air strikes to protect Laotian reconnaissance planes, and developed into large-scale tactical air raids to support the royal Laotian government.

The exact number of air raids launched was not given in the transcript, but defence and state department officials did not challenge a statement by Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.—Mo.) that 378 strikes were made in a single day late in 1965.

Other well-informed Senate sources said the strikes reached 500 a day earlier this year.

Under pressure from senators worried that the United States was becoming involved in an another Vietnam, President Nixon finally acknowledged the air strikes last May. He emphasized that they were conducted at the request of the Laotian government, but gave few details.

The subcommittee testimony is expected to provide new ammunition for senators opposed to military involvement without congressional consent and also will stiffen opposition Congress for any aid for Cambodia, now trying to evict North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops from its soil.

Israeli Air Raids Hit Egyptian Lines

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — Waves of Israeli jets today attacked Egyptian military targets in the central sector of the Suez Canal intermittently for nearly three hours, a military spokesman announced.

He said all planes returned safely to base from the raid which occurred on the eve of the Jewish festival of Passover, commemorating the exodus of the children of Israel from Egypt about 3,500 years ago.

The first wave of jets swept across the waterway at 9:14 a.m., and subsequent sorties continued until noon.

Today's strike was the first reported Israeli air action on the Suez Canal front since a raid Saturday by Egyptian planes, in which three Israeli soldiers were killed and eight were wounded.

OTTAWA DEMONSTRATION AFTERMATH

16 Forcibly Taken From Court

OTTAWA (CP) — Sixteen demonstrators, arrested in front of the United States Embassy during an anti-war demonstration Sunday, were remanded to various May dates for trial when they appeared in court today.

Judge Thomas Swabey had the group forcibly removed from the courtroom when the demonstrators, 15 men and one woman, refused to answer to the charges and shouted at police and court officials.

Using a rarely-invoked section of the Criminal Code, Judge Swabey entered not guilty pleas on their behalf.

"I don't recognize the charge or the court," shouted Barbara Biley, 20, of Ottawa. "I am a political prisoner."

She called the police "fascist pigs" and Judge Swabey and court officials "U.S. lackeys."

The demonstrators said they had been on a hunger strike since their arrest and that they had been beaten regularly by the police.

The first court appearance for the demonstrators is scheduled for May 4.

REMOVED FROM COURT

Miss Biley was taken out of the court by a policewoman. She is charged with assaulting a police officer.

Three of the men are free on bail: John Kelsey, 20, Toronto, and Fred Vickerson, 28, Lachine, Que., charged with causing a disturbance by fighting; and Howard Singer, 18, St. Laurent, Que., charged with causing a disturbance by using obscene language.

The others, facing various charges, were returned to custody.

Police picked up 17 people Sunday when fighting broke out in front of the embassy during a demonstration by about 70 members of a Maoist organization.

The incident preceded an orderly march to Parliament Hill and a demonstration by about 1,500 people protesting the war in Vietnam.

Also charged with assaulting a police officer are Paul Levesque, 21, St. Jerome, Que.; Martin Bracey, 24, Ottawa; Lory Rice, 29, Sherbrooke; Rod Rupert Wilczak, 24, Vancouver; and Jean Paul Cyr, 19, Montreal.

Charged with causing a disturbance by fighting are John Pierce, 21, Toronto; Barry Carlsen, 21, Winnipeg; Marcel Pleau, 21, Montreal; Robert Walker, St. Laurent, Que.; and George Rousseau, 28, Ottawa.

Dan Turner, a Canadian Press reporter, was taken into custody and released shortly afterwards. He was not charged.

Turner had been assigned to cover the demonstration and said he was arrested after fighting with a man who grabbed his notes.

The Maoists, followers of the revolutionary thoughts of Chinese leader Mao Tse Tung who call their organization the Canadian Communist Party Marxist-Leninist — also fought with anti war demon-

THE WARDS AND THEIR 'LOST' CHILDREN
. . . talking their way to a new life

These Kids Have a Port To Weather Emotional Storms

By ED GOULD

COBBLE HILL—Jim and Arlene Ward have no children but that hasn't stopped them from keeping their five-bedroom house full of kids.

The "kids" are living with the Wards in a "group experience" in co-operation with the social welfare department and the provincial probation service.

Leward Training Program (the Leeward part comes from a combination of both their names plus connotations of "port in a storm" and "out of the wind") began in August, 1969.

It deals with alientated youngsters, "lost" teen-agers seeking answers to their problem of self-identity.

The young residents at the 12-acre Ward property are here because they've dropped out, run away, been caught with drugs or have been involved with various forms of misdemeanors which result in brushes with the law.

"Tot this group, fantasy is preferable to reality, possibly because it appears to be safer and more pleasant," Ward said in an interview. "Peace, love and happiness is all."

How did these dropped-out, turned-off, troubled youngsters get that way?

"A guess would be that their natural feelings to be real and honest and to work with their feelings in their relationships, especially with parents, teachers and other adults, have met rejection.

"They learn to deal with their feelings on an intellectual level only. They see rejection of their attitudes and ideas and aspirations as essentially rejection of self."

Each "family member" at Leeward is encouraged to look at his own attitudes, values and performances and to test new ways of viewing himself and relating to others, and then to decide what changes he wishes to make.

Impressed upon each member is the fact that what he gets out of the experience is exactly what he is prepared to invest in it.

Before starting the program the Wards discussed it with represenatatives of local, educational, social work, medical and probation services, all of who suggested there was an urgent need. They learned there was no such program for the 15 to 19 age group and "we were appalled at the extent of the problem."

For Jim, Leeward was a continuation of work in which he has been involved for most of his life. Except for five years, during which he edited a weekly newspaper on Salt Spring Island, he has almost always worked with persons with emotional problems.

After 10 years with the department of public health in Saskatchewan, about half of it with the psychiatric department, he moved to British Columbia in 1953 at the invitation of the newly-formed branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association. At the end of eight years there he was provincial executive director.

He sold the newspaper about three years ago and joined UNICA, another live-in group experience working mainly with professional adults. For wife Arlene, Leeward was something new. Feeling the need for people to interact with she talked of opening a nursery school. The program here was a compromise.

"I must admit it took a month for Jim to talk me into it," she said. "It's not a burden though. I enjoy it immensely. The 'frightening' things were all in my head." Very rarely do I wonder if it is worth it."

At the time of writing the "family" consisted of six teen-agers, all of whom had been in trouble at home or with the law. But nobody sent them to Leeward.

"Kids come to us on their own initiative," Ward said. "In some cases they come from Eric Martin Institute in Victoria. Others are recommended by a probation officer.."

Once they arrive they get the straight goods from Ward which they usually agree to but often have second thoughts about later. Each day becomes a personal triumph for every member as together they work through individual crises.

The day of this interview one girl had decided to leave the group. Each member was as upset as the girl herself but the decision was left to her.

"We don't put harnesses on them," Ward said. "If they don't want this scene we have no alternative but to let them go."

The sessions at Leeward — recently approved as a child care resource by the provincial government — last for four months with the next complete session to start May 15. After four months the kids may return home, depending on the individual's own state of development and his particular situation as regards the law, or they may accept some other type of home arrangement.

Some of the alternatives are not as appealing: Brannan Lake or Willingdon.

"He or she makes the decision — where do I go from here?" Ward said. "He or she is very much involved in that decision. It hasn't been that way in most of these youngsters lives and they resent that like hell."

An example of the ties that bind came recenely when Jim drove out one night to look for a girl who failed to return home at a pre-arranged time. He found her talking on a sideroad to two youths in a truck who appeared to have been "high" on some sort of drug. The girl was not involved.

Back at Leeward Arlene told the girl: "I really care what happens to you. I love you."

The girl was thunderstruck. "You love me? You care what happens to me?"

Her attitude suddenly improved when she realized that someone actually cared about her, Ward said. "No one had ever told her that before — and meant it."

DUNCAN — Diana Poulette, 17, a pupil at Arcadian School for retarded children, has been awarded a cash prize for a painting entered in the International Exhibition of Art in London.

A photograph of Miss Poulette's painting, flowers in a vase, appeared in the London Sunday Times color supplement, Arcadian School principal Mrs. A. E. Boyle was informed.

Organized by the National Society for Mentally Handicapped Children, the London exhibition also led to the sale of paintings by other Cowichan district students from Arcadian School.

Paintings by Ann Oyen, Judy Hall, Russell Ludvingston and Douglas Ramwell were among the record-breaking 150 sold.

The Duncan school submitted the only British Columbia entries. Nova Scotia was the only other Canadian province to send paintings to the London show.

ARMY SEARCH CONTINUES

Guerrilla Troops Invade Cuba

HAVANA (Reuters) — Cuban forces today hunted a heavily armed band of anti-Castro invaders who landed in Oriente province Friday—the ninth anniversary of the defeat of the U.S. backed Bay of Pigs invasion.

A communique issued by Premier Fidel Castro said the invaders came from U.S. territory and landed before dawn Friday, at almost preciesly the same time that the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion by more than 1,000 Cuban exiles took place in 1961.

Cuban soldiers have clashed twice with the invading force, whose total number was not announced, killing two of them, capturing three and suffering casualties of four killed and two wounded, the communique said.

Cuban authorities have issued no further news of the invasion since Castro's communique, dated April 18, appeared Sunday in the newspaper Juventud Rebelde. But observers here were surprised that word of the invasion was released before it had been defeated.

Units of the army, mountain militia and frontier guards were continuing their hunt in a mountanious region near the mouth of the Yumuri River, about 125 miles from the Sierra Maestra Mountains where Castro himself fought a two-year guerrilla war before toppling dictator Fulgencio Batista in 1959.

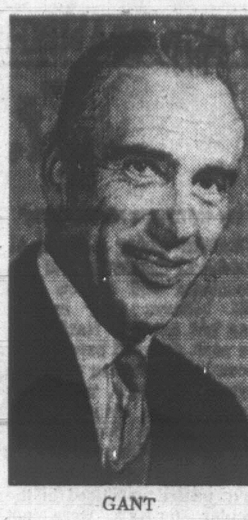
Castro's communique said his forces engaged the invaders almost immediately after they landed near the town of Baracoa, on the eastern tip of Oriente province, capturing two men armed with automatic rifles, 2,000 cartridges and packets of plastic explosives.

The next clash with the invaders occurred Saturday afternoon. Four government troops were killed and two wounded, and the invaders lost two dead and one captured, the communique said.

The Cuban premier, who also is commander-in-chief of the armed forces, said the invasion was carried out by "a group of mercenaries coming from the United States, equipped with modern automatic weapons of the Yankee army."

Denouncing the invasion attempt, he said: "Bandit activities are part of the imperialists' plans to obstruct and hinder the sugar harvest."

The harvest, which planned to reach a record 10,000,000-ton target by July, this week achieved 6,000,000 tons, lagging seriously behind schedule.



GANT
. . . 'it's a knack'

'Trained Pipeline Welders Can Earn $30,000 a Year'

Trained pipeline welders, who can earn up to $30,000 a year, are in great demand, says Robert Gant of Calgary, newly-elected president of the Pipeline Constractors' Association of Canada.

"Grade 12?" he was asked.

"Grade 2," he shot back, "if a boy is keen and willing to apply himself. But, of course, it's a knack, like newspaper reporting and many other jobs you can't learn at university."

He added, however, that some preliminary schooling is required and would-be pipeline welders can take a six-week course in the basics of welding at schools in Vancouver, Edmonton, Saskatoon and other major centres.

"After that it's up to the man himself. He must learn by hard work and experience, and I would say it takes up to five years to make a first-class pipeline welder.

"In the process he has to do a lot of welding outdoors in all kinds of weather. It takes guts, determination and, as I've said, a knack for the job. Pipe welding is much more difficult than workshop welding."

WORK IN FRANCE

Gant said skilled pipeline welders can earn up to $30,000 a year, but the average is closer to $10,000. There are plenty of opportunities for travel and a number of Canadian welders are working in France.

This was affirmed by Robert Butler, who represents the Pipe Line Construction Association in Paris, France.

"Too many young people today are afraid of leaving the cities," he said. "There are all kinds of opportunity outside, but you have to seek them."

Both men were interviewed at the close of a four-day convention of the Pipe Line Contractors Association of Canada in the Empress Hotel. Nearly 300 delegates and their wives from all provinces attended.

ELECTED

Gant was elected president Saturday afternoon in succession to O. J. Johanson of Vancouver.

"Labor-management relations today are suffering from lack of communication and sometimes lack of mutual respect," he said. "We need more commonsense and more equilibrium in our negotiations.

"It is becoming too common for labor organizations to make their demands to management through the press. This is a two-edged sword that makes negotiations difficult on both sides.

"When labor's demands have been announced in the press, it is very difficult for labor leaders to compromise with management—and some compromise is necessary in all walks of life.

Dr. R. R. Jeffels, director of admissions at the University of Victoria, called for a new morality in modern living in an address to the wives of delegates Saturday morning.

"There is a growing heathenism in the world today," he said. "People live for the pleasures of the moment and neglect the things of the spirit, with little regard for the future.

"All through the ages man has had a moral sense of one kind or another. Today there is a very good chance that man's moral sense may be cast aside to the detriment of civilization."

Dr. Jeffels said he was not speaking as a religionist.

"But the moral principles of Christianity and other faiths are predicated on the rich experience of countless generations of human life. They are just as valid as scientific principles."

Gloomy Future Feared For World Grain Sales

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — A gloomy future for world grain marketing is forecast by the International Wheat Council in its latest study of consumption trends.

It figures that for the next five years, at least, the marketing trend will be downward with consumers in the wealthier countries switching more to meat instead of cereals.

In the developing countries the consumption trend is upward for wheat and other grains but new seed and new production techniques suggest that most of this expansion will be met from domestic production.

The most dynamic growth will be in use of grains, including wheat, for animal feed but for the most part of this growth is unlikely to offset the over-all marketing decline for cereals, says the study prepared by the council's secretariat and published today.

Certain specific types of wheat, such as Canadian hard varieties, may escape from the over-all decline. But the most that can be predicted for these escapees is that the breadmaking needs for hard wheat in northwest Europe "is likely to remain relatively constant."

INCOMPLETE FORECAST

This forecast is based mainly on trends in the non-Communist world. The council, which administers international grain agreements, says that little is known about consumption trends in these "central-planned countries "but any increase in their imports of grains is unlikely to outweigh the falling requirements of the other economic groupings."

"Hence, the decline in world grains trade from the high levels of the mid-60s, which had become apparent by the end of the decade, would not be expected, on the basis of current consumption trends, to be wholly reversed in the near future."

The great world demand for meat indicates a sharply higher market for feed grains and wheat so far has played a limited part in this world market because of its high price especially in relation to corn.

"Lower prices might encourage the use of wheat but it will generally be a matter of policy in developed countries whether to import the extra grain required or grow it domestically," the council says.

"Feed use, even of course though given an acceleration in the medium-term future al- in most developing countries in grains, is likely to remain small high rate of income growth, this domestic grain production and a factor could become significant in the longer perspective."

HIGHER YIELDS EXPECTED

At another point the report says: "It now seems very likely that grain production in many developing countries will be enabled to rise above even the more optimistic forecasts of a few years ago because of the impact of the new high-yielding and disease-resistant varieties of grains currently being introduced."

Most developed countries now have reached the stage where the average person consumes less wheat. In the developing areas, the switch to wheat from coarse grains is increasing.

"The global effect of economic growth at present is therefore to increase grain consumption but as it also affects the potential for grain production, particularly in developing countries, there may not be a proportionate or indeed any increase in world trade arising from this factor."

Democratic Vote Elects Ex-Dictator

BOGOTA (AP) — Former dictator Gustavo Rojas Pinilla appeared today to have been elected president of Colombia, thanks to divisions in the conservative-liberal coalition formed 13 years ago to end his dictatorship.

The unofficial tabulation with 95 per cent of the vote counted showed the 70-year-old retired general ahead of Misrael Pastrano Borrero, official candidate of the governing National Front, by 24,000 votes. Rojas had 1,464,000 votes, Pastrana 1,440,000, moderate leftist Belisario Betancur 455,000 and rightist Evaristo Sourdis 174,000 votes.

Official results so far put Rojas in the lead by nearly 22,000 votes, with 1,117,902. Pastrana had 1,096,140, Betancur 353,697 and Sourdis 157,458.

SETBACK FOR COALITION

Rojas's apparent victory was a major setback for the divided National Front and President Carlos Lleras Restrepo. Both Betancur and Sourdis ran as breakaway candidate from the National Front, taking the margin of victory from the official candidate.

Rojas proclaimed himself president-elect for the four-year term starting Aug. 7 and said he was elected because of resentment against "exploitation by the oligarchy."

Government Minister Carlos Augusto Noriega said the government would not accept the outcome "until the last vote is counted."

Rojas's daughter, Maria Elena, 37, managed her father's political comeback campaign on a populist platform promising to lower taxes, revalue the peso, reduce inflation, and nationalize the import trade.

Navy League Girls To Hold Open House

The Patricia Dufour Navy League Wrenette corps will hold open house Thursday April 30 from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at the Navy League's headquarters on Robert St.

The event, which is open to all former wrenettes, has been arranged to mark Navy League Week, which begins Monday, April 27, and continues until Battle of the Atlantic Sunday, May 3.

Visitors will be able to make a tour of classes and see the teen-age girls in action.

Among those present will be the corps' rifle team which, shooting 303s, recently won the national Wrenette shooting competition.

The Queen's Own cadets, winners of the trophy for six consecutive years, topped the list with 1,477 out of a possible 1,500. The wrenettes were second with 1,415.

Behind them were Amphion Royal Canadian Sea Cadets of Nanaimo with 1,412; the 744 Air Cadet Squadron of Duncan with 1,411; the 89th Kinsmen Air Cadet Squadron of Victoria with 1,381, the 2289 Fifth Field Battalion Army Cadet Corps with 1,341; the Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadets of Victoria win 1,309 and the Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) Army Cadet Corps, which failed to complete targets.

Top individual marksmen were Queen's Own cadets Mike Balar and B. H. Hoon who scored respective targets of two 99s and a 99 and 97; a wrenette Lynn Beazley, who tied with Hoon.

FERRY, SEINER SINK

12 Lost in Wild N.S. Storm

APPREHENSIVE BUT EAGER, the youthful voices of Gladys Pearcy's primary choir Sunday opened the second week of the Greater Victoria Music Festival. The group numbers 48 and the youngest is a tender three years. Festival sessions for vocal, piano, wind instruments and speech arts began today at Fellowship Hall. (Bill Halkett Photo).

47 Rescued By Ore Ship

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—Eight fishermen and four officers of the CNR ferry service were lost today in the sinking of their ships in a wild Cabot Strait storm. Forty-seven others were rescued.

The 10,000-ton ferry Patrick Morris, with a replacement value of $10,000,000, sank after getting into difficulty while trying to rescue some of the eight-man crew of the Newfoundland-based herring seiner Enterprise.

Captain Roland Penney of the Patrick Morris and three of his officers died.

Captain Penney, 54-year-old veteran of the Newfoundland ferry service, was granted permission to take the Patrick Morris out of here ahead of schedule late Sunday after the Enterprise sent distress messages from a point about 10 miles off the northern tip of Cape Breton..

Although the night's events remained clouded, the Morris apparently spotted bodies or survivors from the Enterprise and attempted to take them aboard. With the winds reaching 70 miles an hour, the Morris took a big sea through her stern doors and 35 minutes after sending an SOS she went down.

NO PASSENGERS ABOARD

Seamen along the waterfront here and in St. John's, Nfld., speculated that the doors may have been opened in an attempt to take the bodies or survivors aboard, but others said it was unlikely the captain would do such a thing with the sea so rough.

The ferry carried no passengers.

She carried 51 crew members, 47 of whom took to lifeboats and rafts and were picked up by the ore-carrier Rhine Ore.

The captain and three engineers apparently remained aboard, at least for a time.

An air and sea search for the bodies was hampered by poor weather.

The body of Capt. Penney and an unidentified body were brought to port here late today by the fishing trawler Gulf Gerd.

The scene on the waterfront of this ferry terminal town near Sydney as relatives of crew members gathered to await news from the strait brought back memories of the October morning in 1942 when the ferry Caribou was sunk by a German U-Boat.

The 2,200-ton Caribou was struck near the end of her overnight run from here to Port aux Basques, Nfld., by a submarine which surfaced and watched the ferry's survivors struggle in the water. One hundred and thirty-seven persons were lost in the sinking. Canadian naval ships picked up 101 survivors.

The crowds here increased this morning when the ferry Ambrose Shea left the search area and headed for port to land stewardess Birdie Cole, who suffered a deep head cut in a fall aboard ship. There had been reports that the Shea was carrying survivors from the Morris, but CNR officials later said all 47 were aboard the Rhine Ore

NIGHTCLUB DANCER KILLED IN VANCOUVER

BURNABY (CP) — A 27-year-old nightclub dancer was shot and killed in the basement of her home Sunday night while her seven-year-old daughter listened upstairs. RCMP said they are holding three men for questioning.

Police said a man entered the home and searched kitchen cupboards before forcing Mrs. Jackie Lampen, a divorcee, downstairs where she was shot in the chest and leg by a .22 calibre semi-automatic weapon.

The daughter heard the shots and telephoned for help. No motive for the slaying has been uncovered.

Cong Entrenched Near Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Four Cambodian battalions moved up today to the edge of the riverside town of Saang, 18 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, and began making preparations to try to dislodge a Viet Cong force that occupied the town Sunday.

It is the closest the Viet Cong have moved to Cambodia's capital.

The Cambodian command post was about 400 yards from where the lieutenant-colonel in charge believed the Viet Cong had set up their positions. A spotted plane circled overhead, hunting for guerrillas along the banks of the Bassac River.

The Viet Cong moved into Saang Sunday afternoon after government troops abandoned the town without a fight.

Since the ouster of Prince Norodom Sihanouk March 18, the Viet Cong had advanced no closer than 28 miles to Phnom Penh, in their clashes with government troops.

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese now are active in much of the territory between Phnom Penh and the South Vietnamese border. Last week a Cambodian army unit fled into South Vietnam after its post at Phnom Den was overrun. Thirty of these Cambodian soldiers were seen Sunday at Tinh Bien, a South Vietnamese border town 65 miles south of Phnom Penh.

Man Jailed Month After Beer Brawl

A 19-year-old involved in a beer parlor incident Saturday night was sentenced today to a month in jail when he pleaded guilty to obstructing a police officer.

John Coward, 493 Ker, police testified, had to be pulled from the back of an officer attempting to escort a prisoner.

Coward was one of five persons — including two girls — arrested Saturday night for disturbances at the Red Lion and Royal Olympic beer parlors. (See also page 17)

A third beer parlor, the Century Inn, 603 Pandora, also called for police assistance but no arrests were made.

REMANDED

Robert N. Parker, 22, of 493 Ker, pleaded not guilty to possessing an offensive weapon and was remanded to April 29 for trial.

Police, shortly after a knife incident inside the Royal Olympic about 10 p.m., arrested the following:

Bonnie Davidson, 18, of 493 Ker, who pleaded guilty to assaulting Constable Morrison H. Curry and to causing a disturbance. She was remanded to April 28 for a presentence report.

Joanne G. Bradley, 19, of 493 Ker, who pleaded guilty to obstructing Sgt. John L. Maybin and to causing a disturbance. She was remanded also to April 28 for a presentence report.

Stephen Maloney, 20, of 1032 McGregor, pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance at the Red Lion Motor Inn on Douglas Street.

Police testified that he shouted obscenities at them when they arrived to investigate a fight outside the beer parlor.

Judge William Ostler fined him $25.

Weather Wild

By The Associated Press

The southern United States was ripped by tornadoes and other violent weather for the third straight day Sunday, leaving five persons dead and some 65 injured in Corinth, Miss., and doing heavy damage.

CONGRESSIONAL DISPUTE EXPECTED

Laos Involvement Bared

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The disclosure, after six years of secrecy, that former president Johnson launched an air war in Laos in 1964 which reached a peak of 500 raids a day appears certain to touch off a new dispute in Congress over U.S. military involvements overseas.

Disclosure of the air war was contained in a partially censored transcript, released Sunday, of October hearings by the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on U.S. commitments abroad.

START REVEALED

The transcripts also disclosed that 200 Americans have been killed in Laos since 1961, a much higher figure than the 27 deaths acknowledged by the White House.

The transcript revealed that the air war launched by Johnson—over and above previously disclosed air raids on the Ho Chi Minh trail through Laos—began in June, 1964, with air strikes to protect Laotian reconnaissance planes, and developed into large-scale tactical air raids to support the royal Laotian government.

The exact number of air raids launched was not given in the transcript, but defence and state department officials did not challenge a statement by Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.—Mo.) that 378 strikes were made in a single day late in 1965.

Other well-informed Senate sources said the strikes reached 500 a day earlier this year.

Under pressure from senators worried that the United States was becoming involved in an another Vietnam, President Nixon finally acknowledged the air strikes last May. He emphasized that they were conducted at the request of the Laotian government, but gave few details.

The subcommittee testimony is expected to provide new ammunition for senators opposed to military involvement without congressional consent and also will stiffen opposition Congress for any aid for Cambodia, now trying to evict North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops from its soil.

OTTAWA DEMONSTRATION AFTERMATH

16 Forcibly Taken From Court

OTTAWA (CP) — Sixteen demonstrators, arrested in front of the United States Embassy during an anti-war demonstration Sunday, were remanded to various May dates for trial when they appeared in court today.

Judge Thomas Swabey had the group forcibly removed from the courtroom when the demonstrators, 15 men and one woman, refused to answer to the charges and shouted at police and court officials.

Using a rarely-invoked section of the Criminal Code, Judge Swabey entered not guilty pleas on their behalf.

"I don't recognize the charge or the court," shouted Barbara Biley, 20, of Ottawa. "I am a political prisoner."

She called the police "fascist pigs" and Judge Swabey and court officials "U.S. lackeys."

The demonstrators said they had been on a hunger strike since their arrest and that they had been beaten regularly by the police.

The first court appearance for the demonstrators is scheduled for May 4.

REMOVED FROM COURT

Miss Biley was taken out of the court by a policewoman. She is charged with assaulting a police officer.

Three of the men are free on bail: John Kelsey, 20, Toronto, and Fred Vickerson, 28, Lachine, Que., charged with causing a disturbance by fighting; and Howard Singer, 18, St. Laurent, Que., charged with causing a disturbance by using obscene language.

The others, facing various charges, were returned to custody.

Police picked up 17 people Sunday when fighting broke out in front of the embassy during a demonstration by about 70 members of a Maoist organization.

The incident preceded an orderly march to Parliament Hill and a demonstration by about 1,500 people protesting the war in Vietnam.

Also charged with assaulting a police officer are Paul Levesque, 21, St. Jerome, Que.; Martin Bracey, 24, Ottawa; Lory Rice, 29, Sherbrooke; Rod Rupert Wilczak, 24, Vancouver; and Jean Paul Cyr, 19, Montreal.

Charged with causing a disturbance by fighting are John Pierce, 21, Toronto; Barry Carlsen, 21, Winnipeg; Marcel Pleau, 21, Montreal; Robert Walker, St. Laurent, Que.; and George Rousseau, 28, Ottawa.

Dan Turner, a Canadian Press reporter, was taken into custody and released shortly afterwards. He was not charged.

Turner had been assigned to cover the demonstration and said he was arrested after fighting with a man who grabbed his notes.

The Maoists, followers of the revolutionary thoughts of Chinese leader Mao Tse Tung who call their organization the Canadian Communist Party Marxist-Leninist — also fought with anti war demonforce that crossed into Cambodia last week on Highway One closed out its operation after a four-day sweep and dismantled the two camps it had set up just inside South Vietnam. The force of more than 3,000 troops claimed to have killed nearly 400 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

While the Viet Cong moved closer to Phnom Penh, diplomats in the capital said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong may also be setting up a base in northeast Cambodia for an opposition government led by Prince Sihanouk.

Reuters correspondent James Pringle reported from Phnom Penh that the Viet Cong today cut Cambodia's main road link to the South Vietnamese border 30 miles east of Phnom Penh by felling dozens of trees across Highway One.

The action took place near a village earlier devastated by Cambodian troops for alleged pro-Viet Cong sympathies.

The road closure on the Phnom Penh side of the Mekong River, eight miles west of the strategic ferry crossing of Neak Loeung, temporarily prevented the government from resupplying Cambodian troops in Svay Rieng province.

MORE BODIES

Bodies continued to float down the Meking River today, a week after the first of several hundred bodies were spotted at this ferry crossing 38 miles southeast of Phnom Penh.

Travellers on the ferry across the Mekong Sunday night saw three bodies in the water, one of a young woman.

A government spokesman said Viet Cong had thrown the bodies into the river after a clash with government troops, and that a ferryboat had sunk at Kompong Cham, further upstream.

Local people along the river bank opposite the Chhor Island, four miles from here, said they believe government forces carried out a series of executions on the island on five consecutive nights beginning April 10.

SURVIVORS FREED

Meanwhile at Takeo survivors of the massacre here of 140 Vietnamese civilians by Cambodian army firing squads were removed Sunday from the bloodstained enclosure where they cowered for nearly two days without food, water or medical attention.

The Phnom Penh government relieved of his command the military governor under whose authority the massacre took place. The new governor, flown here Saturday in one of the Cambodian army's four operational Alouette helicopters, Sunday repeated the official government line that the killings occurred in a cross fire between Cambodian and Viet Cong troops. However, the new governor, Col. Kong Chhath, added: "Such incidents will not happen again under my command. We will follow a humanitarian policy."

Mainland Plumbers Could Join Lockout

Mainland plumbers today were expected to be added to the list of unions locked out by Construction Labor Relations Association in an effort to bring the B.C. building industry to a standstill.

A spokesman for CLRA said he expected a development involving plumbers, and since the plumbers' union had 72-hour lockout notice last week, "you can figure it out for yourself."

The seven other unions locked out are bricklayers and helpers, laborers, teamsters, cement finishers, heat and frost insulators, operating engineers and tunnel and rock workers.

TALKS RESUME

Negotiations with the teamsters were resumed in Vancouver today and efforts to get talks going with other locked-out unions were being made, CLRA said.

Meanwhile, at the weekend, negotiators for some 10,000 B.C. carpenters rejected a CLRA offer of $1 an hour wage increase, but members will vote on it and a strike ballot within 10 days.

Charles J. Connaghan, president of CLRA, said the offer was for 14 per cent wage increase over two years, the same increase offered mainland plumbers, which was rejected a week ago.

VICTORIA UNAFFECTED

Greater Victoria plumbers bargain independently of the mainland unions and are working on the fifth year of a five-year contract expiring in the spring of next year. They are unaffected by the lockout expected today in Vancouver.

A suggestion that contractors would today begin picketing lockout job sites in an effort to keep away tradesmen from unions which are not locked out was described by the CLRA spokesman as "absurd."

He said the thought was considered by the masonry contractors Victoria section of CLRA because some non-members of CLRA had hired bricklayers and helpers locked out by association members.

Amalgamated Construction Association Victoria manager Ed Phillips said these non-member companies now realize their action was not in the best interests of the industry and were no longer keeping locked-out bricklayers on their payrolls. He said two or three companies and up to eight men had been involved in the four days since Tuesday when lockouts first took effect.

400 INVOLVDE

He said he had surveyed construction from Nanaimo south and found 400 tradesmen directly affected by the lockout, all members of the seven original unions. He said it was impossible to judge how many others, such as carpenters whose work had caught up to the other trades, are indirectly affected by the lockout.

strators in Vancouver Saturday.

Another anti-war demonstration in Edmonton went more smoothly as a native organization joined leftists and other anti-war sympathizers to condemn the Trudeau government for "complicity" with American participation in the Vietnamese war.

In Montreal, a small group of demonstrators, some wearing gas or surgical masks, staged a peaceful march to protest the Quebec government's silence on the war.

Participants in the four demonstrations were estimated at more than 2,400-1,500 in Ottawa, 600 in Edmonton and 300 in Vancouver and 50 in Montreal.

For about 2,300 of those demonstrators the focal point was predominatly the demand for U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam and an end to Canadian military co-operation with the U.S., on the grounds that Canada is indirectly participating in the war.

The emphasis was generally on bringing peace to Southeast Asia.

THESE WANT ESCALATION

For the Maoists, who numbered between 75 and 100 well-disciplined militants in Ottawa and between 25 and 30 in Vancouver, the main themes were "escalate the war" in Vietnam and fight for an overthrow of "imperialist" and "fascists" governments everywhere.

The war they say they want escalated in Vietnam is the "war of national liberation" being fought by the pro-Communist forces in Southeast Asia.

They oppose both Western and Russian "fascism."

In Vancouver rain dampened the enthusiasm of demonstrators and scuffles with Maoists effectively ended the proceedings.

After the demonstration had marched 1½ miles through the city opposing factions tried swinging with each other as they pushed up and down the steps of the city courthose trying to gain control of the speaker's platform.

There were no apparent injuries and no arrests were reported.

Featured speaker Cy Gonick, editor of Canadian Dimension magazine an NDP member of the Manitoba legislature was forced to cut short his speech and relinquish his bullhorn.

Daniels suffered head injuries while Mrs. Harry reecived hip injuries.

Shirley Jimmie, 19, was also riding in the car.

Nixon to Outline Vietnam Policy

From AP-Reuters

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (CP) — President Nixon will outline his approach to further U.S. troop withdrawals from South Vietnam in a television-radio address tonight — and perhaps unveil a surprise or two.

Nixon will speak from the western White House here and speculation has it that he will announce a withdrawal of between 45,000 and 50,000 men within the next few months.

So far, he has withdrawn 115,000 troops since the Vietnamization program began in July, and reduced U.S. troop strength in Vietnam from 544,500 to 429,000 in three phases.

The last withdrawal was completed April 15, with the over-all rate of withdrawal since July running at an average of slightly more than 11,000 men a month.

Sources at the White House did not rule out the likelihood that Nixon would go beyond mere discussion of troop travels and break new ground in presidential discussion of the Southeast Asian situation.

Since Nixon last took to the airwaves to duscuss the Vietnam war, last Dec. 15, the conflict has broadened, particularly in Cambodia which seeks U.S. arms following a coup that overthrew the neutralist government of Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

REQUEST UNDER STUDY

The state department has said the arms request is under study.

The Nixon administration also has taken an interest in a statement last week by Jacob Malik, Soviet ambassador to the United Nations, that indicated possible Russian interest in the new Geneva conference to take up the entire Indochina situation.

However, Malik told ABC-TV News Saturday that "convening such a conference is unrealistic at the present time."

Although he has been urged by his military chiefs to delay the next withdrawal — to allow more time to train and equip the South Vietnamese army — Nixon apparently has concluded that a recent flare-up in Viet Cong activities is not serious enough to warrant a change.

The president reviewed his expected decision when he conferred Sunday with Pacific commanders in Honolulu.

Nixon flew to his California villa late Sunday frm Honolulu, where he greeted the three Apollo 13 astronauts Saturday on their return to the United States.

The president and Mrs. Nixon will return to Washington Tuesday.

Visitors Bureau 'Greeted Ship'

There was a welcome for the visit last week of the cruise ship West Star and it was organized by the Victoria Visitors' Bureau, president Pat Frumento said today.

He was commenting on a Victoria Chamber of Commerce resolution last Friday expressing disappointment that the first cruise ship of the season docked without the normal colorful reception.

Frumento said he is "very distressed" at the chamber's attitude.

He said there was a reception last Wednesday when the West Star arrived, including a dockside performance by the Esquimalt Thunderbird Drum Corps. The mayor's representative, Ald. Cecil Parrott, was there and flowers were given to each passenger.

Frumento also said that, contrary to an earlier report, it was the Victoria Visitors' Bureau which organized formal welcomes for visiting cruise ships last year, not the Chamber of Commerce, and the bureau will do the same this year.

Chamber directors approved a resolution expressing the hope that "ways and means can be found to avoid such a tragic recurrence" as the quiet arrival of the West Star.

The vessel was picketed at the CPR dock. The Seafarers' International Union was protesting the use of a foreign crew and lockout of Canadian crews from Westline ships.

A stubbornly defiant woman was in the witness chair in court.

"I want to tell this story in my own way, exactly as it happened and without being interrupted at every other word by that lousy, sarcastic shyster there who—"

"Just a moment, madam," said the judge sternly. "You can't use that kind of language in this courtroom. What you mean is 'the counsel for the defence.' Now go on with your testimony."

"All right," sighed the witness. "As I was saying I want to tell this story in my own way, exactly as it happened and without being interrupted at every other word by that—" She broke off suddenly, turned to the judge and said, "Your honor, what was that fancy name you called that lousy, sarcastic shyster?"

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

Jeff, the old Wyoming cowboy who lives down the road, sits out in the sun every day. "The sun feels good," he said, "and now that I know how it helps me stay healthy at my age, it feels even better."

He knows from talking with his doctor that the ultraviolet rays in sunshine change chemical substances within his body into vitamin D. Vitamin D may not help Jeff grow, because after a cowboy is past 70 he only grows in widsom, as he puts it. But it does help keep up the strength of his bone structure.

"The Indians felt in their bones that sunshine was good for them," said Jeff. "When they basked in the sun for warmth they felt better. And they even knew that when a warrior didn't get enough sunshine he was liable to get sick and lose his appetite."
